The British aircraft carrier Theseus is seen leaving Portsmouth, England, Friday on its way to join other British naval forces operating in Korean waters. The Royal Navy disclosed a possible case of sabotage aboard the vessel four days before its departure. Electrical wiring which led to the ship's gyro compass was found slashed. The Navy said damage was easily repaired. The Theseus is a 10,000-tonner and carries 40 planes and a crew of 850 men.

No Change Seen On Rail Issue; Talks Continue

Mediator Still Seeking Solution In Close-Guarded Night Meeting

OTTAWA, Aug. 20 (Sunday) (CP) — No immediate change was sighted early today in the position of the rail strike as last-minute conferences continued behind doors closed to everybody.

The unions behind the decision, which means virtual paralysis for Canadian rail transportation, gave no indication of progress, any more than did representatives of the lines involved in the dispute.

This much was last known:

The conciliator appointed at the last moment by the Government to attempt a settlement had reached no agreement. Still trying for agreement were Government mediator W. A. Macintosh and Union official Frank Hall representing 90,000 employees of 15 international railway unions.

Hall said at the latest announcement today that his unions will not postpone their strike scheduled for August 22.

In Montreal Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telegraphs Saturday announced that in view of possible work stoppage due to a labor dispute the acceptance of all classes of telegrams will be subject to restrictions.

NO MORE TRAINS

After 6 a.m., local time Tuesday all public telegraph message services will be suspended.

In Vancouver the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's general passenger agent said yesterday that C.P.R. trains due to leave Vancouver for the East on the evening of August 21 will be canceled if the labor dispute is not settled before departure time.

Talks Fail to Produce U.S. Rail Settlement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (Sunday) (AP) — American rail union and management negotiations failed early today to reach a settlement to head off a partial railroad strike set for Monday morning.

The White House announced that the unions had rejected a management offer of a 23 cents an hour wage increase, and had insisted they would settle for nothing less than their original demand of 31 cents an hour.

Although the partial strike called for Monday morning appeared imminent, John R. Steelman, presidential assistant, told both union and management representatives that by direction of President Truman he was asking both sides to continue their efforts to reach a settlement and that he was asking the unions to call off the strike.

There was no immediate indication whether the unions would take such action.

A union spokesman, commenting on the proferred 23 cents an hour wage offer, said:

"Nothing was offered that was any approach to what the unions would regard as a just and fair settlement."

Two unions have called a "token" strike of yardmen at three rail terminals for 6 a.m. local time Monday. Several defence plants are already feeling the pinch.

Should the walkout occur, it would be the culmination of a dispute that has been running for 17 months.

Coast Braces As Hurricane Roars to North

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (INS) — The first Atlantic hurricane of the 1950 season roared northward some 300 miles off the Eastern seaboard tonight but was expected to by pass New York, brush the tip of Cape Cod and veer out to sea.

Storm warnings were hoisted from Morehead, N.C., to the Virginia Capes, with 140-mile winds expected to pass a few miles east of Cape Hatteras Sunday morning.

The howler was last reported less than 200 miles south of Cape Hatteras, moving northward at the rate of 12 miles per hour and slowly accelerating in forward movement.

Air force officials at Mitchell Field and navy and coast guard authorities at Floyd Bennett Field, meanwhile, took no chances in event the hurricane should change its present course. They made preparations to secure or evacuate all large planes which might be damaged by the winds.

Big Aircraft Back at Base

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 (INS) — A Pan-American Airways DC-4 plane, chartered to the United States Army, carrying 40 passengers, landed safely at Fairfield-Suisun tonight after running into trouble over the Pacific.

Provinces At Talks In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Aug. 20 (CP) — Federal and Provincial representatives meet here behind closed doors tomorrow to renew talks on a formula for constitutional amendments. The discussions may last several days.

The meeting of attorneys-general and their advisers is a follow-up to a constitutional session last Winter between heads of the Federal and Provincial Governments and is to lay plans for a full resumption of the main conference.

The constitutional conference was called to discuss the possibility of transferring from the United Kingdom Parliament to Canada the power to make amendments to the constitution on matters within the joint jurisdiction of the Dominion and the Provinces.

This would give Canada complete control over her constitution, since a year ago Parliament obtained power from the United Kingdom Government to make all constitutional changes on solely Federal matters. The Provinces have had power to amend the constitution within their own jurisdiction.

The attorneys-general have exchanged briefs on what procedure should be followed in making the amendments. If they can reach substantial agreement on procedure the main conference will be reconvened.

The general conference will deal with such matters as taxation agreements, extension of social security legislation and public investment programs.

Two Provincial Premiers who are attorneys-general are expected to attend. They are Maurice Duplessis of Quebec and J. B. McNair of New Brunswick.

BULLETINS

Gives Warning

TOKIO, Aug. 20 (Sunday) (INS).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur warned North Korean army leaders today to halt the "brutal murders" of American captives immediately or be held "criminally accountable."

The warning was issued by radio broadcast and by leaflets dropped over enemy lines in Korea.

Fly 122 Sorties

TOKIO, Aug. 20 (Sunday) (INS).—An American air officer said today that Allied jet and Mustang fighter pilots flew 122 sorties yesterday in smashing at the enemy on a 75-mile front above the key city of Taegu in Korea.

F.B.I. Man Drowns

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (INS).—Myron Elmare Garnea, 48, ace F.B.I. inspector, drowned in the Potomac River today when he fell from a cabin cruiser anchored off Hains Point.

Take Seamen From Vessels

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP). — The New York Times says about 100 men have been pulled off ships in the Port of New York during the past two days as the result of a Federal Government screening for Communists.

Americans Crush Enemy Bridgehead

South Korean Troops Retake Town of Kumhwa; Red Artillery Shells Taegu as Tanks Massing

TOKIO, Aug. 20 (Sunday) (AP). — The 12,000-man Communist bridgehead 23 miles southwest of Taegu has been "wiped out" by the Americans and South Koreans have recaptured the town of Kumhwa, 12 miles north of that key American supply base, General MacArthur's spokesman disclosed the successes today.

TOKIO, Aug. 20 (Sunday) (AP). — United Nations' forces launched an attack today on the east coast anchor of the South Korean battle line as 50,000 Reds massed north of Taegu. Emphasizing the Red menace to that key American supply base, enemy artillery shelled it for the second time.

Another Red force, with tanks and motorized infantry, was building up near Chinju at the southern end of the 120-mile battlefront perimeter.

For the moment, Red drives were so effectively stalled that the North Korean radio at Pyongyang for the first time stopped claiming Red "advances."

On the east anchor, South Korean troops which recaptured the port city of Pohang, Friday, jumped off in an attack north teamed with American elements. The front for this drive extended nine miles west to Kigye.

But the Communists' main menace remained to the west of the Pohang-Kigye fighting—in the Kunwi sector where the 50,000 Reds were reported assembled.

Ahead of this menacing force was the spearhead of Reds which drove within ten miles of Taegu before South Koreans and a "fire brigade" of Americans blunted it. Resistance in that sector today disappeared—but American leaders were cautious.

Korean News Resumes Flow After Blackout

By The Associated Press

Korean war news began flowing again Saturday night after a blackout of more than ten hours.

Radio reception conditions improved on some channels and Tokio dispatches again became receivable in the United States. This made possible resumption of Korean war coverage from General MacArthur's headquarters.

Associated Press correspondent Don Huth got through to Tokio from United States Eighth Army headquarters in Korea under circumstances not immediately clear.

His dispatch was timed many hours after Tokio reported that the Eighth Army had removed telephone and teletype lines used by correspondents between advanced headquarters and Tokio.

A brief telephone call from Korea just before the line was taken down quoted American officers as saying the equipment was needed by the military elsewhere.

Girl Injured In Lake Mishap

SEATTLE, Aug. 19 (AP).—Isabel Paterson, 27, formerly of New Westminster, B.C., fell out of a motorboat and lost her right hand in the propeller blades in Lake Washington late today.

Snow Brightens Summer Scene

Who said it was hot? Yes, it's a snowman and made of real, honest-to-goodness snow, too. Passers-by goggled yesterday as they saw ten-year-old Bill Buxton (left), of 366 Foul Bay Road, and 11-year-old Jill Pinniger (right), of 1728 Amphion Street, calmly building a snowman as the mercury hovered around 80. After rubbing their eyes, onlookers discovered the explanation for the bizarre scene. A ton of snow dumped in front of a local cold storage locker firm came from the mammoth defrosting job done on the plant's refrigeration system. The only difference from the above picture and a real Winter scene is that even the snowman seems to be feeling the heat—he's sitting down.

Dentist Saves Young Son After Speedboat Blast

SEATTLE, Aug. 19 (AP).—Blown into Lake Washington by a gasoline explosion, a Seattle dentist swam back to his flaming 18-foot speedboat and rescued his three-year-old son late today.

The dentist's older son and another boy also were blown into the water. Other boatmen rescued them.

Dr. Robert A. Burrell said he and the boys were cruising when they ran out of fuel. He filled the tank from a spare can, but when he pressed the starter he said a spark apparently caught some spilled gasoline.

Dr. Burrell was scorched from head to foot by the blast. Robert Burrell Jr., eight, and Bobby Clark, eight, were also blown into the lake. Both are able swimmers and remained afloat until rescued.

The father, momentarily stunned, recovered consciousness to find himself floating near the boat, he recalled. His younger boy, Craig, three, was screaming in pain. The doctor grabbed Craig from the stern of the boat and swam with him to an approaching boat.

The younger boy was treated at a hospital for burns on his face and legs. The other three received treatment at home.

U.S. Adviser Flays Russia

Asserts Men, Equipment Must Be Sent to Europe

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP).—One of the U.S. State Department's top Republican advisers declared tonight that the U.S. and Britain must commit "men and equipment" to the defence of Western Europe against the "mortal danger" of Soviet aggression.

He accused Russia of resorting to "bare faced aggression" in Korea, said this places other areas of the world in great peril and warned that "under present conditions, the Soviet forces could overrun Europe at any time."

SHARP CRITICISM

This slashing attack on the Soviet Union coupled with sharp criticism that the Western nations have failed to respond adequately to the danger to themselves, was made by John Sherman Cooper. He is now an adviser to Secretary of State Dean Acheson on recent North Atlantic treaty defence moves.

His three essentials are:

1. Immediate completion and approval by the 12 Atlantic Treaty nations of a defence plan for Western Europe which will specify precisely the military tasks and missions of each country. His call for such a plan made it clear that none yet exists.

UNIFIED COMMAND

2. Establishment of a unified military command "with authority and responsibility to implement and execute the defence plans, and to assume the command function if needed."

In this connection Cooper declared "it is inevitable and moral that Germany shall be given the opportunity to defend itself." He declared the decision "must be made and quickly to protect against another Korea."

3. Action by the United States to make clear "that it will join in the defence of Europe in the initial stages of assault, should it come."

In Event of Third World War

Oil Experts of Britain, U.S. Provide for Continuous Flow

WASHINGTON, Aug 19 (INS) — United States and British Government oil experts today mapped plans for assuring uninterrupted production and flow of oil in event of a third world war

A British group headed by Undersecretary R Kela-Cohen of the Ministry of Fuel and Power has just arrived in Washington to meet with officials of the State, Defence, Interior and Commerce Departments.

Other members of the group include Assistant Secretaries K. Stock and A P. Williams of the Fuel Ministry and Angus Backett, newly arrived petroleum attache of the British Embassy

A spokesman said merely that their conferences "concerned the production of oil against the background of the international situation"

WORLD-WIDE PROGRAM

Behind this general statement lies formation of a world-wide program designed to overcome any threat to stoppage of the Western world's vitally needed oil supply from any direction.

The Anglo American discussions necessarily will involve complicated advance planning to overcome possible loss of any oil area now controlled by the two nations

There was a sharp focus on the Middle East where the United States in particular has heavy oil interests—all of them lying almost literally under the guns of Soviet Russia.

Similarly there is certain to be debate about what should be done in event British oil fields in the already embattled Far East might be cut off by an enemy force

There will be consideration of the situation in Venezuela, another prime source of United States-British oil

The vast internal oil resources of the United States will also be studied

It is expected that a plan will be worked out to "take the lid off" United States production in event of emergency Under Federal and state conservation laws, many known American oil fields are now sealed off, and the planners feel it would be advisable to have them in immediate readiness

Orders Arrest Of Communist

CARROLLTON, Ga., Aug 19 (AP).—Superior Court Judge Samuel Boykin today ordered the immediate arrest of Homer Bates Chase, Georgia Communist Party head.

The arrest was ordered when Chase failed to appear at a hearing at which the state sought to revoke his bond on grounds he was a "menace to security"

Jim R. Kamm of Atlanta, an associate of Chase, also was ordered arrested.

Chase and Kamm are free on $1,000 appeal bonds. They were convicted of contempt of court here and sentenced to 30 days in jail for circulating literature criticizing the court in the trial of Clarence Henderson

Henderson, a negro, was sentenced to death for slaying Georgia Tech student Carl Stephens A new trial has been ordered for Henderson.

Solicitor General Wright Lipford sought revocation of the appeal bonds on grounds that "the United States is engaged in actual warfare against Communist aggressors" and that Chase and Kamm "are a menace to society and a danger to the security of the United States"

Lipford said he based his case on the California case in which the bond of longshoreman-union leader Harry Bridges was revoked on similar grounds.

Will Urge Stronger Defences

WASHINGTON, Aug 19 (AP) President Truman is sending his specialist on North Atlantic Treaty defence back to London this weekend to try to get America's Western European allies to increase again their already extended emergency rearmament programs.

Ambassador Charles M Spofford was scheduled to leave by plane from New York tonight after two weeks of top-level conferences with State and Defence Department officials topped off by a talk with the President.

In a new meeting of the North Atlantic Council opening Tuesday Spofford is expected to tell Britain, France and other West European countries that the dangers of a Soviet-Communist war in the next few years are grave These dangers must be offset by an adequate non-Communist power buildup, he is prepared to urge, and programs thus far put forward are not good enough

WORKING ON FIGURES

It is understood that later in the session Spofford, who acts as Secretary of State Acheson's deputy on the council, will be able to tell the Europeans that the United States administration is counting on maintaining a defence program totaling about $35,000 000,000 annually for several years.

Administration officials are still working over the figures which go into this long-range estimate The total includes United States rearmament, foreign military aid, foreign economic assistance and atomic energy work.

The first official word of the estimate may come out next week when Acheson goes before the Senate Appropriations Committee He will argue for President Truman's proposal for $4,000 000,000 in emergency foreign military aid, most of which is slated for Europe

Senators may want Acheson to tell them what he thinks this country's defence outlay will be as well as what plans its allies have for co-operative rearmament.

Clerks Doze, Cash Goes; Boss Knows

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug 19 (AP) —It was 3 p.m yesterday—sleepy time on a day when the temperature hovered around 97.

The telephone jangled at the police station.

The desk sergeant listened while an excited voice reported that a cash register had just been stolen from a store in the 1200 block on Ryan Street.

The desk sergeant hung up

The phone rang again.

"I'm the owner of a store in the 1200 block on Ryan Street," the new voice on the phone said, "and if one of my clerks calls up to tell you that the cash register has been stolen from my store don't pay any attention to it.

"I stole the cash register myself when I came into the store and found the clerks all asleep"

All employees at the store are wide awake today.

Battle on Dike Averts Flood

BENNINGTON, Vt., Aug 19 (INS). —More than 300 men working around the clock saved Bennington from inundation today when they finally plugged a gaping hole smashed through a flood control wall by the rampaging Branch River.

The danger to the town arose last night when two cloudbursts lashed the area and the river smashed down a 300-foot span of concrete flood wall in the northeast section.

Fifty families were alerted for evacuation from their homes before the threat was overcome.

Volunteers and police and firemen worked through the night to bolster the broken flood wall with sandbags.

Two persons were injured at the height of the Summer storm when lightning struck a shed on the outskirts of the community. Putnam Hospital officials said Carroll White, 48, and Robert Jennings, 14, suffered shock and minor burns.

Wilgress Flying to U.K. For Atlantic Pact Talks

By TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA Aug 19 — Hon Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, leaves Montreal by air tomorrow to return to London in time for the meeting there on Tuesday of the Council of Deputies of the North Atlantic Treaty.

Mr Wilgress, who has been on holidays in Canada, will go back prepared to give the deputies a detailed account of this country's plans for military preparedness, it was stated tonight. His vacation here has been interspersed with consultations with top Canadian officials.

MOST PRESENTED

There was no indication here of the full extent of the program that Canada will lay before the meeting The request for full details of what the North Atlantic Treaty countries intend to do to prepare themselves to resist Communist aggression was made available at the deputies' first meeting last month.

While reports from Washington indicate that all but one or two member nations have presented their defence blueprints to the council, it is stated here that August 25 was the final date set for the plans to be in.

Defence officials here declined to state what proposals Canada had made or would make.

Unless there are unexpected disclosures in London during the meeting of the Council of Deputies, it is not believed that Canada's intentions will be known until after Parliament meets here At that time Prime Minister Louis St Laurent is expected to outline a broad program of military and other defence preparations and call for Parliamentary approval

LONDON (CP) — Halfway House Tavern in London's Fulham district has a clock with only six figures on the dial. It gives only the pub's opening and closing times — the makers thought these were the only times worth notice.

Orders Arrest Of Communist

CARROLLTON, Ga., Aug. 18 (AP).—Superior Court Judge Samuel Boykin today ordered the immediate arrest of Homer Bates Chase, Georgia Communist Party head

The arrest was ordered when Chase failed to appear at a hearing at which the state sought to revoke his bond on grounds he was a "menace to security."

Jim R. Kamm of Atlanta, an associate of Chase, also was ordered arrested.

Chase and Kamm are free on $1,000 appeal bonds. They were convicted of contempt of court here and sentenced to 20 days in jail for circulating literature criticizing the court in the trial of Clarence Henderson

Henderson, a negro, was sentenced to death for slaying Georgia Tech student Carl Stephens A new trial has been ordered for Henderson.

Solicitor General Wright Lipford sought revocation of the appeal bonds on grounds that "the United States is engaged in actual warfare against Communist aggressors" and that Chase and Kamm "are a menace to society and a danger to the security of the United States."

Lipford said he based his case on the California case in which the bond of longshoreman-union leader Harry Bridges was revoked on similar grounds.

Boy Due Home From U.K. Visit

Douglas Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Park, 224 Maddock Ave. is scheduled to return to this city Wednesday after a five-week trip to Britain.

He was one of a group of 50 teen-aged boys from all parts of Canada who visited Britain as guests of Garfield Weston—Canadian-born international industrialist—on a tour designed to cement closer Commonwealth relationships.

Will Urge Stronger Defences

WASHINGTON, Aug 18 (AP) President Truman is sending his specialist on North Atlantic Treaty defence back to London this weekend to try to get America's Western European allies to increase again their already extended emergency rearmament programs.

Ambassador Charles M Spofford was scheduled to leave by plane from New York tonight after two weeks of top-level conferences with State and Defence Department officials topped off by a talk with the President.

In a new meeting of the North Atlantic Council opening Tuesday Spofford is expected to tell Britain, France and other West European countries that the dangers of a Soviet-Communist war in the next few years are grave These dangers must be offset by an adequate non-Communist power buildup, he is prepared to urge, and programs thus far put forward are not good enough.

WORKING ON FIGURES

It is understood that later in the session Spofford, who acts as Secretary of State Acheson's deputy on the council, will be able to tell the Europeans that the United States administration is counting on maintaining a defence program totaling about $35,000,000,000 annually for several years.

Administration officials are still working over the figures which go into this long-range estimate. The total includes United States rearmament, foreign military aid, foreign economic assistance and atomic energy work

The first official word of the estimate may come out next week when Acheson goes before the Senate Appropriations Committee He will argue for President Truman's proposal for $4,000,000,000 in emergency foreign military aid, most of which is slated for Europe

Senators may want Acheson to tell them what he thinks this country's defence outlay will be as well as what plans its allies have for co-operative rearmament.

Clerks Doze, Cash Goes; Boss Knows

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug. 18 (AP) —It was 3 p.m. yesterday—sleepy time on a day when the temperature hovered around 97

The telephone jangled at the police station.

The desk sergeant listened while an excited voice reported that a cash register had just been stolen from a store in the 1200 block on Ryan Street.

The desk sergeant hung up

The phone rang again.

"I'm the owner of a store in the 1200 block on Ryan Street," the new voice on the phone said, "and if one of my clerks calls up to tell you that the cash register has been stolen from my store don't pay any attention to it.

"I stole the cash register myself when I came into the store and found the clerks all asleep."

All employees at the store are wide awake today.

Battle on Dike Averts Flood

BENNINGTON, Vt., Aug. 18 (INS) —More than 200 men working around the clock saved Bennington from inundation today when they finally plugged a gaping hole smashed through a flood control wall by the rampaging Branch River.

The danger to the town arose last night when two cloudbursts lashed the area and the river smashed down a 300-foot span of concrete flood wall in the northeast section

Fifty families were alerted for evacuation from their homes before the threat was overcome.

Volunteers and police and firemen worked through the night to bolster the broken flood wall with sandbags

Two persons were injured at the height of the Summer storm when lightning struck a shed on the outskirts of the community. Putnam Hospital officials said Carroll White, 48, and Robert Jennings, 14 suffered shock and minor burns.

Wilgress Flying to U.K. For Atlantic Pact Talks

By TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Aug 18 — Hon. Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, leaves Montreal by air tomorrow to return to London in time for the meeting there on Tuesday of the Council of Deputies of the North Atlantic Treaty.

Mr. Wilgress, who has been on holidays in Canada, will go back prepared to give the deputies a detailed account of this country's plans for military preparedness, it was stated tonight. His vacation here has been interspersed with consultations with top Canadian officials.

MOST PRESENTED

There was no indication here of the full extent of the program that Canada will lay before the meeting The request for full details of what the North Atlantic Treaty countries intend to do to prepare themselves to resist Communist aggression was made available at the deputies' first meeting last month.

While reports from Washington indicate that all but one or two member nations have presented their defence blueprints to the council, it is stated here that August 26 was the final date set for the plans to be in.

Defence officials here declined to state what proposals Canada had made or would make.

Unless there are unexpected disclosures in London during the meeting of the Council of Deputies, it is not believed that Canada's intentions will be known until after Parliament meets here At that time Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent is expected to outline a broad program of military and other defence preparations and call for Parliamentary approval

Tales of Laden Tomato Vines Pouring Into Colonist Offices

The Daily Colonist all but appointed a "vice-president in charge of tomato plants" yesterday.

It all started early last week when a picture appeared of J. E. Harvey, 1036 Kings Road, showing his prolific tomato plant. The following day D. M. Crosby, 1770 Lee Avenue reported 48 tomatoes on one of his plants and Mrs. R. B. McLure, 3928 Winton Street, 33 tomatoes on one of her plants.

And then in yesterday's edition there appeared another photograph of Ernest Jackson, 1547 Morley Street, looking over a tomato plant bearing 29 large juicy tomatoes.

That did it.

The day was yet young when Mrs. R. Dunning, 2535 Empire Street, called in to say there was a plant in her garden with 37 tomatoes on it.

A few hours passed and into the editorial offices walked veteran gardener W. E. Saggars of 1757 Haultain Street, whose pride and joy was a plant with no less than 52 tomatoes hanging from its branches. "And right behind the tomatoes there's a corn patch about nine feet high," he added with bushels of pride.

Shortly afterward, Mrs. S. W Mawle, 3900-A Cadboro Bay Road, telephoned to say there were 40 tomatoes on one of her plants.

And then late yesterday afternoon, C. L. Pullen, 614 Craigflower Road, modestly remarked to a reporter that there was a tomato plant in his small garden with 62 tomatoes dangling among its leaves and branches.

It was beginning to sound like a game of "Can you top this" when the ultimate arrived yesterday evening. Arthur Whittaker, 2976 Colquitz Avenue, marched into the office with pictures to show that his best plant carried 71 tomatoes on it, after six had been picked—and there were more coming.

In all modesty, however, Mr Whittaker admitted that the plants were not really his anyway. They belonged to his wife.

Pays Fees Despite Exemption

A Victoria resident who will celebrate his 90th birthday September 19 is one of the few people in British Columbia who are entitled to claim exemption from hospital insurance but he pays his premiums anyway.

Fredrick A Pauline, 940 Foul Bay Road, pays his insurance regularly but his membership in the old French Benevolent Society gives him an exemption if he wished.

ONLY TWO REMAIN

The Society gave property to the Royal Jubilee Hospital on condition that they took care of members when they were ill, Mr. Pauline said, but there are only two of the original members left.

Formerly British Columbia's agent-general in London, one time member of the House for Saanich and former Speaker for the B.C. Legislature, Mr. Pauline paid his first hospital subscription in 1888 and has the paper to prove it.

NO COMPLAINTS

With nearly 90 years of "a good life" behind him he has no complaints. His varied career in Canada began in 1884 as a newspaper reporter but he soon left this job for a better paying position with a shipping company.

Mr. Pauline in addition to his many government appointments was in the wholesale drygoods business for 20 years.

Dwarfs Again Favorites As Snow White Presented

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs captured additional hearts yesterday afternoon and evening at the Memorial Arena where Penthouse Productions presented the popular musical stage production.

A good crowd—the great majority of them children—enjoyed the afternoon presentation, but a discouragingly small number turned up for the evening performance.

By far the greatest attraction of the show was the presence of seven midgets—ranging in height from three feet, two inches, to four-and-a-half-feet—who handled the dwarfs' roles in a most comical and able manner. Their antics and acrobatics provided the numerous laughs of the two-hour show.

Marjorie Pragon—playing the role of Snow White—presented an able performance, and incorporated a brief ballet dance to add to the variety. She and "Prince" Hobart Brown constituted an enjoyable team.

There were "oos" and "ahs" and even little shrieks from the children as the witch—Cherie Ross—performed her phrases of the famous play.

PRESENTED 500 TIMES

Yesterday's appearance here of the production marked its first in Canada since the show started five seasons ago in New York. From this city it will proceed to Nanaimo, and later return to the U.S. The current tour started last September, and according to stage manager Hill Bermont, will end next Spring. Since its inception, the show has been presented more than 500 times.

Mrs. Louise Lawlon, producer of the stage attraction and manager of Penthouse Productions, is currently in Seattle, where her daughter is to be married today.

the three scourges of man

Devastating epidemics have ranked with war and famine as population levelers. Of these three scourges of man, pestilence was most dreaded. During the Black Plague epidemic of 1348, it was estimated that in some places over two-thirds of the population was wiped out.

The discovery of bacteria as the cause of infectious disease is still within the memory of the living. Pasteur developed the first vaccine for rabies in 1885. Since that time many immunizing procedures have become routine. As a consequence, deaths from infectious diseases have been drastically reduced.

Everyone should be protected against smallpox and diphtheria as an absolute minimum. Do not wait for an epidemic to break out. Then it is often too late.

We maintain complete stocks of biologicals, subject to the orders of your physician.

The Korean Fuse Is Attached to What?

IT was a rather grim, if accurate, summary that the British Consul-General at Los Angeles, Mr. R. H. Hadow, gave of world affairs to members of the Victoria Rotary Club last week. He said that Russia is embarked upon the second and more daring phase of a deliberately-conceived policy aimed at world domination, having lost the first round in the so-called "cold war." That phase, he warned, is designed in complete hostility to Western civilization, and is capable of setting the world aflame at any one of some dozen points around the perimeter of Asiatic and Eastern European lands. His conclusion seemed to be that, barring unlooked-for collapse at the Kremlin, it will require the earnest and continued effort of every free nation in concert to counteract this form of assault, in which Russia need not directly risk or lose one man.

In the "cold war," Mr. Hadow pointed out, the Kremlin had made an outright play for the collapse of France and Italy from within; to say nothing of efforts to break up any real rehabilitation in Germany. Blocked there by the narrowest of margins, Russia has commenced her long drive for the suppression of responsible government in all of the puppet, border states around her own periphery. These were now "buffers," such as Hitler once sought, and the future source of armed levies which could be driven into battle at the point of a gun. Korea, in his view, may be only the beginning of a much wider effort along the same line, one in which Russia would hold the interior lines and, to a large extent, the initiative.

This switch from "cold war" to perimeter fighting marked the point at which the Kremlin had begun to take a chance, to gamble, in what otherwise had been a coldly-calculated and extremely subtle offensive aimed directly at outright domination of the known world. But, said Mr. Hadow in conclusion, gambles do not always work out

They Too Volunteered—Why Not Accept Them?

THE response to the appeal for recruits for the special Canadian force for the Far East has been as expected—excellent. There is no dearth of men willing to serve the nation when the call comes Already the tentative objective of 5,000 recruits has been exceeded, with talk of a cut-off being made when the total reaches 9,000 While enthusiasm is high there should be no premature halt to recruiting, however. It will take more than 9,000 men to sustain in the field an active service brigade of 5,000.

It is not surprising to learn that defence officials are perplexed as well as pleased by the large numbers of volunteers When they relegated the regular army to home defence while calling for recruits for foreign service they invited the situation that has now occurred Permanent force men are also seeking a place in the special brigade, but except for some hundreds of specialists who will fill the technical spots they are being denied admission.

The anomaly will not go down well with regular army troops. When they joined the army they did so as volunteers ready to go wherever the need arose. No amount of hair-splitting can alter that, and the discrimination that sets them aside is bound to have a bad effect on morale. The Defence Department seems to have a genius for creating divisions in the army that find no parallel in the navy or air force.

A schism of this nature is not good for Canadian troops or for Canada as a whole, as a pertinent example proved during the war. The Cabinet would be wise to revise its intentions, so that regular army men seeking a transfer to the special force may be accepted in substantial numbers

No Pharaohs on High Manhattan

EXHUMATIONS at Sakkara, fifteen miles from Cairo, are reported currently to be stirring archaeological circles, after fresh discoveries by Egyptian scientists. There are references to the eighteenth and twenty first dynasties—when men could paint and women were loved well enough to be remembered in ornate tombs, traces of the highly pictorial language of those times; the customary awed tributes to "the high Sesostris," Queen Hatshepshut, and, no doubt, their hard-working executioners. It is all very pleasant and removed from the unrest of this age, just the thing to let the mind dwell upon, with the conviction that after 3,800 years or so this section of the past is reasonably buried.

One wonders, at times, what a future race of men will one day make of the present-day Cairo, or London, or New York, say about the year 5,800 A.D ? Unless a clear record has been preserved—with microfilms and sound-track recordings—there is some danger that the new New Yorkers may easily mistake the life and customs of the old Imagine the exhumation of a 70-story building on Manhattan Island in perhaps the year 5,801 A.D. It could well be mistaken for a prison with dungeons 70-stories deep in the bowels of the earth. There would be traces of faded murals in the foyers and very strange artifacts in most of the rooms, but would their import be clear?

From the profusion of paper everywhere this, inevitably, would be thought of as "the paper age.' Wood upon examination might prove to be metal, and metal, perhaps, plastic or milk derivates. Textiles, if indeed preserved, could be made of anything from glass to good farm cornstalks. Alas, no murals would be found in praise of anything or anyone. This is not a laudatory age. Our Pharaohs have become entirely too human to be worshiped.

FIND THE "PEACE"

Sir,—After reading your paper for the past few weeks I am left with the impression that peace and organizations interested in peace are things to be avoided. This idea may or may not have been impressed on us intentionally, but it has been impressed thoroughly, to say the least Never before has such an anti-peace feeling been stirred up in the public. We cannot strive for peace, as we all should, with this idea that the future holds war.

We should all have confidence in a peaceful world, not the defeatist attitude that we can hardly prevent being impressed on our minds Instead of peace seeking, we are war hunting and scare buying

PRINCE ROBERT HOUSE

Sir,—As a member of the Navy League of Canada for the past thirty years, I resent very much the aspersions cast by certain of our aldermen on the integrity of the chairman, Mr Forrest L. Shaw. I know for a fact that Mr. Shaw was not even a member of the Navy League at the time the lease was drawn with the city regarding Prince Robert House

I would suggest that our alderman devote themselves to matters which really need attention—the Memorial Arena mess for instance instead of making remarks totally uncalled for regarding a gentleman who has done a grand job in his efforts to take care of R C N personnel ashore and the administration of our local Sea Cadet Corps. It is a pity there are not a few more of his calibre in Victoria, who would be willing to devote time and energy to this very worthwhile cause, as he has done

CANADA AND THE U.N.

Sir,—A great many Canadians must be feeling uneasy at the present trend of world events. Russia seems determined upon a policy of conquest and aggression, yet our Government seems hardly aware of it. Should not the House of Commons and the Senate be in session continually during these crucial days?

As one of the foremost leaders of the smaller nations in the United Nations, Canada ought to do one of two things: She ought either to resign from the U.N. and definitely face up to world conditions and threats as they exist today, or else immediately prepare to give her fullest aid to United Nations policies, by giving far more than the present paltry token support.

If we believe in the United Nations we should support it to the utmost, and also put our country's manpower and resources into full readiness to resist aggression with every ounce of energy we possess, and with all speed If, on the other hand, we believe that the United Nations as at present constituted is a "broken reed," support of which is a great danger to us, then we are only fooling ourselves every minute we remain a member of it; and, at the same time, we are strengthening Russia's hand because she is making monkeys of us all around the United Nations conference table

The Little Red Bush

The little red bush, it was brave, it was gay
On the hilltop so dreary and bare
When Summer was over and skies were dull grey,
And the cold winds were striving for victory there.
In the midst of the stones and the stubble alone
Grew one little red bush.

Thought the little red bush
"Down below where it's green
May be pleasanter living than here
Where one has to make every bit of good cheer
For oneself, all alone, in the stubble and stone.
Just one little red bush."

'But it's here I've been placed by the Planter
Who knew where a little red bush ought to grow.
So instead of complaining the best thing to do
Is to flame—Oh! so brightly
That some one may see and be glad
That alone in the stubble and stone
Grows one little red bush'"

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IN so far as Vancouver Island is concerned the flying saucer is now official. At least one is recorded in the log-book of the Cassidy Airport, as you know if you read The Colonist last week Even Caddy never rated a distinction like that.

Sceptical? Not I, being quite neutral about such goings-on. Authority pooh-poohs the idea of aerial discs, but I see by a three-month-old clipping from News Review (English) that a British destroyer was due to sail for gunnery trials with the American Navy—in Californian waters. And the targets would be "Flying Saucers"!

The saucers, says the magazine, are designed and built to test United States anti-rocket weapons, and fly at a speed of over 1,000 miles per hour No wonder American gunners hadn't hit one up to that time

But, then, perhaps you shouldn't believe all you read

* * *

For instance, it wasn't Mrs. O'Leary's cow that kicked over a lantern and started the Chicago fire That myth was invented by a reporter who covered the fire, in order to make his story more interesting These reporters!

* * *

I'm more sceptical, as a matter of fact, about that $1,500,000 the Province is going to save by ditching its own police force. Either the British Columbia Police were terribly extravagant or else the Federal Government is terribly generous in taking over such a financial load.

But since there's nothing to suggest that Mr. Abbott likes money any less than Mr. Anscomb does, one can't help wondering what's the nigger in the wood-pile

* * *

A reader dissents, as is her privilege, with my views on tourists and their penchant for telling us how we should behave "The tourists pay the piper," she says, 'and have every right to call the tune"

I'm afraid I don't see it that way. I still think Canada belongs to Canadians and Victoria to Victorians. And if I buy a pound of steak from a butcher I don't believe that gives me the right to tell him how to run his business.

* * *

Far be it from this column to add to the Arena controversy, but I got to thinking the other day about the man who runs the place, Manager Dutkowski. What with a City Council, an arena committee, an arena commission and a consulting engineer all having a say about things, he must have a diverting time He must be a man of parts, too.

Ontario, I note with interest, is currently engaged in a campaign to persuade its people not to swear—except, of course, on a Bible in a courtroom. I doubt that the campaign will succeed, but I wish it well.

Principally because swearing is so banal to the listener. Anyone can use bad language, which makes the habit totally undistinguished. It takes an artist in words to swear picturesquely; not one man in ten thousand can do so steadily for 60 seconds without repeating himself. The usual limit, in fact, is two or three words said over and over again, and these become frightfully boring

A good healthy "damn" relieves the feelings now and then, but beyond that swearing amongst grown-ups is a hangover from their juvenile days when it was thought smart to swear. And really, you know, there's nothing smart about it at all.

Today's Answer

By far the greater part of a tree comes from the atmosphere, not from the soil as commonly supposed.

The "Peace" Congress

This is the fifth in a series of articles by Gerald Waring, prominent Ottawa journalist, exposing the Canadian Peace Congress as a tool of Russian Communism in the Soviet's sham peace offensive

By GERALD WARING

THE political, religious and other leaders of nations in which this Soviet sham peace propaganda is being disseminated are well aware of what the peacemongers—to coin a word—are doing, and why.

Prime Ministers St. Laurent and Attlee, United States Secretary Dean Acheson, C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the British Labor Party, the League of the Sacred Heart, and 13 leaders of national groups in the United States who comprise the executive of the All-American Conference to Combat Communism are among many who have denounced the perfidious peace campaign.

St Laurent sarcastically told the Canadian Peace Congress that it should address its peace pleas to the Soviet Union.

Coldwell said that "When organizations like the Canadian Peace Congress direct the major portion of their attack on the real force of aggression around the world as they are found in Communist-dominated governments, then they will deserve some measure of respect from the Canadian people."

Attlee said the Communist peace fronters "talk of peace while they support aggression. They are ruthless and unscrupulous hypocrites who pretend to virtues which their philosophy rejects."

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, said the Stockholm Appeal "distorts the problem, and gives room for misrepresentation and for exploitation for false ends . The clergy should refuse to promote the appeal and should advise their people not to sign it"

* * *

Acheson condemned it as "a propaganda trick in the spurious peace offensive of the Soviet Union," and termed it "bitter hypocrisy"

The United States group leaders said "the circulation, under the direction of the Communist Party, of this phoney peace petition to disarm the United States is in keeping with their historic procedure of infiltrating and later paralyzing a nation which they wish to invade . . . This petition is an important weapon in this psychological warfare . a deliberate attempt to embarrass and blackmail our Government in its present effort to stay the hand of the aggressors"

But the most damning denunciation of the new Communist tactic was made by a Canadian, External Affairs Minister Lester B Pearson

"Since the United Nations intervention in Korea to stop aggression," Pearson said in a speech last month, "a planned, purposeful campaign of deception has been launched by the Communists—under Cominform direction—using as their agency the spurious 'peace movements' which they have organized and fostered in various countries.

"The object of this campaign—which is being conducted with skill, vigor and complete lack of scruple—is to convince people that intervention in Korea is a blow at peace and that our motto should, therefore, be 'Hands Off Korea.'

"It is a sad commentary on human gullibility that the aggressive imperial policy of a great Slav despotism should be able to harness to its own political aims the highest and noblest sentiment in men—the love of peace and the desire to secure it

* * *

"Believe me, there is no genuine peace ideal in these Communist 'peace' campaigns," Pearson said. "If there were, all Canadians and Americans — indeed, all free men — would back them to the limit. The fact is that the word 'peace' has been debased and is being utilised by the Communists for their own belligerent purposes. This so-called 'dove'—Mr. Dean Acheson has called it a Trojan dove—which has been loosed from a Communist ark in which dwell 170 divisions of soldiers, bears in its beak not the emblem of peace, but poison ivy!

"This Communist peace campaign, though many of its supporters do not realise it, is simply another weapon of war against free democratic society—as much a weapon of war as are the Communist armies, so vastly greater than those of the free world . .

"By June 24, 1950, every man, woman and child in North Korea had signed, or at least made his thumbprint on, a peace declaration Yet during the very time that these declarations were being collected and forwarded to the Communist 'peace headquarters' in Paris, preparations in North Korea were being furiously accelerated for the launching of a naked and cynical armed aggression on the Republic of Korea These preparations must have been going on for weeks, and were designed for only one purpose—offensive war. And so, on June 24, this attack was launched, almost before the ink on these North Korean 'peace' declarations was dry

"When the Communists now tell us to 'fight for peace,' they mean to make it possible for this Communist aggression to succeed; just as they have told us that it would be their duty, if war ever broke out with Russia, to fight for peace by stabbing their own countries in the back.

"There is no peace in this campaign," Pearson warned. "But there is much danger to peace in it!"

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

From Files of The Daily British Colonist for August, 1863

By G. E. MORTIMORE

WHERE does the sea end and dry land begin? The question puzzled Victoria's early city fathers, because they wanted to know who owned James Bay

They were debating what to do with the tidal mud flats—a question solved much later by filling in the flats and building the Causeway.

"Mr Lewis introduced . . . a motion to inquire into the best means of obtaining possession of the mud flat at James Bay, for city purposes, with a view of constructing a public wharf on the same, and a public market in the rear thereof.

"Mr Stronach said he would support the resolution if the latter part of it were erased. Mr. Lewis was willing to strike out the latter part, but did not approve of it being divided into town lots, to open a way to speculation.

"The Chairman was of opinion that the Corporation should be content with simply getting the property in question under their control, and they could then decide what was to be done

"Mr. Copland thought the motion was like cooking the hare before it was caught . . . He had been told that the Beaver (Hudson's Bay steamer) had been nearly at the top of the flat, so that it could not be called land, but mud, and they did not know how much they might have to fill into it

"He considered it navigable water, and it could no more be shut up than a public street. The property was held by the Crown in trust

"Mr Hicks said that the shore to low water mark belonged to the people.

"A Councillor: 'High water mark!'

"Mr. Hicks: 'In some places, but in most countries to low water mark'"

Mr Searby suggested "deepening and dredging it to make it navigable" An Act of Parliament would be needed to vest it in the city, he thought. The council struck a committee to meet owners of nearby property.

"The committee reported that they had inspected the place where the fence had been erected in front of His Excellency's property on James Bay, and found it had been removed, therefore they had nothing to report on that subject.

A CLASSIC example of counting sheep to avoid insomnia concerned an Eastern garment manufacturer. While he lay sleepless in bed he tallied 5,000 sheep. Then in his imagination he had them sheared and the wool spun into cloth which his factory cut into men's cheap suits to sell for $19.95. His calculations showed each garment would net him a loss of $5 50. The terrifying thought prevented him from sleeping at night for nearly a week . . . During a visit to Switzerland, William Ewart Gladstone was persuaded by his host to accompany him on a round of golf. While they strolled back to the clubhouse his friend asked the great statesman how he liked the game. "It is one way to spoil a good walk," Gladstone replied . . . During an epidemic of whooping cough and colds in County Clare, Ireland, a farmer told his neighbors that his two small children were immune from infection because he allowed them to smoke pipes and chew tobacco. When the great plague struck London, England, children were ordered to smoke pipes to ward off germs Thomas Rogers, a student at Eton, wrote: 'All the boys were compelled to smoke in school every morning, and I was never so whipped in my life as one morning for not smoking" The smoking order was followed for a long time after the plague, because a historian recorded in 1697. 'In Worcestershire, the children are sent to school with their pipes in their satchels, and the schoolmaster calls a halt in their studies while they all smoke" . . . From The Brantford, Ont, Expositor: "It may have become a fad or fashion, but one wonders why some persons think it smart or proper to show up at 9:30 p.m. or 10 p.m. for a social function that normally might be expected to begin at 8 p.m. If it is not a waste of their time, it may be a waste of somebody else's, to say nothing of inconvenience or annoyance to the host and hostess '

Arming of West Based On Red Need for Time

EUROPE TODAY

By KINGSBURY SMITH

PARIS, Aug. 19 (INS). — Plans which are being formulated today for the rearmament of Western Europe are based on the calculated risk that despite the gravity of the international situation Russia will refrain from precipitating war with the United States during the next three years.

Why do the Western European Allied governments believe that Russia will not attack America during that time?

To get the answer to this vitally important question, International News Service sought the private views of top level American diplomats in Europe, as well as leading Western European officials.

The inquiries showed that the belief that the Soviet Government will avoid precipitating a direct conflict with the United States is based on the following three major assumptions:

1. That Russia fears the effects of American atom bomb attacks;
2. That Russia does not yet possess an adequate stockpile of atom bombs;
3. That Russia's industrial war potential is still too weak in comparison with that of the Western Allies to risk a major conflict.

Western defence planners are said to attach considerable importance to the third point, despite the reports that Russia's military forces include 165 active divisions, 25,000 tanks and 16,000 front line planes.

On the basis of military and diplomatic intelligence reports, the Western European governments estimate that Russian steel output for this year will be approximately 22,000,000 tons.

America's steel production for 1950 is expected to top 71,000,000 tons. Great Britain will produce around 16,000,000 tons and the rest of Western Europe approximately 24,000,000 tons. Thus, the Western Allies will produce a total of about 111 million tons.

It is recognized that a much greater percentage of Soviet steel production is probably devoted to armaments than is the case at present in the Western democracies. Nevertheless, top-level American and European officials doubt the ability of the Soviet Union to wage a prolonged major war.

It is estimated that Russia will produce this year only 33 million tons of oil. On the other hand, the United States and the Western European democracies are expected to produce 415 million tons.

Russia's production of aluminum is estimated at about 200,000 tons for 1950, whereas the United States and Canada will produce around 900,000 tons.

Western officials profess to believe that Russia would risk war with the United States now only if she had sufficient atom bombs to deliver a quick knockout blow to Western, and especially American, industrial potential.

It is not believed that Russia has any such stockpile now, although members of the United Nations military committee recently considered it possible that the Soviets might have 20 bombs and be producing them at the rate of one to one and a half per month.

Even if this estimate was correct, Western officials are inclined to doubt that Russia would run the risk of a direct and probably prolonged conflict with the West.

It is on this assumption that the Western defence planners think they have three years to rearm Western Europe.

Believes Son Interviewed By Russians

SHOALS, Ind., Aug. 19 (INS). — Farmer John Sanders said today he believes his son—Sgt. Paul R. Sanders—is one of several captured American soldiers interviewed by a Russian war correspondent in Korea.

The correspondent, Alexander Chakovsky, wrote in the Moscow Literary Gazette and identified one of the prisoners as a Paul Sanders, son of "a rich Indiana farmer."

The parents were informed Wednesday that their son was missing in action. They live near Shoals, Ind.

DESCRIBED AS GANGSTER

Told of how the Russian correspondent wrote of their son as a "gangster from Indiana," Sanders Sr. exclaimed angrily:

"If I had a rifle and if I were out there, I'd show them how poor I am!"

However, both Sanders and his wife expressed joy at learning their son was not dead, but a prisoner.

Sanders pointed out that his "rich" land is composed of 25 acres of rocky, hilly ground and that he is building his own home to save money.

Chakovsky wrote he asked Sanders why he came to Korea and continued: "'An order', this gangster from Indiana sullenly replied." After describing interviews with another prisoner, Chakovsky concluded:

"These are the American storm troopers. Stupid toughs from some place like Indiana or Oklahoma, picturing themselves as supermen, yet cowardly talking about taking orders."

Paper Dispute May End Soon

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (INS).—A tentative agreement was reached today between the New York Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) and the World-Telegram and Sun to end the union's two-month strike which forced the closing of the third largest afternoon daily in the United States.

Announcement of the agreement was made by Federal Mediator Walter A. Maggiolo, who said it would be submitted to the guild membership on the paper on Tuesday.

Four hundred editorial and business office employees went on strike on June 13 in support of demands for a ten per cent general wage increase, job security and a guild shop.

The paper failed to publish when 1,000 A.F.L. and independent craft unions refused to cross guild picket lines.

Maps Polio Epidemics

Society Does First Work on Atlas of Disease

By JOE WING

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP).—An atlas of disease has been started by the American Geographical Society as a new approach to health.

Already the society has made a world map of polio, the first in a projected series of 25. Next is cancer.

This attempt to throw the geography book at human ills is looked upon by its director, Dr. Jacques M. May, as a military necessity as well as a great chance to advance basic knowledge.

"The society had a similar idea in 1944," he explains. "Now the pressure of events has forced on us an urgent study of these matters. We have to sum up our knowledge on the distribution of disease throughout the world since any area may become a battlefield."

Paris-born and educated, 54-year-old Dr. May has had much first-hand experience treating disease in odd corners of the world. A Great War veteran, he formerly was a professor of surgery in French Indo-China and a medical officer in Southeast Asia, Central Africa, Europe and the Caribbean region. Now he is a lecturer at New York University.

CONCENTRATED STUDY

"There is no other such concentrated study as this," he said in an interview. "It used to be that one of the few things known about a disease was where it occurred. Then, after the discovery of germs, interest in the geography factor dropped. Now we realize more and more that disease is a product of the soil."

Polio was mapped first because of its relative simplicity, although you wouldn't believe it to glance at the map. As big as a desk top and showing the whole world in sections, it indicates with red lines, dots and grids the regions where polio epidemics have occurred this century, when they occurred and how serious they were.

The highly-civilized parts of North America and Europe have had more polio epidemics than other regions. In primitive countries, Dr. May believes, the disease is present but does not flare up in big epidemics. It looks as though the virus is so common that everybody gets a chance to develop immunity at an early age. In advanced regions, people seem to encounter the virus late in life, with the result that public immunity is slow in developing.

If he can raise some $54,000, Dr. May hopes to map the 25 diseases in two or three years and then go on to 35 more. The maps are to be published for general distribution.

BRIGHTON, England, Aug. 19 (Reuters). "The Great Reno" climbed down from a 45-foot pole at a circus here last night after sitting on top of it for 37 hours and ten minutes.

Reno climbed his pole Thursday morning, refused to come down until the circus management agreed to release him from a contract.

Last night, shortly before midnight, Circus Manager Vic Templar gave in.

Only Two Big Organizations Equipped for Radio Surveys

THIS WEEK'S RADIO

(While the regular radio columnist of his paper is on holidays, the space will be taken over by James Crawford of Radio station CJVI. Mr Crawford is promotion manager of the local station.)

By JAMES CRAWFORD

Some folks phone CJVI to complain about the frequency with which they have been called on so-called surveys. The truth is if you've been called more than twice in any one month something is wrong.

In Canada, there are only two widely-recognized survey organizations. They phone in a regular pattern, making sure they cover the whole area, without repeating calls on individual homes too often. Ratings are taken in Victoria approximately every six weeks or two months. As you can see, when you get phoned as often as six times in two days, as one listener complained to us, then you are being annoyed by someone else.

Only the two big organizations are capable of sorting, analyzing and properly computing intelligent ratings of this type and so they are the only people who can effectively help you by supplying radio stations with the proper figures on radio listening. Some others may make random, repetitive calls and create annoyance. They are not likely to get a good cross-section of the area with a small staff nor be able to calculate the proper meaning of the figures thus obtained.

The bigger companies are supported by broadcasters and mean better programs for you.

"CREDIT TO HIS RACE"

Horace Heidt's Youth Opportunity Show produces some excellent talent and good listening. However, it seems that everytime a colored entertainer appears on the program, Heidt introduces him as "a boy whom I know will be a credit to his race." Such a deal! He just couldn't be an ordinary guy trying to win a contest and make a better living. At that Heidt probably figures he's a very broad-minded person. Let's hope he learns. Hear this otherwise good show, KIRO, 8.30 p.m. Sundays.

DIALECT'S THE THING

Another excellent show has returned for its Fall run in "Life With Luigi," starring J. Carrol Naish. Naish as Luigi Basco is an Italian immigrant in Chicago who gets into all kinds of difficulty in the new world with his small understanding of the new language and customs. The result is a top situation-comedy show. Dialects are superbly done by radio's top character actors. KIRO, Tuesdays at 8 p.m.

RELAXED COMIC

New talent sometimes gets its biggest chance on the radio doing Summer replacement stints for established stars. Often these Summer shows turn out to be as good as or better than the regulars. One of the top fills is the Steve Allen Show replacing My Friend Irma, KIRO, 6 p.m. Sundays. Steve Allen is positively the most-relaxed comic air-borne these days. His show is good and is seasoned with a hearty mix of satire that will tickle even the most calloused funny bone.

Program Changes

Red Ryder—This stalwart Westerner returns to the air Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7.30 p.m., on Mutual.

Hometowners' Show—This Victoria group of entertainers thanks local businessmen who have backed their entry in the P.N.E. World Championships in Western Music. 7.10 p.m., CJVI, Tuesday.

Too Many Cooks—The story of a man, also wife, who have in the vicinity of a dozen offspring enlivening things around the house. This exceptionally enjoyable laugh producer is a C.B.S. show on KIRO, 6 p.m., Mondays.

Band Backed in P.N.E Effort

The backing of City Council and local businessmen has made it possible for CJVI's Hometowners to attend the world championship Western Music Roundup at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver August 23-26.

They will compete in the square dance orchestra and vocal duets events for both world and British Columbia championships.

Western groups from all across Canada and the United States are entering the contest—first of its kind to be held at the P.N.E.

The Hometowners' trip to Vancouver has been made possible through the efforts of civic officials, local businessmen and the musicians' employers.

C. V. Chesnut, manager of CJVI, agreed to have the station pay the group's entry fees in the contest if they were free to make the trip.

EMPLOYERS APPROVE

Next, the Hometowners got leave from their employers.

Then Fred Usher, organizer of the group, approached local businessmen and members of City Council to enlist further backing.

He found strong supporters in Mayor Percy George, Alderman Harold Diggon, Alderman Charles Banfield, and a group of businessmen, George Randall, Bernie Rogers, Thomas Armstrong, Brock Whitney and Glen Murdoch.

The city agreed to pay the travel expenses of the group.

When the Hometowners get to Vancouver, they will play in the eliminations. These will take three days to complete.

From there, they hope to work toward the finals. Winners will be announced September 26.

The Hometowners will present a special show over CJVI at 7.10 p.m. Tuesday to thank the Victoria businessmen who have offered their backing to start the group on the first step up the ladder to world championship.

Cost of Fires Nearly Double

Cost of fighting forest fires in British Columbia this year has mounted to $96,173, nearly double the amount for last year, the B.C. Forest Service reported yesterday.

Cost has been higher, although the total number of fires, 1,083, is 250 lower than last year.

At the week-end there were 32 fires burning, all under control. During the week 61 fires broke out and a total of 78, some of which had been burning for some time, were extinguished.

CHILD'S SULKY SPELLS WORRIED HER UNTIL . . .

If your child has moody, cross, irritable spells for what seems to be no reason, watch for "hidden" constipation. Oftentimes, youngsters' bowels, altho moving regularly, do not move completely. As a result, harmful wastes remain in the intestines, making the child listless, peevish and not feeling like eating. What may be needed is Children's Own Tablets. They help give the thorough evacuation that quickly helps make most children feel like their usual happy selves. Pleasant tasting, small, easy to swallow. Uncle Wiggily Story - - - -

By Howard Garis

BUNTY HOPS AWAY

Uncle Wiggily and Bosun watched Buster shooting firecrackers. They watched the cute little kitten playing around in the leaves near where the rabbit scout was sitting beneath a tree.

Mrs. Longears hopped toward Buster, twiddling her ears and holding out her paws.

"Oh, Buster, however did you get lost?" he asked. "We were so worried about you! How did you get lost?"

"I'm not lost, Ma," said Buster. "Look out for that firecracker, Ma! I didn't mean to toss it so near you."

"Bang!" That was the firecracker exploding.

"Oh, my goodness!" That was Mrs. Longears screaming. But the firecracker didn't hurt her in the least. It was too far away.

"How excited you are, my poor, lost Buster!" she said.

"I'm not lost, Ma. I've been here all the while. I came here with Puss in Boots. He gave me some firecrackers. But I shot 'em all. So now I guess I'll go back to the houseboat."

"Where is Puss in Boots?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, he went back to the mainland, where he lives in a castle with the Marquis of Carabas," said Buster. "Puss comes over to your island, daddy, every time he wants to shoot firecrackers."

"Why doesn't he shoot them at the castle of the Marquis?" asked Bosun.

"Oh, the Marquis doesn't like firecrackers," Buster answered. He says they wake the baby and make him jump. So Puss in Boots has to come here to shoot the crackers. Well, they're all shot, so let's go."

Buster arose from where he was sitting. He made sure there were no sparks from the firecrackers smouldering in the leaves. When he saw a spark, Buster stamped it out.

"Safety first," he said. "Sparks can start a forest fire. We scouts must always be careful about fires in the woods."

"That's right," said Uncle Wiggily, who used to be a rabbit scout. "Be careful of fires in the woods."

"I'm sorry if I made you worry, Ma," said Buster kindly. "But I really wasn't lost."

"We thought you were, Buster. Anyhow, I'm glad that we have found you." Mrs. Longears was smiling now.

"Then let's go back to the boat. I'm hungry," said the rabbit scout. He started to hop away.

"Aren't you going to take that pussy kitten with you?" asked Bosun.

"Oh, no," Buster answered. "I came with Puss in Boots—to a boat. I guess Mr Puss forgot this kitten. But he'll come back for it."

"What kitten is it?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"Oh, that's one of the Three Little Kittens Who Lost Their Mittens, and then began to cry," said Buster. "Their mother lives in the castle of the Marquis of Carabas with Puss in Boots. He'll come back for the kitten this afternoon, I guess."

Soon they were all back at the houseboat where they had a late dinner. Bunty was much interested when Buster told her about the kitten.

That afternoon, when Buster and his chums were making their camp near the spring, Bunty whispered to her doll. "Priscilla, I am going to hop away."

"Where are you going to hop to, Bunty?" asked Priscilla.

"I'll tell you very soon," whispered Bunty. So she started to hop away.

And Tuesday, if the roller skate will lend one of its wheels to the automobile when it gets a flat tire as it is taking the bicycle to the circus, I'll tell you more.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued

"And when you heard about your real mother you felt unhappy, didn't you?"

"I did not feel so bad at first. But afterwards, when I'd seen Zachary Moon, and he'd gone away again, and I'd gone to bed, it all seemed real."

"Who is Zachary Moon?" asked the doctor.

Stella told him all about Zachary. The doctor had trained her to tell a story well, and she did not leave out anything from the rising of Hodge's hair beneath her hand to Zachary limping away into the night.

"But Zachary isn't either a vagabond or a scrounger," she went on.

"What is he then?" asked the doctor. He was feeling his way to some knowledge of this Zachary.

She surveyed him thoughtfully, then nodded. "He was like you."

"What, with a broken nose and an eyeglass and wrinkled countenance?"

"No, not like you to look at." She puzzled over it, then pounced upon the resemblance. "You could trust him. Hodge knew it, and stopped growling and wagged his tail almost at once, but I think I'd soon have known it, even if Hodge hadn't been there. You know how one feels with people like you and Zachary—safe."

The doctor took off his hat in acknowledgment of the prettiest compliment he had ever been paid by a lady, and he considered that he now knew enough about Zachary to enable him to keep an eye open for the unfortunate young gentleman for whose acquaintance he found himself increasingly eager. Abruptly he changed the conversation. "Now, my honey, no more grieving. Whatever your mother suffered, it's over and done with long ago. She's happy where she is and will be the happier for your happiness.

. . . There's the Abbey. Have you ever heard the story of its building?"

CHAPTER V

Stella looked up, shaking her curly head, lights in her eyes again at the prospect of a story.

"Once upon a time," began the doctor in the approved style, "a man and a girl lived in these parts and loved each other. He was Hugh de Bruiere, the descendant of a Norman knight who had settled here after the Conquest, and she was Lady Hester, of the House of Ilsham. They promised to be faithful to each other and then he went away to the Crusades. But De Bruiere was not the only man who loved her; there was another fellow, De Pomeroy. He had gone to the Crusades, too, with Hugh de Bruiere, and a year later he turned up at Ilsham, having been entrusted by De Bruiere with a message for Lady Hester. But he did not give the message. Instead, he told a long cock and bull story of De Bruiere's death at the hands of the Saracens, and the Lady Hester believed him. Then he made furious love to her, and a year later they were married."

"Well!" exclaimed Stella indignantly. "You'd have thought she'd have had the sense to know he was lying, wouldn't you?"

"Well, as I say, she married De Pomeroy, but on the wedding night a ship sailed into Torbay and a knight came ashore."

"Hugh de Bruiere!" said Stella breathlessly.

"The very same. Nor does anyone know exactly what happened after that, but De Bruiere was a hot-tempered man, and next day the body of De Pomeroy was found in the River Dart with a dagger sticking in it."

"And then Lady Hester married Hugh?" she asked eagerly. The doctor chuckled. "You'd have done that, wouldn't you? So would any girl of spirit. But Lady Hester seems to have been poor spirited as well as feather-pated. She fell into a decline, and presently died."

"And what did de Bruiere do?"

"Like most of these hot-tempered gentlemen, who act first and think afterwards, he wished he had not been so hasty. He wished it so often and so much that presently he began to suffer from that uncomfortable condition of mind known as remorse.

Vic Damone Pined for Elizabeth Taylor to Please Publicists

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19 (INS)—I don't believe Elizabeth Taylor made even a tiny dent in 22-year-old Vic Damone's heart.

Vic is an agreeable lad and his press agents thought it would help his popularity to have him "carry a torch" when Elizabeth married young Nicky Hilton.

Vic played along with the idea because it undoubtedly appealed to his Italian sense of the romantic.

But, as for actually being in love—ah, that's another story. Vic is so deeply engrossed in his career and in helping his mother and sisters in Brooklyn that I don't believe Liz meant any more to him than any other attractive girl.

Vic, darkly handsome and with a singing voice that leaves these teen-agers "fractured," as they say in their set, is in Hollywood to see if he can set their emotions going in the same way in the movies.

I couldn't help thinking when Vic came to see me that he's younger than his 22 years, although he told me he started to work as an usher at the Paramount Theatre when a boy.

"Start from the beginning," I said, "and tell me all about yourself."

COMO CORNERED

"Well," he said, "I think my change of luck happened when Perry Como was at the Paramount. There was an elevator that took him to his dressing room, and I arranged so I could run the elevator. I stopped it between floors and sang for him. What could he do? He had to listen. I had been taking lessons for three years, and I told him I wanted to know if it was worth my time and money. He encouraged me, so I continued.

"Then Arthur Godfrey's talent scout put me on his third program, and Milton Berle told me if I won he'd get me an audition at La Martinique Night Club. I won and Berle kept his word.

"The best thing that ever happened to me," he said, "was when Joe Pasternak heard me sing, and persuaded the Mocambo to book me. That led to M G M signing me for 'Welcome to Paris.'"

This is just the way Vic told me his story—as if he were reciting his biography. He recited all the pleasant things, skipping the hard knocks he must have had on the way up. To hear him tell it, a red carpet was laid down for him, without any effort on his part.

This, I know, can't be true, but Vic wants to spare even those who interview him from the unpleasant things in life.

ITALIAN DINNER

I had told Vic that I loved all Italian food, so he volunteered to cook me an Italian dinner. I thought it was just conversation until the day he showed up with all the makings for lasagne.

He started at 2 p.m. and for six straight hours labored in the kitchen over the hot stove on a hot afternoon.

I thought my cook was not very pleased at first, but he won her over so completely that she was calling him "honey," and "deary," and invited him to come any time he wanted to cook.

"Now there's a nice boy. I'll be glad to clean up after him any time, but don't bring any more movie stars in my kitchen," she said.

He says his mother was strict with him and one night when he came home late she took a belt to him. His sad eyes grew sadder when he told about this.

"But my mother's so gentle," he said, "that next day she was sorry that she had had to discipline me—but I deserved it."

Vic stands to be another Frank Sinatra. In fact, I suspect he already is—for he broke the audience and the box-office record at the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf-Astoria when he appeared with Guy Lombardo.

"Guy was pleased about it, too," he said, "because this was his 16th year at the Starlight Roof, and he was nice enough to get up and thank me."

A few days before he came to see me I had been told about how sweet he was to some young girl he met at the pool at the Beverly Hills Hotel. He ran over and hugged and kissed her.

"Who is she?" he was asked.

"Oh, she was an usher with me at the Paramount," he said, "and she was good to me."

Apparently everyone is good to Vic. Personally, I don't think he's spoiled in spite of all this attention from the girls. I think he's grateful.

I cannot see Vic ever forgetting anyone who has been good to him. He's overwhelmingly grateful to Joe Pasternak for whom he is now making "Welcome to Paris," his first movie.

The game contract was somewhat optimistic, but perhaps North-South knew what they were doing!

West opened the spade jack—certainly a reasonable enough choice. South felt sure that this lead could not be from king-jack, so he put up dummy's ace. East, wanting his partner to know that he had "hit him," signalled (more enthusiastically than wisely) with the spade nine.

Declarer drew trumps, ending up in dummy, and then led a spade. At this point East could have recovered from his previous extravagance by ducking, and South would have had to use his queen to shut out West's ten, but East compounded his errors: he put up the king! Now the fat was really in the fire, so far as the defence was concerned. There wasn't any defence left!

East led a diamond. Declarer won with the ace, led a club to the ace, and then led dummy's last spade toward his own hand. East should have had the nine-eight of spades at this point, against South's queen-seven, but what he actually had was eight-five. So south was in a perfect finessing position, and by winning these two spade tricks, he collected, in all, five trumps, three spades and the two minor-suit aces, to fulfill the contract.

Official Urges Use of Totems For Publicity

Publicizing of British Columbia as "Thunderbird Land" or "Totem Pole Land" has been suggested by E G Rowebottom, deputy minister of trade and industry, following his return yesterday from Vancouver, where he attended a meeting of the recently - organized Totem Land Society.

Expressing full endorsement of aims and objectives of the society, Mr Rowebottom said "they want all people to think of British Columbia when they think of a totem pole, or vice-versa."

Merchants and businessmen were urged to make a greater use of totem poles as a means of publicizing the province abroad. The deputy minister noted that about 60 per cent of British Columbia's tourist literature bore a totem pole insigne of some sort.

"If British Columbia doesn't make more use of totem pole symbols," Mr Rowebottom warned "Colorado or some other state is going to use the emblem as an advertising medium."

He suggested more totem poles be erected in towns and cities throughout the province

As far as the slogan is concerned Mr Rowebottom prefers "Thunderbird Land."

Heirloom Garnet Pendant Is Groom's Gift to Bride

At a double ring ceremony Saturday evening at First United Church, Reverend Moir A. J. Waters read the nuptial service uniting Dulcie Marie, only daughter of Mr and Mrs. Albert Hewison, 942 Hampshire Road, and Norman Keith Alexander, only son of Mrs. Louise Muriel Alexander, 896 Jasmine Ave., Saanich, and the late P. C. Alexander. Lighted white tapers and cream gladioli formed the setting for the ceremony, music for which was played by Mr. C. Palmer; Mr James Oakman sang "I'll Walk Beside You," while the couple signed the register.

The bride, radiant in French lace over rich cream taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice, short sleeves and flared skirt, was given in marriage by her father. Her full veil of embroidered silk net was arranged under a coronet of orange blossoms and she wore long taffeta mitts with lace insets. Her only jewelry was the groom's gift, an heirloom garnet pendant. The red roses in her arm bouquet duplicated the color of her pendant.

Mrs. J. R. Hewison, matron of honor for her sister-in-law, chose dusty-pink taffeta fashioned similar to the bride's gown and wore a pink flower-hat Her arm bouquet was composed of pink carnations and blue scabious

Carol Ann and Diane Marie Hewison, little nieces of the bride, were flower girls in long pale blue taffeta frocks with floral bandeaux, and carried small Colonial bouquets of pink carnations and blue cornflowers.

Mr. Trevor Jones was groomsman and ushering were Mr. John R. Hewison, brother of the bride, and Mr. Lawrence Smith.

The reception was held in Duke of Kent room at the Empress Hotel where Mrs. Hewison and Mrs. Alexander received with the young couple. The three-tiered cake topped with rosebuds centred the table which was decorated with pink roses and matching lighted candles. Mr Albert Lea proposed the toast Leaving for San Francisco for their honeymoon, the bride wore a smoke-blue gabardine suit with straw hat, topcoat and accessories in cola-brown, and a corsage of red roses

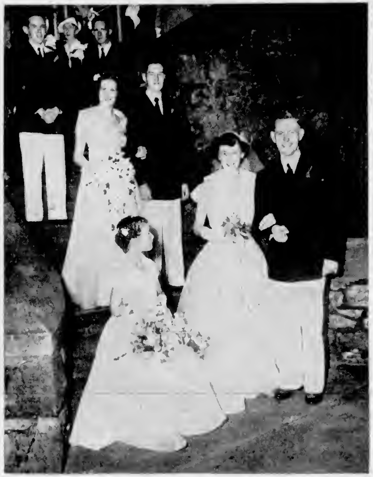
Jubilee Chapel Scene of Wedding



—Leonard Holmes

Pausing briefly outside the Chapel of Royal Jubilee Hospital are Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson Melville and their bridal party. Petite flower girl Frances Nicolls is pictured with the bride and groom while directly behind are maid of honor, Miss Gerry Anne Kennedy, and best man, Mr. Gordon Graham Melville. The bride is the former Mary Denise Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Kennedy, and the groom is the son of Major and Mrs. W. W. Melville.

Bride Mary Kennedy Wears Chantilly Lace, Taffeta

Bouffant white organdy posed over white taffeta and Chantilly lace created the bridal gown worn yesterday afternoon by Mary Denise Kennedy for her marriage to Mr. William Wilson Melville. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Kerwood Kennedy and the son of Major and Mrs. W. W. Melville repeated their marriage promises in the Royal Jubilee Hospital Chapel before Rev. Moir A. J. Waters. Dr. W. G. Wilson assisted Rev. Waters at the late afternoon ceremony.

The bride's elbow-length veil misted from a Belgian Chantilly lace cap matching her lace mitts. She carried an heirloom ivory Prayer Book mounted with mauve orchids and white heather.

Maid of honor Miss Gerry Anne Kennedy was a dainty pastel foil for the bride, in her gown of green organdy over matching taffeta worn with green net Belgian cap and mitts. She carried a crescent bouquet of gardenias.

Wearing a miniature replica of the bride's dress, Miss Frances Nicolls was flower girl. She carried a basket of Summer flowers.

Mr. Gordon Graham Melville, of Portland, was best man for his brother. Mr. William Irwin, of Victoria, and Mr. A. H. Brealey and Mr. R. L. Cochlin, of Vancouver, escorted the guests to their places.

Mr. Hal Colling, of Pasadena, Cal., proposed the bridal toast at the reception held in the lower lounge of the Empress Hotel.

Before making their home in Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. Melville left for a honeymoon by plane to Pacific Northwest mainland points.

Honeymoon In Oregon

At a quiet ceremony Saturday evening in the manse of Centennial United Church, Rev. W. R. Ashford officiated at the marriage of Evelyn Margaret, daughter of Mrs. E. E. Connor, 1963 Fort Street, and the late Mr. Connor, to John William Turkington, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Turkington, 1867 Cochrane Street.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. K. C. Battram, of New Westminster, the attractive bride was attired in a dove-grey gabardine suit, matching hat with grey and turquoise wings, grey and white accessories and a corsage of stephanotis centred with an orchid. Her only attendant was Miss Evelyn Roberts, wearing a turquoise paisley dress and grey hat trimmed with navy quills, and a corsage of gardenias and stephanotis.

The bridegroom had his brother, Mr. J. E. Turkington, as best man.

A reception for members of the immediate families and a few close friends was held at "Rappannock," 1595 Rockland Avenue. The lace-covered table was centred with the three-tiered cake topped with sweetheart roses. Mrs. John Goss played the piano at the reception.

The health of the bride was proposed by Mr. R. D. Ireland. After a honeymoon spent motoring through Oregon, the couple will return to their new home at 1683 Derby Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Dodge Wheeler To Make Home in Newcastle, Ont.

St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon, when Rev. Canon Frederick Pike solemnized nuptial vows exchanged between Beatrice Joyce, younger daughter of Mrs. L. C. Lytton, 1941 Ernest Avenue, and the late Mr. Lytton, and Alden Dodge Wheeler, son of Mrs. A. D. Wheeler of Bowmanville, Ontario, and the late Mr. Wheeler. Pink and white gladioli, carnations and sweet peas formed an attractive background for the service. Organ interludes were played by Mr. P. Hughes and during the signing of the register Mrs. S. D. Ashby sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. G. B. Lytton, the bride was lovely in a gown of pink nylon sheer over taffeta finished with stand-up collar, and featuring a collerette of French heirloom lace which continued in a panel down the front of the bodice, the same filmy lace forming four tiers on the full ankle-length skirt. Her bandeau of pink rosebuds and swainsona was lightly covered with matching lace. A strand of pearls was her only ornament and she wore long white gloves and carried a crescent bouquet of Pinocchio roses and swainsona.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. W. R. G. Wenman, matron of honor for her sister, gowned in powder blue figured voile with buff accessories, and Mrs. S. D. Ashby wearing navy blue taffeta with insets of lace, and white accessories. They wore similar headdresses of feathered pink carnations and bebe roses and carried Colonial bouquets of the same flowers.

Mr. Douglas Gelt was best man, and ushers were Mr. R. B. Travis, cousin of the bride, and Mr. J. B. S. Southey.

The reception was held at the home of the bride where guests were received by Mrs. Lytton wearing a floral silk crepe of mauve and grey on white ground, picture hat en suite and corsage of pink roses and mauve sweet peas; and Mrs. Wheeler gowned in wing-blue dull satin with velvet hat to match and gardenia corsage. Pink and white sweet peas and gladioli decorated the table which was centred with the three-tiered cake flanked by white candles. The toast was given by Cmdr. L. Harrison R.N. (Retired).

The couple will drive up the Island on their honeymoon and continue their trip to Newcastle, Ontario, where they will make their home for the present. For her going-away costume the bride chose a three-piece suit of pale green worsted, cherry red hat, white and red accessories and an orchid corsage.

Quiet Ceremony At Centennial Church Manse

A quiet ceremony in the manse of Centennial United Church united Mrs. P. F. Paine and Mr. Cecil Fletcher. The bride wore a floral nylon dress with white accessories and yellow roses en corsage.

The couple was attended by Miss Mercia Parker who wore a white print dress with blue accessories and Mr. George Swaby as best man.

A reception followed at the home of the bride, 44 Oswego Street.

Personality of the Week

By EILEEN LEAROYD

Windmills, tulips, canals and dikes make one think of Holland. The Timps' have windmills and enough tulips to make up for the lack of canals and dikes.

Anyone driving along Arbutus Road this Spring could hardly help but notice several acres of magnificently colored tulips which mark the home of accomplished pianist Grace Timp, and her Netherlands-born husband, Pierre.

The Timps intend to leave on an extended trip to Holland this Fall or early in the Spring to visit the family Mr Timp has not seen for many years.

Mrs. Timp longs to see the bulbfields and canals she has heard so much about. In Holland they will stay at Leiden, with Pierre's brother who has just returned from Java.

NOTED PIANIST

Attractive and vivacious Grace Timp, L.R.S.M., is among Victoria's top musicians. Her name is on nearly every musical program presented in the city. A professional accompanist, she feels her field is much more satisfying than solo or orchestral work.

Local musicians state "she is a perfect accompanist because she bends over backwards to co-operate with other artists, often subduing her own skill to make the other's performance stand out."

Mrs. Timp has played for hundreds of singers and musicians but her greatest thrill was when she was asked to accompany the renowned Negro baritone, Kenneth Spencer, who was here last year.

"He was completely charming and gracious," Mrs. Timp said, "and so appreciative. I was a little nervous as we had only two rehearsals, but the concert went off perfectly and I have never enjoyed anything so much."

Grace Timp has also played for Russian violinist Jascha Galprin, who was concert master of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra for a short time. Mr. Galprin is now working with a group he has formed in Seattle.

As far as musical tastes go, Mrs. Timp prefers the classics and her favorite composer is Mozart, although she and Mr Timp are both extremely fond of the lieder songs by Schuman and Schubert. Violinist Heifetz is her favorite artist.

MRS. GRACE TIMP

PLAYED AT EIGHT

Grace Alexandra Allen began her musical career at the age of eight when she played in school bands, for the choir and in Sunday School. She was born in the East but moved to Edmonton where she lived for 18 years, later coming to Victoria.

She met her husband (who is a well-known baritone) when he was singing in the Meistersingers male choir and she was the choir's accompanist.

The Timp home, "Veenoord" is a romantic looking cottage which they designed and is set in the midst of 2½ acres of grounds which they landscaped. At this time of year tall, slender daisies blow in the gardens and the evening silence is often interrupted by a large American bullfrog which has a home in the deep lily-pond by the house.

Inside the charming house flowers are again apparent for Mrs. Timp, who likes to sew, has made some unique drapes. She has appliqued six-foot felt tulips in a color scheme of green, white and pale yellow on her beige drapes. The effect is gay and attractive.

The Dutch motif is also apparent elsewhere in her living-room. There are four oil paintings of typical Holland scenes by Dutch artist Lissander and a coffee table which is inlaid with the classic blue and white Delft tiles.

The fireplace is also ornamented with beautiful Dutch tiles which are modern Delft and done in soft pastels of many hues.

Mrs. Timp, who is the kind of warm personality who is interested in all sorts of things and all sorts of people is, not unexpectedly, enthusiastic about cooking. Her favorite dessert is naturally a Dutch dish and it is called "Tompousses."

Lay out a square of French pastry on a cookie sheet and spread over it a thick custard filling. The more eggs in the custard the better. Now the second layer of pastry is put over the custard. (Should look like an ice-cream sandwich at this stage Mrs. Timp advises.) Next step is to ice the top layer of pastry and a colored icing looks particularly pretty. Cut in squares, chill before serving.

Victoria Lodge No. 83, Daughters of St. George, will hold a social in the K. of P. Hall on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

LEEDS, England (CP).—Unauthorized persons have been seen lurking at night in the extensive grounds of St. James Hospital, so boy friends escorting nurses home are to be issued with numbered identity discs. Said one 18-year-old nurse: "I think it's crazy."

Tea Parties Raise $1,126

VANCOUVER, Aug. 18 (CP)—A group of Vancouver women have parlayed a cup of tea into $1,126 for the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund.

Here's how. Several months ago Mrs. Jean Guthrie invited eight former Winnipeggers for tea—at 50 cents apiece. She then asked each of the guests to do the same thing at the same price.

The idea—operating like a chain letter scheme—mushroomed and became known as the "Manitoba Good Neighbors' Tea Party."

When the last cup of brew was finished the flood fund kitty was $1,126 richer.

HOUSE NO. 481

Here's a house carefully designed to meet today's needs. Although the house is small, the plan has incorporated almost all features looked for in a much larger home. First of all there is the big fireplace, the vestibule with its coat closet, and last but not least a separate dining-room. A wide arch is the only separation between this room and the living-room, adding a feeling of greater size to both.

The kitchen layout — a broken "U"—is good, and there is direct access through the hall to the front door. Both bedrooms are well located and have spacious closets. It has also a full-size basement.

His Majesty---The Baby!

Maybe baby won't be able to have a separate nursery, but if only a corner for his crib, make it pretty, private, practical and most important of all easy to keep clean.

Decorating and furnishing the nursery can and should be fun . . fun to be enjoyed while you can because all too soon junior develops his own tastes and will have none of the dainty touches which mothers adore. While you are reveling in nursery rhyme decorations, don't overlook that fact that most important of all is a well-organized background to reduce work and make baby more fun to look after. As with everything else in the home, think twice before you buy his furniture from the standpoint of both practicability and comfort.

Mother's dreams of ruffles and pink and blue ribbons will likely give way to more practical decorating when she settles down to the everyday job of caring for baby in his less happy moods. There is little of the fairy prince or princess about a new arrival, and it will soon be found that keeping his room scrupulously clean is a much greater ambition than that it be beautiful. Children quickly pass far beyond the age of ruffles before they even notice them . . and by that time you're sure to have decided that the routine of keeping the room clean and neat makes such luxuries impossible.

For the baby's first five yeras a sturdy bed with a drop side will prove most practical. A tall chest will accommodate his wardrobe until he's ready for school. And don't overlook a toy box to induce him to take care of his own things . . . an important start in building confidence and initiative in a child. Window seats are excellent for storing. Maple furniture, dark and durable, is often considered a more practical choice than white furniture.

Curtains can be as gay as you like, but be sure to select a fabric that will keep fresh looking with a minimum of care. Ruffling curtains will only create another laundry problem. Linoleum is admirable for the floor of baby's nursery as it is so easy to keep spotlessly clean. Don't go in for a lot of rugs with a deep pile . . they're only dust collectors. Braided rugs are much more suitable and can be washed with a minimum of effort.

Finally a word to crowded households where it is impossible to furnish a separate room for baby. This will call for a super-efficient job of organizing his own exclusive corner in your bedroom. Keep in mind that the primary need is to arrange baby's equipment in an efficient a way as limited space will allow, and provide him with necessary privacy by blocking out light and other distractions when he's sleeping.

Take My Word For It

READERS' CORNER

Kansas City: On a recent broadcast, Jack Benny accented the word "decadent" on the first syllable. Please comment.—A E

Answer: The pronunciation "DEK-uh-dent" is a Briticism which some American dictionaries list as second choice. It was seldom heard in the United States prior to F.D.R.'s speech in 1940 at The Herald-Tribune forum.

The customary American pronunciation, and the only choice of some American dictionaries, is de-KAY-dent. This has a much stronger suggestion of deterioration or decay than "DEK-uh-dent," which suggests a decade. I strongly recommend the second-syllable accent in both decadent and decadence.

Parsons: Please discuss the word "hallowed," as it occurs in The Lord's Prayer. Should it have two or three syllables?—Mrs. L B H.

Answer: In ordinary usage, the word has two syllables, as in speaking of hallowed ground, hallowed memories (HAL-oh). But in liturgical (ritualistic) usage, it is often heard with three syllables: HAL-oh-ed, as in "hallowed be Thy name."

Buffalo: Is the "schi" of "maraschino" pronounced "shee" or "skee"?—Mrs. A.

Answer: Marschino, properly speaking, is an Italian liqueur produced by distilling the fermented juice of the marasca cherry. Maraschino cherries are preserved in the liqueur or an imitation thereof. In the correct English pronunciation, the first "a" is flat as in "carrot." Accent the third syllable and pronounce it "skee," thus: MAR-uh-SKEE-noe.

Youngstown: Here is a news item which reports that in India a tiger and a wild buffalo invaded a tea garden. "The tiger killed seven persons before he was bored to death by the buffalo." Would not "gored" be the better word?—J W J.

Answer: Yes, gore means "to pierce with horns or tusks." In the United States the expression "bored to death" means being in a state of extreme boredom. It is hard to think of a tiger's dying of ennui from his dislike of a buffalo.

More Cars Scheduled Than Roads Can Handle

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT, Aug. 19 (AP). — Something besides war could stop the giant automobile industry's huge peacetime production—the building of more cars than the nation's highways can handle.

This may sound a bit far-fetched but it is a problem that already is giving more than a little concern to the car manufacturers. They make the blunt assertion that "our highways already are inadequate and are becoming increasingly so."

The nation's motor vehicle population has jumped tremendously since the days before the World War. Against some 32,000,000 vehicles registered at that time, there now are more than 44,000,000 in use.

WILL REACH 53,000,000

That was a jump the car makers and traffic authorities generally hadn't expected much before 1960. Now they say that within another ten years the car and truck population will reach 53,000,000.

Meanwhile, what has happened to highway construction? This is the way Albert Bradley, General Motors executive vice-president and chairman of the National Highway Users' Conference describes it:

"Our highways are inadequate because they were not built to absorb the traffic they are now called upon to handle; we have not yet caught up with the work that had to be deferred during the war . . . Finally, our highways are inadequate because we haven't been spending enough money on them since the war.

LESS SPENT IN 1949

"It is true that highway expenditures in 1949 totaled $3,400,000,000. However . . . expressed in terms of 1941 dollars, 1949 expenditures totaled $1,800,000,000." He adds that "less was spent for highways in 1949 on a comparable dollar basis than in the average prewar year."

From the Federal Government viewpoint comes this comment from Thomas MacDonald, United States commissioner of public roads:

"Our largest cities cannot expect satisfactory traffic conditions unless they construct full expressways. Only divided highways of four or more lanes, free of cross traffic and with controlled access, can handle the largest traffic volumes without congestion or delay."

And in Congress, early this year, a Senate-House economic committee reported it would cost $41,000,000,000 to put the nation's highways and streets in good shape. It said the construction program would provide a stimulus to all business and industry for years to come. But while it cited the need it made no recommendation on how to carry out the program.

SUGGESTED GRANTS

A couple of months ago the United States Budget Bureau told Congress it would be unwise to increase the Government's highway obligations until the Federal fiscal situation improves. The bureau suggested Federal grants to the states be held to the present level of $500,000,000 a year.

A Senate committee had been considering a bill authorizing Federal [illegible] expenditures of $960,000,000 for each of the next two fiscal years. Included in the amount would be grants to the states of $650,000,000.

But now comes the prospect of big expenditures for armament. So probably Federal expenditures—and those of some states, too—for highway construction will be cut instead of increased

Warmer Days Urgent Need For Prairies

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16 — Warmer weather continues to be the urgent need for Western Canada's field crops which generally are from ten days or two weeks away from the commencement of harvesting operations. Potential damage from leaf rust in some sections, grasshoppers in others, and early frost, which may or may not occur, must nevertheless be taken into account as this crop approaches harvesting, according to the weekly crop report of the department of agriculture, Canadian National Railways.

Some frost damage has already occurred in the Peace River district accompanied by snow but accurate estimate of damage done is not at the moment ascertainable.

In the Okanagan, weather was hot and dry with a heavy rain on the 14th and throughout the night. No change in crop conditions is evident in this section.

Prices Sag At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16 (CP).—Prices sagged in late coarse-grains trading during today's short session on Winnipeg Grain Exchange

Oats and barley were generally firm in early dealing, with local buying and some commercial demand. This was apparently prompted by reports of wide frost damage through the Prairie grain belt.

However, in late trading United States markets turned lower and commercial demand here became less aggressive. Prices declined as trading became more active toward the close.

Rye trade was mostly local early in the session. Prices fell in line with other grains under late selling. Class two wheat, for export to countries other than the United Kingdom, was unchanged at $3.06

Wilrich Well Logs Higher

EDMONTON, Aug. 16.—P R N.G.—Wilrich No. 1 well of Wilrich Petroleums Limited at depth of 2,850 feet is logging 40 to 50 feet higher than anticipated, some 150 feet higher than the Guardian well which gave showings of oil about five miles to the southeast, reports George Richardson, president. The well is being drilled in association with Pacific Petroleums Ltd and other companies on leases in Pouce Coupe area. First objective is to test for oil the favorable Triassic lime at depth of 4,800 feet.

Geological survey is presently underway on the 90,000-acre reservation in Lone Mountain area, British Columbia, in which ground Wilrich Petroleums holds a 25% interest. This adjoins on the north the reservation held by Phillips Petroleum Company, which has set casing in a well drilled to total depth of 9100 feet. Oil showings around depth of 1,200 feet and several gas seepages have been reported. The Lone Mountain area has been favorably reported on by Dr Hume and other prominent geologists as a potentially large gas area.

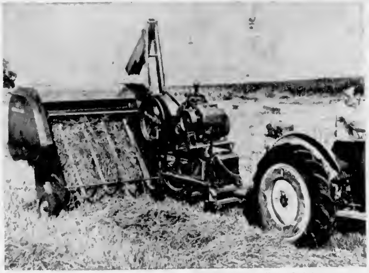
BOOSTS COPPER OUTPUT

OTTAWA, Aug. 16 (CP).—Canada boosted her copper output the first six months of this year, the Bureau of Statistics reported last week, but nickel production dropped more than 6,000 tons. A total of 133,296 tons of copper was turned out in the half-year, compared with 128,931 in the corresponding period of 1949. On the other hand, 91,837 tons of nickel were produced in the six-month period, compared with 98,036 last year.

BUTTER STOCKS DOWN

OTTAWA, Aug. 19 (CP).—Canada's butter stocks are nearly 1,000,000 pounds below what they were at this time a year ago. The Bureau of Statistics reports that at August 11 creamery butter stocks in nine cities totaled 46,477,000 pounds, four per cent below last year's corresponding total of 48,438,000 pounds.

Automatic Hay Baler Marks Tenth Anniversary



This sleek hay baler celebrates tenth anniversary of automatic baling. Just ten years ago New Holland Machine Company brought out world's first one-man twine baler. Marking anniversary, New Holland has announced Model 77, shown here in action, as its new baler for 1950. With 20 per cent fewer parts, this streamlined farm machine is easier to operate, and costs less to own, maintain and run, engineers report. All-steel construction is one of score of advanced features. Model 77 picks up hay from windrow, as it is doing here, slices and presses it, wraps bales with twine at the rate of up to seven per minute—all automatically.

Visiting Industrialist Optimistic

Canada Better Prepared for Switch To War Production Than Ever Before

One of Canada's top industrialists said here yesterday that this country is better prepared to switch her industries over to production of war matriel now than at any time in her history.

"Industry has become tremendously modernized here since the end of the war, machinery has been replaced and a higher degree of production has been attained," said Herbert H Rogge, president of the Canadian Westinghouse Co., Ltd.

HERBERT H. ROGGE

The friendly, New York-born industrialist sat back in his Empress Hotel suite and foresaw a continued high standard of living in this country

CAN KEEP HIGH STANDARD

"I firmly believe that Canada can maintain her present high standard of living and still produce her rightful share of help to the United Nations efforts," he said

"There is plenty of everything for everybody."

Mr. Rogge (pronounced Rog-ee) is out West for the first time to investigate the possibilities of expansion by his company in this end of the country.

He noticed the rapid industrial growth of the West, and added that his company intends to "grow with Western Canada."

Although with Westinghouse for the past 28 years in most parts of the world, Mr. Rogge has been in Canada in his present capacity for only four months.

LEARNED ABOUT CANADA

In those four months, he has learned more about Canada than most Canadians do in a lifetime.

He left Hamilton August 1

Since then, Mr. Rogge has seen Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Banff (short vacation stopover) and Vancouver. The return trip takes him through Edmonton and Saskatoon.

He likes what he has seen.

Coming in for highest praise is Canada's vast, untapped water resources for hydro-electric power.

The 48-year-old industrialist fairly bubbled over with delight when he read hydro-electric power figures.

"Only 21 per cent of Canada's hydro-electric potential has been developed so far," said Mr. Rogge.

SECOND TO NORWAY

"Canada is second only to Norway in the production of hydro-electric energy in the world

"Following behind Canada are Switzerland, Sweden and the United States.

"Eleven places down the line is Russia," he said.

"This fact is extremely inspirational in anyone that comes to Canada."

He noted that the energy expended by one man working eight hours is equal to one horsepower.

TELEVISION PLANS

On that basis, he said, Canada's present hydro-electric resources would equal the output of 100,000,000 workers.

He talked of the company's television plans for Canada and was surprised at the number of TV sets sold in this country even though there is no television broadcasting yet being originated here

His company is looking to "a large market" here when the C.B.C. starts TV broadcasting in Montreal and Toronto next year.

GLOBE TROTTER

Mr. Rogge's varied experience with Westinghouse has taken him to Europe, Latin America, the Caribbean, Philippines, Java, Soerabaya, Singapore, the Straits Settlements, Federated Malay States and Siam.

He was awarded the Westinghouse Order of Merit in 1942 for "capable management of the company's government business at a critical time and his ability to get difficult things done quickly. . ."

Brooklyn-born, and a Dodger fan "from the age of three," Mr Rogge plans to be in Victoria over the week-end before continuing his familiarization tour of the West

He is accompanied on the trip by Mrs Rogge

Trading was down during today's session of the Vancouver Stock Exchange but prices managed to show gains at the close

Trading centred mostly around oils where gains were most common. Anglo Canadian, National Pete, and Okalta all showed gains.

HONEY STOCKS HIGHER

OTTAWA, Aug. 19 (CP).—The Bureau of Statistics reports Canada's honey stocks totaled 7,259,191 pounds at July 1, compared with 7,490,906 on July 1, 1949. Stocks were higher than last year in Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

New York Market Extends Recovery As Tax Scare Lessens, Dividends Paid

By LESLIE GOULD

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (INS).—With war news taking a more favorable turn, plus record dividend payments and prospect of a less punitive tax bill, the stock market has extended its recovery from the initial war scare.

The market now is back to within 10 points of its bull market high. This is a recovery of about 70 per cent of its loss on the Korean war.

It's the old story. Where else to put money in an inflationary period. A person hardly would make a long term investment in bonds, nor would he want to stay in cash other than for a period while waiting for the market to stabilize.

The Korean war and the continued heavy spending by Washington and the State and local Governments on non-defence things ends any argument as to inflation. The only question is the degree of the inflation. How much more of the dollar's purchasing power will be lost.

The World War cut the dollar's buying power 40 per cent. Another world war would cut at least 50 per cent out of the present dollar. That would make it a 25 or 30-cent dollar in terms of 1940 or 1941 purchasing power.

ANSWER SOON

The big question is whether the Korean war will be contained to that little country, spread to other similar small-scale upheavals, or develop into a war with Russia. No one knows that answer—except possibly Stalin. The answer should be known by October 1—in six weeks.

The stock market by its recovery from the June-July break seems to take the more optimistic view. That it will not develop into the dreaded third world war and at worst will not be more than a couple of more Korean-type actions.

If a third world war should develop, that would be bearish on stocks. While it would mean in the final result inflation of the worst kind, it would mean also rigid controls on everything and very small profit for business. There would be no profit on war orders, and instead of companies like General Motors making better than $20 a share on peacetime car production, the earnings would be nearer $5. Renegotiation of war contracts would take care of the profits. In fact, an excess profits tax would not be needed.

The real profiteers in war are the black market operators, who deal in cash and therefore don't pay their full income taxes. Also, the farmers do all right in war.

DEVELOPS STRENGTH

The market this week after a slow start developed strength and added more than 4 points to the industrial price averages. The rail stocks made a new high for the last two years, and the industrials a new high since the Korean war. The steels, rails, oils and coppers were the feature. The aircraft shares lagged.

The following table shows the week's range and the net change from a week ago of the Dow Jones stock, bond and commodity futures indices:

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the tables the tide rises or falls continuously during intervening times between the high and low waters as given. 8.8 feet must be subtracted from the heights in this table to conform with the datum of soundings on the charts of the locality.

Golf Title Retained By Ontario Women

Defeat Quebec Players by Two Strokes In Closest Team Match Finish on Record

ST CHARLES GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, Winnipeg, Aug 19 (CP)—Ontario today retained its Interprovincial Team Match title at the Canadian Women's Golf championships over the tricky, par-76 St. Charles course here as the Ontario four turned in a combined 26-hole total of 692, two strokes better than the runner-up Quebec squad. It was the closest finish in the history of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union.

British Columbia finished third with 708 while a surprising Manitoba team took fourth place with 736 and Saskatchewan followed with 754. Alberta was last with 760.

Scores of the winning team were Ada MacKenzie, 168; Mrs. N. J. Carlson, 170; Anne Sharpe, 176 and Mrs. J H McCarter, 178.

Mrs. Graeme Pyke of Montreal took medalist honors with an 83-81 for 164. Her total also was good enough to give her the lead after 36 holes in the 54-hole medal play for the close championship. Final 18 holes will be played Monday.

The 18-hole scores Monday also will serve as the qualifying round for the Canadian Open. Top 32 players will meet in match play Tuesday, with the final scheduled for next Saturday.

In second place, behind Mrs. Pyke was another Montrealer, Daintry Chisholm, who came through with an 84 today for a total of 166. Miss MacKenzie, who led after 18 holes yesterday with a 78, slipped to a 90 today. Mrs. N. J. Carlson of Toronto was fourth with 170. Mrs. Margaret Todd of Victoria held fifth spot with 173, adding an 85 to her opening 88 today.

Three players were tied with 176's. Defending Champion Babs Davies of Vancouver, who held second position yesterday with an 81; Marjorie Todd of Victoria who added a 92 to her first round 84, and Anne Sharpe of Poolhill, Ont.

Catherine Beer of Montreal combined an 87 with yesterday's 91 to wind up with a 177. Mrs. R H Cleet of Vancouver had 93-90—183, and Mrs. Jean Wilson, Victoria, 101-89—190.

American stars get into action Monday in the qualifying round of the Canadian Open. Gracie DeMoss of Seattle will be back to defend her laurels won last year at Vancouver.

Minus the services of Reg Wenman, the Incogs were no match for Five C's yesterday afternoon and dropped a 147-67 decision to the Churchmen in a Victoria and District Cricket League contest played at University School.

With their opening batsmen Jack Payne and Charlie Pugh putting on 62 and 50 runs respectively, the C's ran up their score quickly and declared when five wickets were down.

Despite a fine innings of 34 by Godfrey Wenman, the Incogs could make little headway against the bowling of Payne and Jim Richards. The latter captured five wickets while giving up 28 runs and Payne took a like number as he yielded 27 runs.

Result of the Albions-South Cowichan game, played at Duncan, was not available last night.

One-Armed Men Compete on Links

Believed to be the only active one-armed golfers in the city, two Victorians have been staging a private battle for shotmaking supremacy.

Yesterday at Gorge Vale Golf Club, Bill Maddock, after losing four successive matches to Alec Day of Uplands Golf Club, gained a measure of revenge by defeating his opponent, 4 and 2. Maddock completed the 18 holes of his home course in 95 strokes.

The winner recently carded a 41 for the first nine holes at Gorge Vale.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Selection of a W I L all-star team this season should cause fewer difficulties than usual although there will be the usual differences of opinion. While the calibre of baseball has been up to standard, the league appears to have produced fewer standout players than in various seasons, particularly at some of the infield positions.

Complying with the annual request from league headquarters, this corner will attempt to name the best players at each position counting team value as being as important as statistics.

Starting behind the plate, the vote for the first team goes to Spokane's Joe Rossi, one of the few bright spots of a drab season for the Indians. Rossi may not be as good a prospect as Yakima's Nino Tornay but this season he has been far more valuable to his team.

Moving into infield nominations, one finds no particular standouts at first base or shortstop. Wimp Quinn, Tacoma and Wally Westlake, Yakima, have been the most dangerous first basemen at the plate, and Quinn gets the nod for his greater contribution to the success of his club. At shortstop, it is difficult to vote for Larry Neal, Wenatchee's colored infielder, who has too often appeared as if he was not giving his best. Bud Peterson, Tri-City, is potentially the best of the lot but he has had an in-and-out season. This vote goes to Ray Tran, the steady Vancouver veteran.

It's a two-way fight at second and third base. Buddy Hjelmaa, Wenatchee, and Ron Gifford, Tacoma, are both excellent defensive players and both are hitting well over the .300 mark. A toss-up here with Gifford, a good prospect, getting a dubious vote. At third base, Don Fracchia, Wenatchee appears to hold the edge over Yakima's Renn Cheso although the latter is probably the better hitter at the moment. Fracchia is one of the best defensive players to show in the W I L for some time and has a chance to go all the way.

Thompson, Marshall Get Votes

Naming the three top outfielders is comparatively easy. Dick Greco, the slugging Tacoman, is a must for right field. Nor will many argue with the selection of Gene Thompson for left field. Having his best season, Thompson has been one of the few Victoria hopes who came up to expectations. The big fellow has fielded and thrown exceptionally well and his work on the bases is better than most fans realize. At the plate, he has been a consistent .330 hitter with 22 home runs, 31 doubles and nine triples already to his credit. He will bat in and also score over 100 runs this season.

That leaves centre field open and this vote goes to Jim Warner, the Tri-City veteran who has recovered from his slump and is now pounding the ball hard with an average of .330. Warner is also one of the better defensive outfielders.

That leaves off Glen Stetter, almost certain to capture the hitting championship but whose defensive weaknesses are great enough so that he can't be ranked with the above trio. Walt Pocekay, Wenatchee, and Bill McCawley, Bill Andring and Jerry Zuvella, Yakima, are other good outfielders. Reg. Clarkson's bad arm and Edo Vanni's defection as a team player put them out of consideration.

Picking the two southpaw pitchers is easiest of all. Off their records, there can be no doubt that Bob Kerrigan, Tacoma's 21-game winner, and Jay Ragni, Wenatchee's converted outfielder, are the best. The right-handed section of the four-man mound staff is more difficult. John Marshall can be the best but his recent outs haven't been up to his usual standard. Just the same, he has won 14 games for a second-division club and must get a call. Sandy Robertson's record is marred by the fact he is strictly a home-park operator so the other vote from here goes to Lou McCollum, the steady old man of the Tri-City staff.

Naming of a manager was not requested but the vote would go to Jim Brillheart, the dour Tacoma field boss. Brillheart has driven what is not an outstanding club back into the lead after losing his big early margin.

Calgary Rolls Over Alouettes In Exhibition

CALGARY, Aug 19 (CP)—A powerful second-quarter offensive gave Calgary the edge to roll on to a 18-7 win over Montreal Alouettes in an exhibition football game in Calgary tonight.

The Stamps chalked up two converted touchdowns in the second period after Montreal matched a single point that Calgary scored in the opening quarter. Then, Montreal rammed over a touchdown and converted to cut the lead to 13-7. After a scoreless third period, Calgary picked up a touchdown and a convert in the closing fifteen minutes.

Royal Copeland, the former Toronto Argonauts star went over for the two Calgary majors in the second quarter. Little Normie Kwong had the other while Graham booted three converts. Virgil Wagner had the only Montreal touchdown.

Dominate Competition

Four "Y" Team Members Victors in Track Events

Despite the lack of a track on which to train, Coach Bruce Humber's Y M C A track and field team continued its domination of provincial and Northwest competition yesterday.

Four team members competed in the British Columbia junior championships at Vancouver's Brockton Point Oval and swept all the track events they entered. In addition to the track victories, Gordy Pynn equalled the 21-foot 4½-inch leap of Jack Bowers, Vancouver Arctic Club, in the broad jump but lost out in the count-back.

Pynn added a victory in the 120-yard low hurdles and a second in the 100-yard dash to share individual aggregate honors with teammate Bob Hutchison. Bowers and Jack Loretto of New Westminster Hutchison scored victories in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and finished third in the broad jump.

Disappointment marked Hutchison's victory in the 220. Competing in the event for the last time as a junior, he was clocked in 22.4, 1/10 second off the Canadian record and 1/10 second slower than his best time, which was made in senior competition at Seattle last week. He was timed in 10.4 for the century dash.

Don Pimlott won the 440 in 55.1 and Don Burgess captured the mile in 4:37.1. Pynn, Pimlott and Burgess finished one-two-three in the hurdles with Pynn's winning time listed as 15.4.

Outnumbered numerically, the "Y" finished only fifth in team aggregate with 26 points. New Westminster Olympic Club finished first with 80 points, followed by Vanpic, 54, and Vancouver Arctic, 45.

Two Canadian juvenile records were broken. Seattle's Mike McEmery pole vaulted 11 feet 2½ inches to top the old mark of 11 feet and Jack McLeod of Vancouver set a new discus standard of 102 feet 5½ inches.

F. Morse Tops Local Shots

F Morse of the Canadian Scottish Regiment emerged victorious at Heals Range yesterday afternoon over a field of marksmen hampered by a broiling sun and an unusually strong mirage. Morse scored a 46 at 200 yards and a 41 at the difficult 600-yard firing mound for a total of 87 points.

Scores follow: F Morse, C.S.R., 46-41—87; C E Sherwin, 75th Regiment, 40-44—84; Capt. W. B. McKee, [illegible], 45-41—86; Fred Billcock, 75th Regiment, 45-40—85; Lt.-Col. T. Playing like the club they were touted to be last Spring, Victoria Athletics yesterday extended their winning streak, longest of the season—to six games by taking two games from the Vancouver Capilanos, 6-1 and 4-3, for a sweep of the current series.

Jim Hedgecock and John Marshall continued to give the A's the excellent pitching which has been a feature of the win streak, made solely at the expense of the Caps. Hedgecock scored his 12th win, four of them against his ex-teammates, in the afternoon game while Marshall came up with No. 14 in the arclight finale.

MARVEL AT CHANGE

Crowds totalling 3,500 watched the rejuvenated A's move two and a half games ahead of the Caps in their private battle for leadership of the W I L's second division and marveled at the change in the club which never seemed able to get a win streak well started.

Since the Caps scored 12 runs in the third inning of the Tuesday game at Vancouver and went on to a 15-3 triumph, they haven't been able to do a thing with the Victoria mound staff. In rattling off the six in a row, Victoria pitchers have limited the Caps to eight runs with Ron Smith, Hedgecock, Propst, Wilkie, Hedgecock again, and Marshall doing the tossing.

ERRORS DECREASE

Probably the biggest reason for the sudden improvement in what was expected to be the league's best staff in pre-season reports, is the sudden stiffening of the club's infield play. Close followers will have noted a big drop in the number of errors and steady customers must have noted the fine defensive play of Shortstop Bill Dunn and Third-Baseman John Hack during the Vancouver series. Both came up with a number of good plays yesterday which gave both Hedgecock and Marshall a lift.

Hedgecock has seldom been better than he was yesterday. The slim southpaw had perfect control of a mocking knuckleball which baffled the Vancouver hitters. He had a two-hitter going into the ninth and wound up with a four-hit performance. He lost his shutout in the third when Len Tran doubled and came home on two long flies to left field.

Jim Moore, another former Capilano, was Hedgecock's biggest offensive help. Snapping a slump, the young second-baseman batted in three runs with a triple, double and single.

MORE THRILLING

Played before the larger crowd, the nightcap provided the most thrilling baseball with Marshall again giving his supporters the jitters before emerging on top when Lou Novikoff broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth with his tenth homer run.

Hooked up in a battle with Bob Snyder, Marshall had runners on the bags in every inning but two, but escaped damage except in the fifth, when a bad-bounce double, a cheap infield hit, two solid singles and an error gave the Caps a 3-0 lead.

Moore put the A's back in the game in the sixth when he tripled in two runs and scored the equalizer after Hack flew out. Novikoff's game-winning homer run was a tremendous clout of a low fast ball which the big fellow golfed out of the park.

EXTRA ENTERTAINMENT

Despite the closeness of the score, Marshall took time out to provide extra entertainment for his faithful followers. He got an unmerciful ribbing from the Vancouver bench but had the last laugh. He put himself in trouble by careless pitching a couple of times and then pitched out of it. At the plate, he combed Snyder for two well-tagged singles, the first of them his second hit of the season from the first-base side. He moved over after fouling a pitch off and then getting knocked down by Snyder's next delivery and rapped a fast ball right through the box.

The A's spend the next 12 days on the road. They play an exhibition game at Mt Vernon tonight and then play series at Tacoma, Yakima and Vancouver before returning home to finish out the season with 12 straight games at Athletic Park.

Out of contention, the A's will have plenty to say about the pennant winner. The two final home series, each four games, are against the Tigers and the Bears. They meet the top two clubs in 16 of the 22 games left on their schedule.

Golf Title Won By Polly Riley

CHICAGO, Aug 19 (AP)—After eight years of trying, persistent Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., today won her first Women's Western Amateur title, 4 and 3 over a newcomer, Mae Murray of Rutland, Vt., who lost her earlier tourney skill.

Polly, 22, the meet medalist, jumped into a three-hole lead after the first five greens of the scheduled 36-hole match at sun-splattered Exmoor Country Club, and Mae never could get closer than two holes behind.

Cougar Prospects Look Good as Canadiens Promise Best Possible Help—Mazur, Dorohoy, Bougie May Return; Coach May Come From Montreal List

Victoria weather hardly hints at the imminence of the 1950-51 hockey season but a calendar check discloses that it is only five weeks until the Victoria Cougars open their training sessions at the Memorial Arena and less than seven weeks until they face New Westminster Royals here in the Pacific Coast Hockey League opener.

Despite the lack of news from the Cougar camp, the club is making progress and will shape up quickly as soon as the new coach has been selected and the Montreal Canadiens start to cut down at their training camp. Although few players can be definitely listed on the roster, neither Owner Lester Patrick or General-Manager Fred Hutchinson is showing any undue worry. It would appear that they have assurances that make them look forward to the fast-approaching season with some optimism.

CHOICE INDEFINITE

Nothing definite has been announced about the coaching choice but it is almost certain that the Canadiens will have a big hand in naming the man who will take over. The Cougar management would probably prefer a bench coach but will not hesitate to go along with the Montreal organization if it wishes to name a playing coach.

Alex Shibicky, former coach of the Royals, might have been the new Victoria coach but he has a contract at Flin Flon which runs through the current season and was unapproachable. Reports that Phil Watson would be the man can almost certainly be discounted. Bobby Kirk, who coached and played for the R C A F club here during the war, and Murray Armstrong, have been mentioned as possible choices. Both are coaching junior farm clubs of the Canadians, Kirk at Winnipeg and Armstrong at Regina, and it could be either if the Cougars get a bench coach.

GALLIC TOUCH

More probable, however, is that the new coach will be a player recommended by the Canadiens and likely one who speaks French, a decided advantage if the Cougars have the Gallic tinge they expect. Defencemen Doug Harvey and Roger Leger and Centre Bill Reay have been mentioned as future coaching material in Montreal reports and it could be one of those three although it would seem that Reay is still too valuable a N H L performer for the Canadiens to give up.

In any event, the announcement of the new coach will not likely be made until Lester Patrick has consulted with Montreal officials in the East. Patrick will attend the N.H.L. meeting in New York on September 6 and go from there to attend the opening of the Canadiens' camp on September 18.

WORTHWHILE HELP

That the Canadiens intend to give the Cougars some worthwhile help is evident in a letter from Frank Selke, managing director, who wrote: "We are going to considerable expense to bring our best to the training camp and will go out of our way to give you the best possible for Victoria. We want to make your club as strong as it is humanly possible for us to do and want you to come to training camp to select your players."

From additional correspondence between the two clubs, it is safe to say that the Cougars won't have any shortage of players. Ten outstanding amateurs have been listed by the Canadiens as potential Victoria players. Mentioned prominently as possible Cougars this season are Bob Pillion, Leger and Howie Riopelle, who were with Canadiens last season, Joe Lepine, Jacques Locas and Jacques Deslauriers from Cincinnati, and Eddie Dorohoy, Ed Mazur and Georges Bougie, with the Cougars last season.

WILL BE GIVEN CHANCE

Selke had this to say about Dorohoy and Mazur, two fan favorites: "Both these boys have been invited to training camp and will be given a chance to move up. Mazur has great possibilities for advancement. Training camp alone will tell if he is ready for higher company and if he does not play with Canadiens or Cincinnati, he will definitely play with Victoria."

Whatever the Canadiens give the Cougars will be added to five of last season's players invited to training camp and what players, if any, that the Cougars may purchase. Defencemen Fiori Goegan and Bernie Strongman and Forwards Roy McKay, Jack McIntyre and Joe Evans are the invited quintette.

JERRY FODEY SOLD

Of the other players, Playing-Coach Eddie Wares has accepted a position at Nelson; Murray Richardson, Russ Kopak and Len Mutcheson were released. Eddie Marineau, on loan last season, is on the Buffalo roster; Larry Thibeault, owned by the Cougars, does not figure in plans and will be sold or traded. Canadiens sold George Robertson to Springfield and Goalie Jerry Fodey has been sold back to Tacoma. Fodey's sale means that the Cougars will have a new netminder. They can make their choice of three men from Canadiens and one offered by Boston Bruins.

Elsewhere around the P C H L, one hears that Harvey Fraser, veteran forward will line up with the Royals and that Frank Dotten will go all out to line up a winner at Seattle. Danny Sprout has been prominently mentioned as Seattle coach but Dotten may handle the club himself. Harry Dick, Buffalo defenceman, is rumored Seattle bound and the Ironmen may get some players from Cleveland if that club purchases Stan Maxwell.

Bill Carse seems assured of another season as Vancouver coach and the Canucks are reported to be getting some former Portland players. The Eagles are working with Cleveland and expect an influx of younger players. All in all, it appears as if the P C H L will present an improved brand of hockey this Winter.

LOOPING THE LOOPS

By J. G. TAYLOR SPINK
of THE SPORTING NEWS

"I Can Pitch in This League," Said Church

ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Early last Spring, when the Phillies were barnstorming their way home from the Florida training camp, a tall, broad-shouldered youngster with closely-cropped hair, brown eyes and good-looking features sat opposite a sports writer in a Dallas, Tex., restaurant.

He picked sparingly at his food. It was evident he had something on his mind that was worrying him.

"I wish I knew what was going to happen to me," he said to the sports writer. "I don't want to go back to Toronto. But I don't want to sit on the bench here, either."

"Oh, you'll be with the club," said the writer.

Earlier that day the scribe had heard Eddie Sawyer, manager of the Whiz Kids, praise the youngster's ability and poise. There had been only one note of uncertainty in the hopes that Sawyer had expressed: "If I can't use him here, he'd be better off in Toronto." That young pitcher seemed to be psychic as he remarked: "I know I can help Eddie, if he gives me the chance. I can pitch in this league. I don't need any more experience."

Right now that uncertain lad of early Spring is one of the mainstays of the Whiz Kids' young staff. Sawyer expects him to take up the slack when Curt Simmons goes on active duty with the National Guard.

You doubtless have guessed who he is by now—he is Emory (Bubba) Church from Birmingham, Ala.

Church is one of the outstanding examples of Sawyer's ability to inspire confidence and poise in young men, giving them confidence in themselves by careful handling, working them just enough and not too much. Sawyer gives them a taste of fire, then pulls it away, sending them back again in order that they won't get burned. Finally, they are ready to fight fire and he turns them loose.

Sawyer carefully followed this course with Church and now the youngster is ready.

* * *

Not Afraid to Groove the First One

Control has been one of the big factors in Church's success. He is not afraid to throw the first one down the middle and dare the batter to hit it. Many of 'em swing and send long drives toward the fences, but there is enough hop on the last one, or break on the curve, to keep the hitters from getting a solid smash. As a result, he pitches fewer balls than many of the other hurlers and conserves his strength, keeping something in reserve.

It wasn't always that way. Church wasn't born with that pitching lore, blessed with that self-control and confidence. He learned the hard way, as a lad in grammar school, on the sandlots in Birmingham, on the Burma Road in India and at Salina and Toronto in the minors.

Even when he first joined the Phillies in the Spring of 1947 at Clearwater, the Phillies' front office didn't know whether they wanted Church to be a pitcher or an outfielder. Bubba didn't know either. All he knew was that he wanted to play ball and he didn't care what position he played. Ben Chapman, then manager of the Phillies who had signed Church, wanted him to become an outfielder, as Chapman had been.

Herb Pennock, late general manager of the Phillies and former famous hurler of the A's, Red Sox and Yankees, saw pitching possibilities in the sturdy lad. Chapman and Pennock argued about Bubba's qualifications. Then they compromised, decided to let the lad decide his own fate by playing both. They sent him to Salina in the Western Association to pitch and play in the outfield.

Appearing in 78 games, Bubba won 21 and lost nine as a hurler, and batted .280 as an outfielder. He registered a 2.93 earned-run average and walked only 78 while whiffing 219. Bubba's hit total of 47 included 12 doubles, two triples and three homers, while he drove in 39 runs. Weighing the youngster's hill record against his outfielding log, Pennock decided he should be a pitcher.

So, Bubba went to Toronto the next year as a pitcher. The jump from Class C to Triple A was a difficult test.

Bubba made only one mistake. He almost ran himself out of the league. He was so anxious to keep himself in perfect condition that he ran, ran and ran. As a result, he had run himself out of stamina when he was called on to pitch and weakened in the late innings. He won five and lost nine in 1948.

That Winter he took stock of himself, realized that he had worked too hard and took things a bit easier. As a result, he topped International League pitchers with an earned-run mark of 2.35 and notched 15 victories.

When Church reported at Clearwater last Spring, Sawyer, the professor who had handled hundreds of boys at Ithaca College as a professor of biology, zoology and physiology, gave him the same careful treatment he would give a tender freshman. Leading him carefully through the textbooks of practical pitching, Sawyer steadily built up his confidence and at the same time allowed him to absorb the A, B, C's.

Went From High School Into War

Church is a product of Birmingham, Ala. Bubba attended West End High, where he received his first real baseball training as a pitcher. But the war came along and interrupted his high school career. Telling a white lie about his age, he enlisted in 1943 at the age of 17.

Church was discharged from the army in 1945 and returned to high school. He played high school ball and also with the Stockham Pipe Co., a semi-pro outfit. He had offers from the Tigers, Cardinals, White Sox and Pirates. The Tigers laid $3,500 on the line. The manager of the Stockham team was Charley Chappell, an old schoolmate of Ben Chapman. Chappell took Church to Ben.

"Go to college," advised Chapman.

Church accepted a baseball scholarship at Mississippi State. He enrolled in September. In two months he decided that he wanted to play baseball instead of going to college. He went back to Chapman and reported to the Phillies at Clearwater the following Spring.

Victors Mulloy, Talbert To Try for Fifth Crown

LONGWOOD CRICKET CLUB, Brookline, Mass., Aug. 19 (INS). — Billy Talbert and Gardnar Mulloy, the top-seeded domestic team, today entered the finals in their quest of a fifth National Doubles tennis championship.

Their opposition, however, remained in doubt as rain washed out the bottom bracket semi-final after one set which was won by Australia's top-seeded foreign Jack Bromwich and Frank Sedgman, 6-4, over Ken McGregor, Australia, and Tony Trabert. The match will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Mulloy and Talbert had little trouble in disposing of the unseeded sensations of the tournament up to the semi-finals, Harry Hopman, 44, the non-playing captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, and Seymour Greenberg, 30-year-old Chicago insurance man. The scores were 7-5, 6-4, 6-2.

Talbert and Mulloy won the doubles championship in 1942, 1945, 1946 and 1948.

The women's finals were set up according to schedule. The eight-time champions, Louise Brough and Mrs. Margaret Osborne Du Pont, will meet their conquerors of last week in the Essex County championships, second-seeded Shirley Fry and Doris Hart.

Armstrong Won Third Boxing Title, To Hold All at Once, 12 Years Ago

Twelve years ago Henry Armstrong became the first man in ring history to hold three titles at the same time, the featherweight, welterweight and lightweight crowns. Today, International News Service flashes back to Armstrong's victory over lightweight champion Lou Ambers in one of the most grueling title bouts of all time.

By HOWARD SIGMAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (INS).—The plucky little fighter sat on his stool and bit a broken piece from his lip. He held the wound in his mouth to conceal the flow of blood.

It was in this way that Henry Armstrong averted defeat and became the first and only triple-champion in ring history just 12 years ago when he won a close 15-round decision over Lou Ambers for the lightweight title.

One would never suspect that the man who held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight crowns simultaneously, soon will be ordained a minister in the Baptist Church.

In the Los Angeles area, where Hank preaches, he is known as Rev. Armstrong. This the same man who met Ambers that stifling August night in one of the bloodiest and most grueling lightweight title bouts on record.

"That Ambers fight was the toughest of my career," Henry recalled today. "Ambers was a terrific fighter who had me scared."

VERGE OF KNOCKOUT

The shuffling, brawling Armstrong had Ambers on the verge of a knockout in the fifth and sixth rounds.

More than 20,000 fans went into a frenzy as Henry peppered the champion in close with windmill punches. They came with the velocity of a hurricane.

Ambers managed to ward off most of the blows with his elbows and got in many uppercut licks of his own that had Armstrong's face spouting blood.

Before the twelfth round the referee had ideas of stopping the fight because Henry's bottom lip was almost cut in half.

Armstrong claims the referee told him:

"You're ahead on points, but I have to give the fight to Ambers because you can't stop the blood."

Henry said he would stop the blood himself. Manager Eddie Meade and Armstrong's seconds vainly applied medicines. But the flow continued. It was then that Henry bit off the piece of lip.

"At the end of the twelfth round I sat down and felt like I was in a black pool. I don't actually remember what happened afterwards but they told me I won all right."

He won. But the decision establishing him as the new champion was greeted with an ear-splitting volley of boos.

Perhaps it was out of sentiment for Ambers, who proved a game battler to the end in defence of his crown. And there was the question of Armstrong being guilty of fouls during the contest.

Henry's head-on-the-shoulders meshing style always was conducive to producing a number of blows that landed right around his opponent's belt line. As it was, Armstrong was penalised three rounds for low blows.

Ambers did come back to regain his title from Armstrong a year later and subsequently Hurricane Henry lost all three of his titles.

The great little warrior, now 38 years old, has done very well on the West Coast in real estate and other investments.

Nine months ago Henry entered the ministry, because as he puts it "when the powers of God strike you, it might turn out stranger than fiction."

After he is ordained, Armstrong has another ambition. The winner of three crowns wants to have a church of his own called the Church of Holy Trinity.

Golf— Here's How

By SAM SNEAD
Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

It is hard to tell any golfer how he should feel when he is swinging correctly. But maybe you can get the idea when I tell you that every time I know I really am smacking the ball I feel as though my hands were just as far away from my shoulder as I can get them. That means you feel as though you are almost trying to shove the clubhead away from you when you are at the top of your backswing. The idea isn't to feel as though the hands were being held as far as possible from the body—but from the shoulders. There is a comfortable feeling that the hands, in the address, and again during the bottom third of the swing, are in fairly close to the body.

Brilliant pitching by Art Houtteman and Early Wynn and timely hitting by Joe DiMaggio, Luke Easter and Buddy Rosar highlighted the American League pennant race today.

Houtteman pitched the league-leading Detroit Tigers to a 6-0 one-hit victory over the St. Louis Browns. Jim Delsing singled in the second inning to spoil Houtteman's no-hit bid.

Wynn pitched the second place Cleveland Indians to a 1-0 three-hit triumph over the Chicago White Sox, winning out on Easter's 22nd homer of the season in the eighth inning. The victory kept the Indians three games behind the Tigers.

DiMaggio clubbed out a double and two singles and batted in two runs to lead the third-place Yanks to a 6-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Rosar singled with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to climax a two-run rally that gave the fourth place Boston Red Sox a 5-4 victory over the Washington Senators.

RAIN CANCELS GAMES

Showers interrupted the National League pennant battle. Rain wiped out scheduled games between the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies and the New York Giants and between the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers and the third place Boston Braves.

Red Schoendienst tripled with two out in the ninth to drive in pitcher Al Brazle and give St. Louis Cardinals their second straight 3-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds before 11,248 fans.

Ralph Kiner and Clyde McCullough paced Pittsburgh Pirates to a 13-8 triumph over Chicago Cubs. Kiner slammed his 35th and 36th homers and McCullough batted in six runs with a triple, a double and a run-producing fly.

Houtteman faced only 27 batters in his masterpiece. Two other Browns got on via walks but both were erased by double plays. Delsing was caught stealing.

South Burnaby Trips Toppers 9-2 in Opener

Apparently afflicted with play-off jitters, Toppers failed to display their usual brand of softball at Lower Central last night and dropped the opening game of the Provincial junior girls championship series to South Burnaby, 9-2.

Second game of the best-of-three series is slated for the same diamond at 3 p.m. today, with the third contest, if necessary, to follow at 4 p.m.

Obviously nervous, the Toppers committed six errors behind the hurling of Marguerite Shaw to ease the task of the Mainland champions.

Louise Caronni limited Toppers to six hits and struck out 11 batters. Her mates hammered out 11 safeties and clinched the win with a five-run outburst in the fourth.

Ramadhin Bowls Indies to Victory

CHELTENHAM, England, Aug. 19 (Reuters).—Remarkable bowling by Sonny Ramadhin, the West Indies spin specialist, caused a complete breakdown of the Gloucestershire batting today.

Put in to bat on a rain-damaged pitch, Gloucestershire were all out in 110 minutes for 68 runs, lowest total made against West Indies during the tour.

Going on to bowl when the Gloucestershire score was 31 for two, Ramadhin took the last eight wickets in 40 deliveries for 15 runs.

Boa Fails to Maintain Pace

English Marksman Wins Governor's Gold Medal

CONNAUGHT RIFLE RANGES, South March, Ontario, Aug. 19 (CP)—Pte. Alan H. Moorshead of Middlesex, England, today won the Governor-General's Gold Medal at the 82nd annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association shoot.

Combating a cold rain and a strong westerly wind that swept over the ranges, the 52-year-old marksman posted an aggregate score of 169 from 300, 600 and 900 yards to lead the field of 150 crack marksmen that qualified for the final stage of the match. It was the first time he has competed in a D.C.R.A. meet.

He scored 49 of a possible 50 from 300 yards, 48 of a posible 50 from 600 yards and 72 of a possible 75 from the 900-yard firing point.

Private Moorshead, who has twice shot for England and has been in the King's final four times during Empire matches at Bisley, was chaired and carried by other members of the British rifle team off the firing ranges to be presented with the Gold Medal by the Governor-General, Viscount Alexander.

Another member of the British team, Maj. R. St. G. Maxwell, held a one-point lead over Moorshead after the completion of the first two stages of the test.

Lieut. Gilmour Boa of Toronto, who posted a record-breaking 169 in capturing the King's Medal, and Lieut.-Col. J. T. Steel of Guelph, were among the early leaders but could not maintain the pace over the longer ranges.

Springs and Cohoes Running

Wide Variety of Sites Giving Up Good Catches

Vancouver Island's salt-water anglers now have a wide variety of locations in which to pursue their sport with good chances of success. Runs of spring and coho salmon have arrived at several areas along the Island's coast and fine catches are being reported from the Victoria waterfront up to Campbell River and Port Alberni.

Local sportsmen are currently taking their toll of the coho ranks from the breakwater to Ten Mile Point. Best fishing has been during the evening, although fish are being taken at all hours. Favored by the majority of anglers is the flasher-and-minnow combination while others are using plugs or spoons with success.

ON DEEP LINES

At Saanich Inlet, springs, cohoes and grilse continue to provide good sport from Goldstream to Deep Cove. The springs are being taken on fairly deep lines with plugs the most popular lures.

Cohoes are biting well in the evenings on surface tackle. Spoons or flasher and small herring are both proving successful. Grilse, abundant throughout the Inlet seem to be in their greatest numbers off Deep Cove and Mill Bay. Spinner-and-worm or small spoons are favored for the little gamesters.

INFLUX OF SALMON

A heavy influx of salmon in the waters between Coal Island and Sidney Spit has been reported by Randall's Boat Landing of Sidney. Fishing there was very good yesterday and Friday with almost all boats returning with fish.

Cowichan Bay's fighting spring salmon have been rolling on the surface but have shown little inclination to strike artificial lures during the past week. A few fish have been taken, including a fresh-run 30-pounder taken by Victoria's Bob Drinnan on a Tillicum blue perch-scale plug yesterday morning, but the main run of springs has apparently not yet arrived. A change of moon and more favorable tides within the next few days are expected to result in a marked upswing in angling fortunes at the Bay.

LIGHT TACKLE GOOD

Light-tackle fishing for cohoes has been excellent between Parksville and Qualicum Beach for the past ten days. J. L. Stevens of French Creek reports that limit catches have been brought in by many fishermen in the mornings and evenings.

Probably the hottest spot for tyee salmon has been the area around Comox. Information received by the Publicity Bureau states that last Wednesday was the best of many good days in those waters. Every boat out that morning came in with fish, some of which are going up to 50 pounds in weight. A run of big cohoes in the same locality is also providing good sport.

FRESH RUN OF TYEE

A fresh run of big tyee salmon showed up for the opening of the Port Alberni Tyee Club season two weeks ago and fishing has continued generally good since. J. Beckerley, Sr., brought in a 50½-pound tyee to top the club's first weekly fishing contest, while Harry Bowman was second with a 42½-pound fish.

Arsenal Defeats Burnley As Soccer Season Opens

LONDON, Aug. 19 (Reuters).—Soccer came back into Britain's sport spotlight today as more than 1,000,000 fans crowded their way into 46 opening-day English League games.

Last year's cup-winners, Arsenal, started the season by winning 1-0 at Burnley but the 1949-50 league champions, Portsmouth, could only draw 1-1 against Middlesbrough.

Last year's league runners-up, Wolverhampton Wanderers, whipped Liverpool, cup runners-up, 2-0.

Both teams which won promotion to the First Division last year lost today. Tottenham Hotspur fell 4-1 before Blackpool while Chelsea humbled Sheffield Wednesday 4-0.

Manchester United, bolstered at right half by Alex McIlvenny, Scottish-born captain and star of the United States team which beat England 1-0 in last Summer's world cup tournament at Rio de Janeiro, beat Fulham 1-0.

ROVERS BEATEN

In the Second Division, neither of last season's promotion-winners made impressive debuts. Doncaster Rovers were beaten 3-1 by Leeds United while Coventry City stopped Notts County 2-0.

Nor were any of the four newcomers to the Third Division impressive failing to score a goal between them.

Colchester United and Gillingham drew 0-0 as did Scunthorpe and Shrewsbury.

Competition continued for the Scottish League cup, regular preliminary to league play north of the border. Today's games were highlighted by a 4-0 thumping that Glasgow Rangers, perennial favorites to sweep all Scottish honors, handed Clyde.

New Holland-American Flagship to Reach B.C. Next Month

The Holland-America Lines glistening new Pacific Coast flagship Diemerdyk will be introduced to the Pacific Northwest when she reaches the coast of British Columbia late next month. George Paulin Ltd are local agents.

The 11,195-gross-ton vessel, first to be completed in a Netherlands shipyard for the Holland-America Line since the end of the World War, is actually the third new ship to join the fleet in the postwar period. The Soestdyk, commissioned in 1946, and the Schiedyk in 1946, both for the Java-New York Line, were constructed at Belfast, Northern Ireland, when Holland's yards were overtaxed with reconversion and repair jobs

The Diemerdyk was especially designed for service to this part of the world. Her arrival in waters of the Pacific Northwest will coincide with the 30th anniversary of the establishment of the pioneer refrigerator service by the Holland-America Line in September of 1920. There will be added satisfaction to the Western organization because the service will revert to its original four-ship basis for the first time in a decade. The ship's running mates will be the Dalerdyk, of 10,820 gross tons, the Delftdyk, of 10,220 gross tons, and the Duivendyk, of 8,238 gross tons.

PACIFIC COAST FLAGSHIP DIEMERDYK

As a de luxe passenger-freighter, the new Diemerdyk is one of the finest of her type.

FINE WORKMANSHIP

The fine workmanship in her exquisite public apartments and the 31 spacious staterooms—all outside and with private bathroom facilities, and capable of accommodating 61 passengers—shows that Netherlands shipbuilders and owners have not lost their skill in producing the best of modern ship construction and design.

The ship has an overall length of 498½ feet, and a beam of 69 feet. Her turbine engines will drive her at a service speed of more than 16 knots.

Six cargo holds have a capacity of 855,000 cubic feet. Sixteen compartments in 'tweendecks 2, 3 and 4 are specially fitted for the handling of a total of 139,000 cubic feet of cooled and frozen cargo at temperatures from 15 degrees Fahrenheit to five below zero.

Crew's quarters are as modern and up-to-date as the rest of the ship. Rooms are furnished with armchairs and are for single or double occupancy only. The vessel's lifesaving equipment, including lifeboats, rafts and ladders, is of aluminum.

TRAINING SHIP

H.M.C.S. Sault Ste Marie, headquarters and training ship of Victoria's naval reserve division H.M.C.S. Malahat, left Esquimalt harbor for Everett, Wash., yesterday afternoon on another of a series of Summertime week-end training trips. In addition to officers and men of Malahat, the ship carried several Sea Cadets.

Depth charge and gunnery practice were conducted en route to the Washington State port, and additional training exercises will be carried out while the ship is making her return to her local base She is scheduled to reach Esquimalt this evening The ship made a similar week-end trip to Everett about the same time last year.

CLOSE FIT

A Lakehead shipbuilding company has a king-size engineering problem: How to slide a boat 620 feet long, 68 feet wide and weighing 8,000 tons into a dock 718 feet long and 68 feet wide.

R. W. Suttie, superintendent of the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company, admits it will be a close fit—but he is confident the launching will be conducted successfully.

The vessel is the largest ever built at the Lakehead. She is the Imperial Oil Company tanker Redwater. Both the Redwater, and her sister-ship, the Leduc, are now under construction at Collingwood.

When they slide down the launching platform this Fall they will be the largest freshwater tankers in the world The Redwater is to be launched sideways. Engineers are taking precautions that waves she causes will not destroy the shipyard. Buildings are to be barricaded and reinforced. Everything that might be floated away will be removed.

Both tankers are being built specifically to convey Alberta oil from the terminus of a 1,180-mile pipeline at Superior, Wis., to Ontario refineries.

OLD SHIP BURNS

A 140-foot ship was consumed by leaping flames in the centre of Seattle's Elliott Bay yesterday afternoon before the eyes of thousands of spectators who lined the shoreline to witness the event—a highlight among features of the Puget Sound city's ten-day Seattle Seafair which ends today.

The vessel which went up in smoke was the historic former steamer Bellingham, one of the most famous ships ever to ply the waters of Puget Sound. She was built in 1892, serving as the first vessel of the Alaska Steamship Company, and later as one of the first units of both Puget Sound Navigation Company and the Northland Transportation Company. Her original name was General Miles, and to many the vessel was also known as the Willapa

The Bellingham has served as a tug, passenger ship, freighter and lighter during her long years of service. She served out of Alaska until a few years ago, when she was retired

While the ship blazed in her last glory, Seattle's fireboat Duwamish—most powerful vessel of her kind in the world—battled with the conflagration as a demonstration of the Seattle waterfront's modern fire protection system.

Young Indian Completes Trip

VANCOUVER, Aug 19 (CP).—A lone, 13-year-old goodwill Ambassador from Canada's Iroquois Indians to the Maoris of New Zealand, has returned from an 18,000-mile journey down under.

The youthful envoy, David Smith, who presented the King of the Maoris with a pair of Iroquois "snow snakes," stopped here briefly on his way to his home on the Six Nations Reserve at Brantford, Ont. His long journey, he said, "was just a gesture of friendship from one native race to another."

In return for the snow snakes—slender sport javelins — David was presented with a piece of greenstone, used by ancient Maoris for weapon making and a ceremonial dance was performed in his honor.

Poison Ivy Antidote Found in Plant Itself

BOSTON, July 18 (NANA).—Poison ivy is so mean it might destroy itself if it didn't carry its own antidote along as it winds its shining leafed vines around the trees and fences of field and roadside.

The antidote, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology physiologist has found in a five-year study just completed, is an enzyme or catalyst—known as laccase—existing in the plant itself.

Like other catalysts, laccase makes something happen to something else. In this case, it keeps the poison ivy vine in a flourishing condition by constantly changing and destroying the irritants that poison humans before the poison can kill the plant.

TO TEST USE

The importance of Dr Sizer's discovery will not be fully known until medical scientists see how laccase can be used to protect human skins from ivy poisoning or perhaps to treat the burning and itching places once a luckless wight has walked into it. Now that he's located the enzyme, Dr. Sizer himself is going on to other fields of study

Laccase also is found in the poison-ivy relations — poison oak poison sumac—in the shell of the cashew nut and in the Japanese lac tree from which their lacquers are made. Still looking for enzymes that would oxidize and destroy the poison molecule in the ivy, Dr Sizer found another one in horseradish, the powerful "peroxidase."

The first destructive enzyme for the poison in the plant that ruins Summers for more people than hay fever, the M.I.T. scientist found in the common edible mushroom

"There's still nothing on the market that's any good for poison ivy," he comments. "The cure probably will come from immunology, and I'd say within the next ten years. In the meantime, my advice is the same as it was before we started looking for these enzymes — keep away from the stuff!"

ORDERED OUT

SPOKANE, July 22 (AP)—Notices of eviction or rent increases have been handed to wives and families of at least six Spokane Air Force Base flyers who were ordered to the Pacific. Mayor Arthur Meehan says "If they continue at this rate, I'll recommend that rent control be put back into effect," he said

The American national anthem, although written in 1814, was not formally adopted by Congress until March 3, 1931

ANY CAVITIES LAST YEAR? NEW HOPE FOR TOOTH DECAY

KOVEL

The Kovels of Jackson Heights are among the hundreds of families who have been testing the effect of Amm-i-dent Tooth Powder in reducing tooth decay. Every individual making these has been under the supervision of a dentist The records of tooth cavities have been carefully kept, and are filed along with the sworn statements of the dentists involved, proving a reduction in tooth decay

Think what this tooth powder can mean to your family!

You probably have heard of Amm-i-dent already, from your dentist or from friends. You may have read about Amm-i-dent. This you do know — that here at last is a tooth powder which promises new hope against tooth decay — not as a result of brushing your teeth many times a day, but because of the special ingredients in the Amm-i-dent formula.

First Ammoniated Tooth Powder

Two revolutionary ingredients are the active factors in Amm-i-dent—Dibasic Ammonium Phosphate and Carbamide. Not only was Amm-i-dent the first ammoniated tooth powder — but Amm-i-dent contains 3 times more active (ammonia-releasing) ingredients than other leading brands. You would need to brush your teeth 6 times a day with other brands to get the same effect as you get from twice a day brushing with Amm-i-dent.

Brighter Teeth than with Pastes or Creams

Many people find that their type of teeth is different and therefore they must have a powder for best cleaning results. You may also find that Amm-i-dent powder keeps your teeth brighter looking than any cosmetic tooth paste or dental cream. Try one tin of Amm-i-dent powder and you will see the difference.

ONE HOUR THAT MAY BE THE TURNING POINT
IN YOUR LIFE!

Rapidly expanding business now requires that we increase our staff.

We are a most unusual firm. Your FUTURE POSSIBILITIES are unlimited. The AMOUNT OF MONEY you can make is something you never dreamed possible. Our product, hitherto sold as commercial equipment, has only recently begun to invade the domestic market. It is being received with unprecedented acclaim and is today the largest selling unit of its kind. It is this increase in volume that requires expansion of our staff.

We could use not only a number of salesmen, who, after our thorough training period can make up to $800 per month, but we are also looking for 6 men with managerial capacity who will easily earn much more. Men in such supervisory positions do make at least $1,000 a month (and we have several who approach $2,000).

It is because our men have such magnificent futures we require every man to pass an aptitude test. The only kind of men we accept are those whom our test indicates possess the intelligence and the energy to take such strides. If you can meet our standards you will open the door to one of the most brilliant futures that you have ever imagined possible. You will be joining one of the widest companies in the country, whose product is sold virtually throughout the world. It is sold by appointment and will take about one hour of your time to investigate.

THAT HOUR MAY BE THE TURNING POINT OF YOUR LIFE
just as it has to a great many men now with us.

Come up and meet them yourself! Talk to them. Their enthusiasm will convince you far more than anything we can say in this space.

If you are under 45 and if you have a car, if you think you have the stuff that qualifies you to move up from salesman to much higher levels, be at Princess Louise Room, Wednesday, August 23, at 2 p.m. sharp.

IT IS SURELY HIGH TIME THAT MEDIcal men who are actually practicing the healing art took some active steps to check the great onrush of laboratory and animal experiment which is, in so many respects, threatening the very foundations of practical medicine. Diseased conditions in man cannot be correctly imitated in experimental animals, so why persist in making such experiments which are sometimes of the most absurd and hopelessly valueless kind? One of the finest view properties on Vancouver Island is now for sale, due to a change in the business plans of the owner.

Located on a semi-secluded six acres of partly timbered land, about 800 feet above sea level, it commands a sweeping view of the Straits of Georgia and the Mainland mountains.

Large living-room, dining-room and entrance hall all have oak floors. Modern kitchen, den, bedroom and bathroom downstairs. Three good rooms and bathroom on second floor. Cement basement has electric pump and hot-water tank, sawdust-burning hot air furnace and garage. The grounds are partly landscaped and the orchard has some very fine trees.

The location is three miles west from Nanaimo, and is easily accessible to Vancouver by boat, as well as being in the centre of Vancouver Island.

This property would make a lovely show-place home, or the location for a high-class guest house.

The price is $18,000.00, and the owner will be pleased to provide further information to financially responsible interested persons.

ELK LAKE

Lovely modern home with magnificent view of Elk Lake.

This beautiful home has large living-room with view windows, tapestry walls and large fireplace. The kitchen is the very latest and is a place that any housewife will appreciate for its compactness and cheeriness. Wired for electric stove and refrigeration. Corner view windows and three-quarter-inch hardwood floors throughout. Two large bedrooms, three-piece Pembroke bathroom. Full basement with drive-in garage and a two-room apartment with separate three-piece bathroom. Oil-O-Matically heated to all rooms.

The house is situated on 1.07 acres of good black soil and has a splendid vegetable garden, also fruit trees and berries. A really lovely front garden in lawn, shrubs and flowers.

We will be PROUD to show you this grand home at the reduced price of $11,000

OAK BAY NEAR EVERYTHING

Here is a good buy. Living-room with fireplace, two bedrooms, three-piece bathroom and nice pantry and kitchen. Heated by hot air furnace to all rooms. Basement with tubs. Separate garage with room for workshop. A lovely garden on corner lot, 50 x 120. An excellent buy at $6925

THIS IS AN EXCELLENT SMALL FARM, BUT THERE IS A CATCH TO IT

Yes, it is in Saanich, and has 5¼ acres of A1 soil all under cultivation, with exception of about quarter-acre of wood lot with enough wood to last some five years.

There is over half-acre in berries and another half-acre in fruit trees, vegetables and bulbs, and believe it or not, there is hardly a weed on the place.

A beautiful cedar sided home consisting of living-room with fireplace, two bedrooms down and two unfinished up; four-piece bathroom and a lovely kitchen. There is a good barn for two cows and a chicken house, 30 x 20, with concrete floors. There is also a wood shed, 18 x 12, also concreted.

This is really a lovely farm and the house and land are in spotless condition.

THE CATCH: It will take at least $6,000 down payment and the balance at 5%.

BUT LOOK: The price is only $9500

Taxes, $70; and on the five-mile circle.

In Early Morning

Four Fights in One Hour Keep City Police Active

The Marquis of Queensbury would have liked this:

City police were called four times within an hour early Saturday morning to quell bouts of fisticuffs in various spots about town.

First time was at 12:07 a.m.

Two constables broke up a brawl between a patron and employes at Ciros Cafe, Yates Street.

Three minutes later, they were called to the Club Cafe, Yates Street, to separate three sailors and two civilians. They cautioned the warring parties and settled down for a peaceful night.

The police were off again to another call at Fisgard and Government Streets, 20 minutes later, however.

A bit of friction between a white man and a number of Chinese was starting to develop. Police broke it up in a hurry.

Thirty-five minutes later they were called to a Bay Street residence.

A man was fighting with his brother-in-law.

Victoria Host This Week to Postmaster-General

Victoria will play host this week to the Hon. G. E. Rinfret, Postmaster-General of Canada, who arrived in the city last night as part of an extended tour of Canadian postal facilities.

Traveling with Mr. A. de Gaspe Tache, executive assistant to the Postmaster-General, his two sons, Claude and Andre, and a party of friends, Mr. Rinfret was met about 6.45 p.m by J B Sinclair, Postmaster of Victoria, and political leaders

Later, at his hotel, the youthful-looking Cabinet Minister said that the purpose of his tour was to establish a measure of personal contact with some of the 12,000 postmasters and their staffs scattered throughout the Dominion.

As leader of the Canadian postal system, he felt that meeting with individual staff members of the various post offices helped to maintain morale and to ensure a more efficient functioning of the entire system.

The department now has more than 46,000 employees in Canadian post offices as well as 13,000 mail contracts to handle

Questioned on the effect the threatening rail strike might have on postal delivery facilities, Mr. Rinfret said that arrangements were being made to maintain delivery of all first-class mail, and that motor transport would be used wherever possible to ensure final delivery of first-class mail.

Trans-Canada parcel delivery, however, would be almost impossible should the railroads cease to function.

Mr. de Gasp Tache stated that for the first time, the Canadian postal gross revenue passed the $100,000,000 mark for the past fiscal year and that department showed a $1,500,000 profit.

About 94 per cent of the cost of operating the postal system goes to pay salaries, maintain equipment and mail contracts by boat, rail, plane, horse, dog team through the 6,400 miles of breadth and 6,100 miles depth of the Dominion in all weather and in all conditions, Mr. de Gaspe Tache said

Mr Rinfret, it was announced, will spend today visiting friends.

Monday he will make a tour of the city post office and tentative plans have been made for the Postmaster-General to present Imperial Service Medals to retired long-service employees

Mr Rinfret also will attend the Canadian Club luncheon on Monday to hear External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson speak. Mr. Pearson will arrive in Victoria today, it was announced.

Live Shows Bid to Check Sneers From Lips of Embittered Visitors

THE ENTERTAINMENT WORLD

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Embittered visitors who claim there's nothing to do in Victoria but watch the grass growing on the streets can check themselves in mid-sneer and scan the list of coming attractions.

Three—count 'em—three big "live" shows are scheduled in the next three weeks. All are prime entertainment for the middle-brow and low-brow market, and if a high-brow decides to slink in a side entrance, no doorman will block his path and measure his skull with a pair of calipers.

SPICED WITH TALENT

Starlight Theatre, home-grown product spiced with big-time talent, swings into the second half of its third annual season this week, with "Blossom Time" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and "Chu Chin Chow" Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at Memorial Arena.

Spike Jones and his "Musical Depreciation Revue of 1951" will burst into town to challenge Victoria eardrums and the acoustics of the arena Tuesday, September 5.

If you think mentioning Spike and Starlight Theatre in the same burst of the typewriter is unfair, think again. Spike's boys are masters of their trade, and their trade is music.

BEVERLY FYFE

Ever wonder where the Spike Jones talent scouts find musicians who can make "Liebestraum" sound like a combination of "St. Louis Blues" and an explosion in a fireworks factory?

"These guys may be nuts, but they don't grow on trees," says the Jones boy.

"Musical satirists are a rare breed. First of all—and this is what most people don't realise—they have to be terrific musicians, with flawless technique and sound musical background."

MUST BE BEST

Jones says he has to hire the best musicians available, because no mediocre performer could possibly play his wild arrangements. Any serious musician who has ever tackled one of Spike's fantastic musical satires will concede that it is much tougher to play than the number which is being satirized.

Spike has painstakingly gathered his specialists in bedlam from the top jazz aggregations in the country—and even from symphony orchestras.

"The symphony boys seem a little dazed at first, but we've had some that worked out fine. The one thing they've all got to have is a well-developed sense of the ridiculous."

ONE OF BEST

Stout songster George Rock (280 pounds) whose falsetto vocal on Spike's recording of "All I Want for Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth," made it the fastest-selling record in musical history (1,215,000 in three weeks), came to Spike from the Charlie Barnett band, where he was regarded as one of the top jazz trumpet men in the business.

Now he plays for laughs, but gets an occasional chance to go straight. His trumpet solo on "Minka," a feature of the "Musical Depreciation Revue," is a collectors' item for record fans.

Dick Morgan, another of the City Slickers, has played guitar with Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Alvino Rey and Horace Heidt, and once had a dog act in vaudeville.

"He was a talking dog, too," recalls Morgan proudly. "All he could say was 'hamburger,' but it stopped the show."

Joe Siracusa, Spike's drummer and sound effects man, formerly played with the Cleveland Municipal and El Paso Symphony Orchestras.

MORE NOISE

"I make more noise in one night with Spike than I could make in a whole year in a symphony," says Siracusa proudly.

Paul Leu, pianist, has played with many big-time bands, including Henry Busse, Red Nichols and Russ Morgan.

Spike himself used to help provide sleek backgrounds for Bing Crosby, tapping discreetly on his drums as a member of the John Scott Trotter Orchestra.

Characters who will be turned loose when the "King of Korn" hits town include:

Dr. Horatio Q. Birdbath, who is said to do "impersonations of 175 birds, 75 miscellaneous animals, six snakes, two insects and one orchestra leader—Vaughn Monroe."

WEIRD NAG

Doodles Weaver, who made his imaginary nag, "Feetlebaum," a national gag through his best-selling recording of "William Tell Overture." Weaver is now shopping for a real racehorse, upon which he will pin the name.

"Sir Frederick Gas" (real name, Earl Bennett), who is forbidden by contract to get a haircut. His thick, wavy locks, brushed straight up, are an important part of his characterization of a "long-hair" musician.

Frankie Little, a midget four feet three inches tall, once a member of Ringling Brothers' Circus . . . Junior Martin, seven feet eight inches tall, ex-doorman at Hollywood's famous Chinese Theatre.

VERSATILE CONDUCTOR

Dapper, 40-year-old Beverley Fyfe, who conducts an all-Victoria orchestra for Starlight Theatre, has been a man-about-show-business since he was five years old. He has also been a singer, dancer and violinist.

Mr. Fyfe was born in Saskatoon, and now lives in Vancouver, being the only "imported" member of the orchestra. The directory lists his occupation as "school teacher," but he lives music most of his waking hours.

His father, the late W. C. Fyfe, who preceded him out to the coast some years ago, was widely known in Victoria as the conductor of the Arion Choir and of the United Church Choir.

DEBUT

Beverley Fyfe made his professional debut as a singer and dancer with the Excelsior Players on a cross-Canada tour when he was five years old. Somewhat later he studied music at the University of Washington and won a scholarship in the Hamburg Conservatory, Toronto. Ten years ago he went to Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars as leading tenor.

He has been with Starlight Theatre during all its three seasons. He is also musical director for Burrard Lions' Operatic Society and Knox Operatic Society, and works under Jacques Singer with Vancouver Symphony Choir.

He has also logged a deal of radio time. He was featured on hour-long broadcasts of musical comedy on CBR, and has conducted on "Wednesday Night" programs. He was on the "Leicester Square to Broadway" show for four years.

"Oratorios are my particular love," he says—but he doesn't look down his nose at musical comedy. He thinks musical comedy is worth any customer's money for entertainment, and worth any musician's or performer's time for fun and training.

Several of the best singers of Theatre Under the Stars have jumped to grand opera in Eastern Canada, he points out.

LIKES "PRINCE"

Among the older musical comedy favorites, he admits a preference for "The Student Prince." For freshness and originality, musically speaking, he picks "Brigadoon" and "Carousel."

He is full of praise for his musicians—many of them members of Victoria Symphony Orchestra—who have to fit in music with workaday lives. They have time for only one reading and dress rehearsal before the show.

He has one fault to find with the musicians—there aren't enough of them. The orchestra, he feels, lacks "body" because of its relatively small size (16 pieces). When the budget allows in future years, he hopes it will be expanded.

NOTHING SHABBY

Shrine-P.N.E. Circus plays Vancouver's Exhibition Forum, August 28 to September 4, for the third successive year, with all the razz-a-ma-tazz of the sawdust trail and a few new wrinkles.

There's nothing shabby about this show—it's 24-carat.

Magnificent horses and the world's champion bareback riders make up the impressive equestrian extravaganza of the Giustino Loyal-Repensky family.

Aerial thrillers include Lalage, the Siroreka Duo, Rose Gould Trio and Seven Ward-Bell Flyers. Other top features are Melitta and Wicons, Swedish high-perch artists; the Shyrettos, ace cyclists; Hubert Castle, wizard of the wire; the Seven Brannocks, whirlwind acrobats; Linon, European pantomimist, and Alfredo Landon's tumbling midgets from the Argentine.

Among animal acts are Pallenberg's educated bears, Woolford's troop of performing dachshunds, Whitbeck's movie-trained elephants, and Docky's basketball-playing Boxer dogs.

Clowns, headed by the famous Otto Griebling, spice the program with their wacky whimsies.

The circus is produced by Polack Brothers exclusively for Shrine Temple, which sponsors it jointly with the P.N.E.

P.N.E. Circus

Bareback star La Zefia Loyal, Clown Otto Griebling and Fu, one of Pallenberg's bears, are among the new international array of talent with the Shrine-P.N.E. Polack Brothers' Circus at Vancouver's Exhibition Forum, August 28 to September 4.

VALENTINO

"Next Wednesday is the 24th anniversary of the death of movie idol Rudolph Valentino, struck down by peritonitis at the age of 31 when he was at the peak of his fabulous career. Hollywood tipsters are betting their bankrolls that the traditional "lady in black" will keep her vigil at the tomb of "the love who could never die." Four thousand people visit the simple crypt yearly.

* * *

The film "Story of Rudolph Valentino," is in the cutting-room being readied for immediate release. It stars an Omaha, Nebraska, lad, Tony Dexter, who looks so like the romantic symbol of the silent screen that studio bosses believe (or hope) that the orgy of mass idolatry which marked the great Rudy's heyday will start all over again.

TOP BILLING

Refrigerators and dishwashing machines won't necessarily get top billing at the Kinsmen Home Appliance Show in Bay Street Armory September 6 to 9.

A lively company of humans has also been signed up to appear for one hour a night on each of the four days. They include Dick Bens, known as the outstanding marimba player of the West Coast, and Mary Mack, "Canada's Sophie Tucker."

Mary is the lady who raised a mild tempest in academic circles a year or so ago when a well-known U.B.C. professor posed innocently for a press photograph with one arm around her waist.

The program will have a Latin-American flavor, and will be labeled "Fiesta Time." Also featured will be the Cubanaires, master of ceremonies Mickey Francis, who doubles as a comedian, and a Starlight ballet group.

Proceeds go to the Kin charities.

NEW PAINTINGS

Western Canadian Artists' exhibition, which has been touring the West, replaces C. W. Holliday's paintings Tuesday at Greater Victoria Arts Centre, 823 Broughton Street.

Among the two-dozen-odd artists represented are Mrs. Ina D. Uhthoff and Gladys Ewen of Victoria.

National Gallery of Canada has added several important works this year. They include the "Pieta," one of the rare early works of Quentin Massys, first great master of the Flemish High Renaissance, "Abraham and the Three Angels," by the Spanish master, Murillo, and Sir Peter Lely's "Portrait of Sir Edward Massey."

Among Canadian works acquired this year, the most important group includes 22 paintings by the late Prudence Heward.

Some other acquisitions are a bronze head by the contemporary sculptor, Jacob Epstein; "Rocky Landscape," an early water color by Roelandt Savery (1576-1639); a pen and bistre drawing, "Houses on the Outskirts of a Town," by the same artist, and "Architectural Capriccio," by Giovanni Battista Piranesi (1720-1778).

The gallery ploughed through its $181,150 appropriation for 1948 and ended the year with a balance of $343. Its work included travelling lectures, circulation of loan material and exhibitions at home and abroad.

OLIVER is a progressive little town, centre for one of the richest fruit areas in the province

Cantaloupes Grow in B.C.

By LES RIMES

I STOPPED in at one of the stalls along the South Okanagan highway. It was dusk and the old-timer was leaning against his shiplap counter.

"Most folks," says he, "think that the Okanagan grows only apples, like they think California grows only oranges or Brazil grows only coffee. But 'tain't so."

He pointed his sunbrowned arm out across his fields of reddened tomatoes, and beyond to a field of cantaloupes maturing in the hot sunshine.

This year's apple crop from the Oliver-Osoyoos area is expected to run to 851,770 boxes which is 10,000 better than last year's figure. A boom year it will be. Pears are expected to run to 85,000 boxes. Grape vines will yield 10,000 pounds of fruit.

A HARD WINTER

But the peach production is down 10 per cent of the normal. The tough Winter killed off many of the trees and damaged others. One orchard, a mile north of the border, less than two dozen trees bore green leaves. Two hundred others were brown and bare, victims of Winter's ravages.

Many of the orchardists who lost peach trees have turned to tomatoes, cucumbers, cantaloupes or zuccas.

In fact, zucca melons are becoming an increasingly popular crop with south Okanagan farmers. The melons grow to six feet in length, tipping the scales at over 200 pounds. The harvesters pile 'em up like cordwood. One Vancouver firm buys most of the crop for ersatz fruit chips in store-bought fruit cakes.

EARLIEST FRUIT

Osoyoos boasts the hottest Summer weather in Canada and the earliest fruit. The end of July, when I was up that way, the mercury was up to 104 and no rain since April.

Tomatoes were already passing through the packing houses by the ton and a few boxes of apples were being shipped.

Oliver boosts the cantaloupe, not the apple, in its advertising folders. After all, other areas in Canada can grow apples, few can grow cantaloupes. A roadside welcome board erected by the Board of Trade, says "Welcome to Oliver, Where Climate and Effort Bear Fruit."

TOWN OF OLIVER

While orchards and farms are the mainstay of the economy there's plenty of other activities.

Oliver has a large sawmill cutting logs taken from the nearby hills.

Also, near Oliver is the Fairview Mine of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company.

The old town of Fairview once occupied a plateau overlooking the fertile valley. That was before Oliver existed. In the 1900's the place boomed as a mining town and grew to a fair-sized town with a population of 2,000. The Big Teepee hotel was a three-story structure — quite an elaborate chunk of architecture for those days in British Columbia.

In 1902 the Big Teepee burned down; many of the children contacted diphtheria, one of the mines closed down. From then on, Fairview went down hill. The last mine closed down in 1925.

Cominco recently reopened the area with a silica mine.

FOR TOURISTS

With the Hope-Princeton highway funnelling traffic that way Oliver and Osoyoos have been thrown into the tourist bloc.

The hotel in Osoyoos, run by Mayor Joe Armstrong, has doubled its size this Summer, and new auto courts are building up to take care of the influx of rubbernecks. Osoyoos is improving its lovely little lakeshore park, attracting tourists to stop over for a swim—and for a tour through one of the packing plants to see the valley's rich crops of cherries, grapes, apples, peaches, pears, apricots, cantaloupes, zuccas and tomatoes being shipped to the world markets.

"STAMP PACKET" by R. M. ANGUS

DURING the last 35 years it has been the writer's privilege to have, at least, temporary possession of no less than five copies of Canada's rarest stamp, the 12d black. Three of these were unused (including a pair) and two used. It was also interesting to recollect that, in another part of this province, a very dangerous fake of a used 12d black cause no little sensation in philatelic circles.

* * *

It so happened that a certain London dealer, long since dead, was in the habit of retailing bargain lots of pages torn from albums holus bolus at fantastically low prices. "New Zealand. The collection catalogued £115 price £10," is the type of advertisement he used. In some cases they were bargains, but almost invariably there would be one stamp cataloguing around £50 which raised the value of the lot but was a very skilful piece of repair work, added margins or faked imperforated stamps.

* * *

He also sold individual varieties —in many cases they would not pass standard tests as to soundness. One such came to a collector, who immediately brought it to the writer for his opinion. It was a superb looking 12d black with a six-ring target cancellation on the right hand side, and was described as "very fine but defect at back. Price £20." It had full margins, was not repaired, nor had it any "defect at back." But what was the most glaring inconsistency was the price! Why send it out to Canada at such a gift price when it could have been sold in England for four times as much? The ink used in canceling it looked too fresh and greasy, and it finally dawned on me that it was a "specimen" stamp (then worth about $20), and that the cancellation was a counterfeit. The prospective purchaser was so advised.

* * *

At that time there was another collector in the town referred to: pompous and irascible, but who had been the owner at one time or another of two world-famous collections. "Take it to Mr X, he should be the final court of appeal" was the advice given him. Amazingly, Mr. X pronounced it to be perfectly genuine and offered the other collector more than double the amount he had to pay for it. A week later the writer was in Mr X's room on a Sunday morning and ventured to air his views on the stamp, but Mr. X splutteringly maintained it to be genuine, so there was nothing more one could do about it. Some days later, two sophisticated philatelists both gave independent and identical opinions on it similar to the writer.

Mr. X sent it to New York where it was seen by John Suff, Mr. Sichtenstein, Senator Calder, and other philatelic notables. All gave the same opinion. Instead of going to the collector and asking him to return the stamp to the original vendor, he went to the firm who employed him. Fortunately they were accepting Mr X's opinion. After a war of words Mr X decided to take the case to court but had some difficulty in finding a lawyer who would act, as Mr. X had paraded the stamp around philatelic circles stating he had got it cheaply as it was undoubtedly stolen property that could not be sold in England. Eventually he procured counsel and the case came up and after one day's hearing the judge threw out the case.

* * *

It was of particular interest to the writer to see it again at a meeting in the Empress Hotel, where it was displayed in the fine collection of Mr. Leslie Brewster of San Francisco, and to see, written on the back in indelible pencil by the writer, subsequent to Mr. X's death, "Specimen—forged cancel." It was sold for $20, all it was worth at that time, and is nothing more than an interesting piece of skullduggery.

"Wild Pigeon" Helped Save Canada

ALMOST 200 years ago, in the town of Trois Rivieres, on the St. Lawrence River, there lived a sailor named Jean-Baptiste Bouchette. A very strong man and a very good sailor, Bouchette used to row his boat up and down the river so quickly that every one called him "La Tourture," which means in English, "The Wild Pigeon."

In 1775, when the British colonies in America went to war against England, an American army was sent to invade Canada. Two small towns, St. John and Chambly, were captured and then the American troops captured Montreal, where Sir Guy Carleton, the British general had his headquarters.

Carleton was badly needed in Quebec City, more than 200 miles down the St. Lawrence, where another American army was trying to capture that city. "The Wild Pigeon" volunteered to help Carleton escape and take him to Quebec. First, he dressed the British general in French clothes, with a tasselled red tuque, homespun suit and moccasins. Then, with three helpers, Bouchette and Carleton started off from the Montreal wharf in a rowboat.

So that the Americans would not hear them, the little crew wrapped stockings and shirts around their oars, and when they came to a very narrow passage in the river they put the oars in the boat and paddled with their hands. Finally, they reached Trois Rivieres and went to the home of Sieur de Tonnacourt who had also promised to help them. A few minutes later a party of American scouts came to the house.

Carleton, tired after his long and dangerous trip down the river, had fallen asleep and might have been captured had it not been for the quickness of the "Wild Pigeon." Realizing that if Carleton were recognized all would be lost, the sailor shook Carleton by the shoulder and ordered him aboard ship, just as if he was one of the crew. Carleton woke up and saw what was going on. Sleepily, he rubbed his eyes and followed his new "captain" to the waterfront where they once more set out in the rowboat for Quebec.

The same day the general and his helpers were picked up by a British Navy ship called Fell. Carleton was taken immediately to Quebec where two American generals, Arnold and Montgomery, were besieging the city. A little more than a month later Carleton defeated the invading armies and Quebec and Canada were saved.

Carleton was recognized as the saviour of Canada—but if it had not been for Jean-Baptiste Bouchette the "Wild Pigeon" from Trois Rivieres, Canada might have become part of the new Republic of the United States.

Cowpokes of Forgotten Era Tops Over Dudes of Radio

By LLOYD SETTLE

HOLLYWOOD.—Movie and television cowboys are sissies compared, to the sagebrush kings of yesteryear in show business, an 80-year-old Cherokee contends.

He is John Agee, who rode with Buffalo Bill's show and was equestrian director for Ringling's circus in the 1890s. He coached Tom Mix, gave Buck Jones his first circus job, and for more than a decade has been chief horse trainer for the movie cowboy Gene Autry.

Agee ranks Autry tops among present day cowboys but sticks to his guns on the sissy business generally.

"You can't compare 'em," the spry, thinning Indian said with an expansive gesture.

"Today's cowboys are good but only for rodeos. They're professionals. Take away radio, movies, television, rodeos, and what'd they do?

TOM MIX TOUGH

"Back in our time cowpokes were more friendly, too. They didn't know they were part of an era and thought nothing of being a cowboy.

"I was a pretty tough hombre myself. But take Tom Mix. He was a real tough guy. He was a two-gun, hard-fisted man like Buffalo Bill.

"Mix made Fox studios $5,000,000 and made himself another $5,000,000."

Nine times winner of the world trick riding championships, Agee is now educating a horse he hopes will send the customers on their ears at the Madison Square Garden show September 27.

He's teaching a horse to canter backwards and to drink from a barrel of fire.

WITH BUFFALO BILL

Agee recalls the day the late John Ringling put him in charge of 125 girls, 1,400 men and 600 horses. He knew every horse by name. "Better'n I knew the performers."

Agee also remembers going along on Buffalo Bill's first tour to Mexico City. Cody was accompanied by a newspaper woman, Faye King from The Denver Post, and Annie Oakley and her shooting partner, Johnnie Baker.

"Can't understand why the darned movies never talk 'bout Baker," he said. "He could shoot a fly off a fence post 100 feet away. He was twice's good as Annie."

Agee was born in Lewis County, Missouri, in the 1870s when his dad owned an interest in the famous Diamond Jewel Boat Line. He breathed the spray in the prow of many a boat and knew every vessel that plied the Mississippi by its whistle.

SIGNED BY RINGLING

Agee had a pinto pony that he raced up and down the wagon-rutted roads. Then the circus came to town, with many horses. Said the youngster to the great John Ringling. "Need a good man?"

Ringling looked around. "Where's the man?"

"Here!" said the boy.

The great showman smiled. "That's a pretty brave sort of thing to say. Go back and tell the ring boss, Rhoda Royal, to put you on as a jockey."

Thus did John Agee meet the cowboys of yesterday.

Disaster on the Dyea Trail

* * * * * *

Sixty Miners Were Buried Alive Under Tons of Snow

By F. C. McLAREN

SURVEY parties are working again on the historic Dyea Trail, over mountain passes deserted for 50 years. Their concern is not with a route to the Yukon gold fields but with sources of water power to process aluminum. Some of the men who labor their equipment up those strenuous slopes this Summer may not even know of that April morning of the great snowslide, when that same trail claimed 60 lives.

The Spring of 1898 saw the peak of the gold rush to the Klondike. Prospectors going from Pacific Coast ports by way of the Inside Passage had a choice of two main routes across the mountains: the famous White Pass Trail from Skagway, or the parallel trail over Chilkoot Pass from the now-deserted tidewater port of Dyea. Beyond the summits the two trails converged at Lake Linderman, and beyond that lay Lake Bennett and the headwaters of the Yukon.

CITY OF TENTS

At Dyea, a typical gold rush city of tents and shacks and false-front wooden buildings, the Winter snow was gone, but along the trail, at Canyon City and Sheep Camp and The Scales, the snow hung ten to 20 feet deep in the mountain passes. For seven days a thawing wind had blown from the south. The Indian packers refused to work. Other men who knew the country pointed to the masses of softened snow and warned of danger, urging the prospectors who were camped in tents in the ravines to move out of the dangerous spot. But most of the gold seekers, inexperienced in mountains, ignored the warning.

THE FATAL SUNDAY

A Mueler, from Vancouver, who with his partner, Joppe, operated a restaurant in what he proudly described as "one of the most substantial buildings at The Scales, gave to the pioneer Dyea newspaper an account of the fatal Sunday.

"We were a little uneasy over the heavy fall of snow. We did not apprehend any danger for ourselves, but the constant small snowslides which occurred during the night of April 2 gave us uneasiness about neighbors who were in tents. About 4 o'clock in the morning one of our neighbors came rushing to our tent and yelled for God's sake come and help him, that a slide had buried a tent full of people. We hurried with shovels to the scene and extricated them. Fearing another occurrence of the same kind we roused the camp and prepared to go down to Sheep Camp. We had a long rope to keep together. I made everyone who could do so procure shovels. We proceeded down the trail about 1,000 feet to a small ravine.

BURIED IN SNOW

As we entered we heard a low rumbling sound. Someone shouted snowslide . . . and I found myself buried to the hips in a solid mass of snow and ice. I did not have time to think before I was pushed over on my side by another mass and covered. I could not move hand or foot. I was held as fast as if I were in a plaster of paris cast. I did not shout or cry out as I realized I needed all my breath and strength. The voices of the entombed reached me from all directions. Many seemed to be praying and some were muttering goodbye to relatives at home. In only a few minutes all was still and I became unconscious."

Mr Mueler was rescued. He had been buried for three hours, and was black and blue with terrific bruises but not permanently injured. Seven who were on the rope with him were taken out alive, but four of the seven afterward died.

PACKED AS ICE

The avalanche struck at about noon on April 3 at a place two miles above Sheep Camp. P. Young, who was one of the first to arrive on the scene and who extricated Mueler, records that 15 minutes after the slide there were 1,500 men on the spot, digging frantically. No one knew how many were buried. Some bodies were recovered from under 30 feet of snow. These had been instantly killed by concussion. The mass of wet snow had come 2,000 feet down a steep mountainside and covered ten acres. It came with such force it solidified at once, almost like ice.

AND 60 DIED

News of the disaster was telephoned at once from Sheep Camp to Dyea. Hundreds of men prepared to rush to the scene, but more messages brought word that thousands of rescuers from Sheep Camp and Canyon City were already on the spot. The first rumors said there was looting of some of the bodies. To deal with this, a Citizens' Committee was formed of the most prominent and respected men from Dyea and Sheep Camp. The duties of this committee were to examine each body for identification and make memoranda of all personal effects and file death certificates.

It was the greatest single disaster of the gold rush. More than 200 people had been caught in the ravine. Many were dug out alive but more than 60 died under the frozen snow.

ALL THAT REMAINED of one of the dance halls on the old Klondike trail in 1917 when this picture was taken.

LAKE BENNETT. The old church is a familiar landmark. Building of the church was started during the gold rush but was never completed.

Sitting on the Fence

By Nathaniel Gubbins

Tanks of goldfish are to be installed in the old people's home at Thetford, Norfolk. The matron, Mrs. F. Tuck, believes the colours and movements of the fish will exercise her patients' minds and make them think.

WHAT thinkin on George?

Fish.

So'm Oi.

Pretty, aren't they?

Ah.

Lovely, too.

Ah.

Rackon that thur big un's a female.

Rackon so?

Ah. Remoinds me of the woife.

She do?

Woife's been dead and buried these tharty year.

She ain't missed much.

No. That thur big un's the living spitting image of the woife. Fat in the middle, eyes a-poppin and jaws a-workin day and noight.

She's a-chasin them other fish now.

Just loike the woife. Allus on the go, oppin and poppin about.

She won't give that thur little un no peace.

'Er 'usband, loikely.

Now she's got a-hold on un. Now she's a-bitin un.

That's the woife all right.

Maybe thet thur fish is the woife. Eh?

They do say folk come back as dumb critturs. Maybe the woife's come back as a goldfish. To haunt yer.

Rackon it's toime for bed now.

And, maybe, when you kick the bucket, you'll be a goldfish, too. Rackon you won't arf cop it.

Good noight.

Good noight.

LETTER FROM MR. LUCIFER

The Kremlin, Moscow

My dear Mr. Gubbins:

So long since I wrote to you, isn't it? I think my last letter was about my dear disciple, Adolf Hitler soon after he destroyed himself. As all my disciples come to a sticky end, I hope you won't think I am callous when I say I have almost forgotten his existence in the excitement of discovering and tempting new disciples, Joseph Stalin and his twelve—I almost wrote apostles.

As you might suppose, I have used the same methods with Joe which were so successful with Adolf, but I believe, in dear old Joe I have found much better material and should get much more startling results. Like most ruthless people, Adolf was an incurable sentimentalist — fond of doggies, flowers and kiddies. Remember?—and had occasional moments of remorse.

* * *

Well, I can assure you, my dear Mr. Gubbins, Joe will never have any moments of remorse. Moreover he isn't fond of anybody or anything, unless it's vodka, which makes him a much more delightful companion than Adolf, who was a teetotaller.

Naturally, I encourage him to talk—and to drink—far into the night. When he is not organising the war in Korea, he tells me of his idiot moujiks, who believe anything they're told; of his credulous pseudo-intellectuals who join the Communist Party thinking they will be privileged commissars, but end up in the mines, and of old friends who knew too much and had to be liquidated in the most amusing circumstances.

In return I tell him of people I have tempted and ruined—of shot financiers and unfrocked bishops and murdered dictators. He never dreams for a moment he is on my list.

Our greatest mutual achievement is the number of clergymen who sympathise with the party. Each night we laughingly drink the health of one notable example in your own country. I mean the one who left his gaiter in the cinema.

Meanwhile, the widow, looking younger and more beautiful than ever, and mixing the most delicious cocktails, is still asking after her "dear Uncle Nat."

She would love you to be here, but if you can't manage it she asks you most earnestly to sign the Stockholm Peace Appeal. She has signed it herself at least 100 times in different names with her own lipstick. What a wonderful woman, Mr. Gubbins.

Yours ever,

Mephy

QUIET WEEK-END

"Foreigners arrive here, complain about the food and go home and tell lies about us," complains a leader writer.

Exactly the same thing happens after a week-end visit to friends:

There's really no excuse, dear.

No. I suppose not.

We know bacon's rationed, but there are still plenty of eggs.

Fish, fish, fish every morning.

Fish for lunch and those filthy little rissoles for so-called dinner.

My dear, I saw her making them. Squeezing wet brown bread between her fingers. I thought I would throw up.

And, you know, it was margarine for us and butter for them.

That's why they had their breakfast in bed.

What happened to the week-end joint?

I saw it in the refrigerator.

They'll eat it now we've gone, dear.

Of course, I didn't mind so much for myself.

Nor did I. It's her husband I'm so sorry for.

I've always said, and always shall say, that if a woman isn't prepared to look after a man properly she shouldn't marry him. It's cheating.

No wonder he's got an ulcer.

I suppose you know it's not only her cooking that caused that?

I had my suspicions.

My dear. Suspicions. He leaves his office at five and gets home at eight, smelling like a tavern.

* * *

If I had nothing but those rissoles to come home to I wouldn't come home at all.

Of course you know why she married him, don't you?

I often wondered why anybody did.

Jilted twice, fired from every job she tried, so he was absolutely the last hope.

Did you notice anything peculiar about their little boy?

Well, you know I simply adore children, don't you?

Of course, dear.

But I just couldn't like that child. The kindest thing you could say is arrested mental development.

And physical, too. My dear, he's a dwarf.

He has to thank his great-grandfather for that.

Which side?

Hers. Only four feet ten and as mad as a hatter.

How awful!

Strait jacket and everything. Miniature, of course.

* * *

I'm glad we left today instead of tomorrow.

We simply had to go after she found me picking in the larder.

Picking in the larder, dear?

When she said, "What are you doing in my larder?" I said, "Well, I'm sorry, dear, but I'm absolutely empty."

Well, never again, dear.

Never again.

POPULAR MUSIC

"Jam Concert at Eddie Condon's," a Decca long-playing album features the maestro of the guitar with a variety of other jazz men on eight numbers. The best two pieces are "Impromptu Ensemble No. 1" and "The Sheik of Araby" with vocal chorus by Jack Teagarden and with such jam men as Bobby Hackett, Billy Butterfield, Max Kaminsky trumpets; Pee Wee Russell, clarinet; Teagarden, trombone; Bob Haggart, bass; George Wettling, drums. The wonderful piano of James P. Johnson can be heard on two fine sides "Just You, Just Me" and "Atlanta Blues."

The Billy Rose production of Carmen Jones from Bizet's opera has been made available by Decca on a long-playing 12-inch record with the original cast. The singing of Muriel Smith as Carmen, Luther Saxon as Corporal Joe, and Carlotta Franzell as Cindy Lou is superb.

NEW SINGLES

Vaughn Monroe obviously is hoping for another "Riders in the Sky" with his dramatic production of "The Phantom Stage-Coach" (Victor) . . . Artie Shaw's orchestra plays "I'll Remember April," backed by the standard "Continental" (Decca) . . .

Anne Shelton sings "Seems Like Yesterday" and "Humble People" (London) . . . Red Norvo's latest with his vibes are "Cheek to Cheek" and "Time and Tide" (Discovery) . . . Ray Anthony's orchestra has a good instrumental arrangement of "Lackawanna Local" (Capitol) .

Dinah Shore has a sure winner in "Cotton Candy" and a duet with Jack Smith on the reverse side "1812" (Columbia) . . . Spike Jones crazy band has as its latest pair of novelties, "I Know a Secret" and "Charlestono-Mio" (Victor) . .

The old-time vaudeville star, Margaret Young, may make a comeback singing "Hard-Hearted Hannah" and "All Aboard for Dixieland" (Capitol) . . . Art Mooney's orchestra's latest are "You Forgot About Me" and "Little Jug" (M-G-M) . .

Old Homes and Families

By Jim Nesbitt

"PROFESSOR Palmer will have the music." For 20 years in old-time Victoria, from the mid-'60's to the mid-'80's, that meant the ball, dance, dinner or band concert would be outstanding.

To take dancing lessons from Mrs. Palmer and to study singing and piano with Prof Palmer put one in a class just a little above the average.

The Palmer home on Fort Street, a big roomy cottage, was always filled with music and dancing. There were group dancing classes there two evenings a week and these became social affairs. Prof. Palmer was at the piano for his wife's dancing lessons and their daughters sang. There was great excitement the time the second daughter Alice made her debut. And tragedy struck when the youngest daughter lost her life in a shipwreck.

PROFESSOR AND MRS. DIGBY PALMER—much music and dancing

The Colonist of October 1, 1862, announced Prof. Palmer's arrival in town: "Musical arrival—Mr. Digby Palmer, a musical composer of note, from Sheffield, England, whence he brings excellent testimonials as to professional work, arrived on the Cyclone and designs giving musical lessons to those who may request his services. Mr. Palmer's attainments as a pianiste especially are of the highest order and we are pleased to learn that he has decided to make this Colony his future home."

MUSIC AND DANCE

He was a good businessman, as well as a musician, and eight days after arriving in Victoria The Colonist noted: "Digby Palmer's concert—This entertainment was largely attended last night by a select and appreciative audience. The performer displayed great artistic merit and was frequently applauded. His selections were very fine and well suited to the musical taste of the audience."

Mrs. Palmer was as energetic as her husband and she wasn't here long before she was teaching dancing. "Dancing classes—Mrs. Digby Palmer will resume her Winter evening dancing classes for ladies and gentlemen on Tuesday and Friday evenings. The class for children will be held on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. The school will meet at Mrs. Palmer's residence on Douglas Street, at the corner of Fort Street. Mr. Palmer presides at the pianoforte for both classes. Terms per month—Adults, $5; juveniles, $3; private lessons, $8."

FIRST APPEARANCE

In 1865 Mr. Palmer's pupils were so delighted with his teaching that they gave him what was called a complimentary benefit concert at which it was arranged that his daughter Alice should make her first public appearance. And so there was great expectation in Victoria's musical world at the advent of a young singer, daughter of so prominent a musical couple.

The Colonist noted the concert "was in every way eminently successful. The house was comfortably filled with a most select and appreciative audience, His Excellency the Governor and family and Mrs. Wakeford occupying their usual box."

J B Harries sang "Come Into the Garden, Maud," and this didn't please The Colonist music critic too much. The report said the song "was sung with taste and feeling—but the music is somewhat beyond the approach of most amateurs and is perhaps too much identified with England's tenor, Sims Reeves, to make it a desirable song for a non-professional."

GLOWING PRAISE

As to the debut, The Colonist noted, "Miss Alice Palmer sang Wallace's charming air, 'Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer.' This being her first appearance in public, the young chanteuse was at first a little nervous, but soon recovered her self-possession and rendered the second verse exceedingly well. She was rewarded with a rapturous encore when she gave the plaintive, touching balad, 'Home, Sweet Home,' improving in voice as she proceeded. Miss Palmer's voice is a clear soprano and with careful tuition she will make a fine singer."

It was in the Palmer home that young Harries, who sang "Come Into the Garden, Maud," found his wife. The Colonist of April 22, 1867, said: "At Olympia, W.T., 19th inst., by the Rev. Anthony Simpson, Julian Blackburn, son of the late William Matthew Harries, M.L.A., of Cape of Good Hope, and grandson of the late Abel Walford Bellairs, High Sheriff of Rutlandshire, to Lucy Blanche, eldest daughter of John Digby Lee Palmer, of Victoria, and niece of the Rev. Henry Wright, rector of Thuxton, Hingham, Norfolk."

A few years later the second daughter was married: October 27, 1872—"In San Francisco, October 19, by the Rev R. Birdsall, J. R. Helen, Esq., to Alice, second daughter of Digby Palmer of Victoria, B.C."

IN A NEW HOME

Though his daughters were living in San Francisco, Digby Palmer in the mid-'70's wanted a larger and more elegant home for his music lessons. So he gave orders for a new place farther up Fort Street. The Colonist of June 27, 1876, described it: "Another new residence—Digby Palmer, Esq., has just erected a very nice cottage residence on Fort Street, between Quadra and Blanshard. It is pleasantly situated and stands on a raised stone foundation. The front entrance opens into a spacious hall, on the right-hand side of which is a well-lighted and lofty sitting-room, 20 by 15 feet; on the left another sitting-room, 16 by 16. The kitchen is very roomy and admirably arranged; the bedrooms are also commodious and comfortable. The building stands on a full lot and is furnished with a copious supply of water from the Corporation mains. Matters of detail have received careful attention at the hands of Messrs. Hayward and Jenkinson, contractors, by whom the house was built, and in every way comfort and substantiality have been studied."

It was the year before that the Palmer family was plunged into grief and the new home kept Mrs. Palmer busy and her mind to some extent from her sorrow.

TRAGEDY AT SEA

One November day in 1875 the youngest daughter, Fannie, sailed away from Victoria in the steamer Pacific for California to visit her married sisters. She was but 19, and so her parents were anxious as they saw her depart. Just outside Cape Flattery the Pacific foundered, with heavy loss of life. Fannie was among those who never came back. The Colonist, in announcing she was missing, said: "Miss Palmer had a presentiment of the dark shadow hanging over her. When she said farewell to several friends she said she felt she would never see them again in this world and it is said that she wrote a note to a former schoolmate in which she expressed her belief she would never return to Victoria."

The Palmer family was in agony for three weeks before their daughter's body was washed up on the shores of San Juan Island. November 27 John Sandwith wrote from San Juan to the chief of police at Victoria: "I have found the body of a lady on my beach near the U.S. Garrison, with light brown hair, medium size, having on a light gray Balmoral skirt, a black cord polonaise, double-breasted with black velvet cuffs, a black waterproof, without sleeves, new kid lace boots, No. 3, and striped hose. The body had on a life preserver marked 'Pacific'."

Prof. Palmer and Police Sgt. Bloomfield immediately went to San Juan and brought the body to Victoria for burial.

A BIG FUNERAL

Under the heading "Vale!" The Colonist gave full details of the funeral: "The last sad tribute of affection was paid to the memory of Miss Fannie Palmer on Sunday. The body of the unfortunate young lady was borne from the home she lately adorned to the grave in the midst of a blinding snow storm which covered the walks and roads leading to the cemetery. Despite the peltings of the storm, the Reformed Episcopal Church was filled with a dense throng of persons and the sidewalks in the vicinity were lined with people of both sexes unable to find standing room within the edifice.

"The casket containing the sacred dust was borne into the church by Messrs. J. H. Gray, W. H. Pinder, J. Nicholles, C. Thorne, J. McB. Smith and R. Jones. Accompanying the casket were the following-named young ladies, dressed in deep black and wearing a broad scarf of white crepe across the breast—Miss C. Charles, Miss Baxter, Miss Munro, Miss Todd, Miss Wylde and Miss Robson. The floral offerings were very pretty and lay in wreaths and bouquets on the coffin lid. Some kind friends had formed a cross of natural flowers and placed them there to symbolize the Saviour's never-dying love. The casket was placed in the aisle, just beside the pew occupied by the young lady on the last Sabbath she was privileged to spend on earth.

AFFECTING SCENE

"Bishop Cridge, in a voice choked with emotion, read the beautiful burial service—and the hymn, 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' As the solemn cadence of the hymn rolled through the buildings the sounds of sobbing became audible. There were men and women present who had lost dear ones by the wreck; the loved forms have not yet come to shore, and as they listened to the mournful strains their feelings found vent in copious floods of tears. After a short prayer, the body was returned to the hearse and the vast assemblage proceeded in carriages and on foot to the cemetery. The remains were then consigned to the grave and strong men wept for the young and the beautiful—'not lost but gone before'—as the young lady pallbearers advanced and strewed flowers on the coffin. The scene was most affecting and will never be effaced from the memories of those who witnessed it. Kind friend! True woman! Hail and farewell!"

END OF CAREER

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer continued their music and dancing in the Fort Street home and Prof. Palmer frequently led the music at the Saturday night promenade band concerts in the Drill Hall on Menzies Street. Frequently he was summoned to Cary Castle to play for a ball given by the Governor. His was a busy life and he remained active until struck by illness. The Colonist of March 15, 1887, announced his death: "Digby Palmer, who had been seriously ill for some weeks and whose demise had been expected for several days, passed peacefully away—Mr Palmer was a pioneer of this province, having arrived here in 1862. He has remained here ever since, a valued and respected citizen. He was at one time bandmaster to the East India Company and since his arrival here has had control of some of the finest bands. His absence from the community will be felt, as he was at all times a friend to those who knew him. By his death a loving wife, a son (Charles of Victoria) and two married daughters are left to mourn his loss. He was 62 years of age."

And the funeral—"the cortege left the family residence—followed by members of the I.O.O.F., headed by Prof. Haynes' Band, which played the Dead March in Saul. At the Reformed Episcopal Church the hearse was met by a large number of friends of the late gentleman and when the body had been placed on the bier in the church it was almost impossible to procure a seat. The services which were very impressive were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge, assisted by Rev. Dr Reid. The choir, under the leadership of Mr R Offerhaus, at the conclusion of the service, sang a burial hymn. The organist, Mrs. Leech, then played the Dead March in Saul, to which the coffin was conveyed to the hearse and then moved on to Ross Bay Cemetery. The pallbearers were C. Lombard, W. Wilson, J. Nicholls, T. N. Hibben, E. White and A. McLean."

Soon after her husband's death, Mrs. Palmer gave up her dancing lessons and prepared to close her Fort Street home, for her daughters wanted her with them in California. In March of 1904 she died in San Francisco.

Swill Maker In England

Old British handicrafts of one kind or another are often described in B.B.C. programs and one of the latest to be mentioned was swilling. Swilling is a very local industry confined to the Furness Peninsula of Lancashire, parts of Lakeland and the Duddon Valley. It has nothing to do with washing down steps or making food for pigs, as might perhaps be thought. Swilling is a local form of basket-making and its special feature is that the basket is made from strips of oak and not from willow. The finished swill, something like a very large half walnut shell, is used by farm workers, gardeners and road sweepers, and a special variety of it is made for the people who wander right out into the sands of Morecambe Bay and the Solway to bring in shrimps and other shellfish.

IN THE FAMILY

Swill making remains in the family and some of the families making these baskets today have been swillers for generations. Most workers prefer to use oak for their swills, but as there is not too much oak available nowadays they have to make do on occasion with sycamore, hazel or birch. Whatever the wood used the first process of "lottening" is always the same. This consists of drying the logs very thoroughly by stacking them so that the air can get to every part and afterwards boiling them for about 12 hours to make them pliable. The swiller then takes up his tar (a special knife used for the job) and cuts the logs lengthwise into thin strips. He files all the roughness away from them, cuts them into suitable lengths and they are then ready for use. The framework of a swill is made separately, of "lottened" but unboiled wood.

Experimental Farm Notes

Raspberries Need Plenty Water

MORE moisture is required to produce good yields of raspberries than for any other berry crop. For this reason raspberries cannot be successfully grown on most of the soils in Saanich. A fertile soil with plenty of Summer moisture is required, otherwise canes will lack vigor and berries will be small. On the other hand soils should be well drained to take away excess water in Winter. The lighter and more sandy soils for this reason are more suitable. Should dead canes appear then either the stock or the location should be changed. Only plants from strong healthy stock should be planted. Many varieties are available, Washington and Willamette are among the best. Both are attractive, high quality berries suitable for canning or freezing and stand handling. Being new varieties, stocks are freer from virus troubles than older sorts. The Washington has arisen from variety improvement work at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Puyallup, Wash., and the Willamette at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Corvallis, Ore.

FIELD TOMATOES

The early field tomatoes are now ripening to bring the rewards of several months' careful tending. With the ground very dry, and more fruits developing on the plants, that old trouble of blossom end rot is almost sure to crop up. The condition appears first as a water-soaked spot at the tip of the fruit opposite to the stem. A little later this area darkens and becomes shrunken. Such fruits are ruined and since in severe cases a large proportion of fruits will be affected, it is essential to do something about it quickly. All the reasons for the trouble are not well known, but locally, at least, dry soil conditions following early vigorous growth seem to lead to it most frequently. If blossom end rot is detected therefore, the planting should be given a thorough watering, so that the soil is wet to the depth of a shovel blade. Any affected fruits should, of course, be removed when detected.

EASTER LILIES

Those who have been around the Marine Drive in Victoria recently must have been greatly impressed by the fine stand of snowy-white Croft Easter lilies in full bloom along side "Lantern Lane" and Mrs. Nellie McClung's house in the Gordon Head district. From the owner's point of view—Mr Schildemeyer—who was responsible for this fine showing and their state of perfection, this is no small achievement and it must therefore be a matter of great personal satisfaction to him. Considerable satisfaction must also be derived by Mr Schildemeyer in that he is sharing in the making of a new phase of British Columbia's bulb industry. Bulbs from this field and those of others on the Island have been fast winning the approval of the English buyers, who for the past few years have not been able to obtain enough for their requirements. The indications are that the Easter lily could be a bigger factor in the bulb industry in both the home and the English market.

Okanagan Valley Becomes Man-Made Paradise

NOWHERE in Canada is man's power to manage, improve and beautify his natural surroundings better demonstrated than in the Rocky Mountain valley of the Okanagan. Fifty years ago its "benches were rocky ledges covered with sagebrush and bunch grass. These have been converted into flourishing orchards and vast vegetable patches. The land of the Ogopogo has become one of Canada's finest gardens.

FIRST ORCHARD

The valley began to bloom at the beginning of the 20th century when Lord Aberdeen, then Governor-General of Canada, bought the Coldstream Ranch at the north end of the valley and planted the first commercial orchard, writes Leonard Knott in the forthcoming issue of C-I-L Oval. Lord Aberdeen's irrigation system consisted of storing Winter snow water in nearby mountain lakes and bringing it down in canals or shallow ditches in Summer. Today, more than 50,000 acres are irrigated. The first car of Okanagan fruit was shipped in 1903. This has increased to 20,000 carloads annually which includes 10,000,000 boxes of apples alone.

MANAGED OUTPUT

Distribution is one secret of the Okanagan Valley's prosperity. From the giant switchboard in Kelowna, B.C., dispatchers of British Columbia Tree Fruits, Limited, a grower-owned company, keep in constant touch with their own distributing offices, brokers and agents across Canada. As orders are received by teletype, instructions are telephoned to growers and packing houses. All shipments are made by carload lots. As a result of this managed development in the field of distribution, Kelowna has become the largest cold storage centre in Canada with a capacity of almost 3,000,000 boxes of fruit.

Modern methods of pest control, proper cultivation, soil conservation and planned irrigation were important factors in the conversion of a profitless desert into a garden paradise.

Pansy and forget-me-not seed should be sown now. Keep flats and seed beds shaded until germination starts and then shade the seedlings.

* * *

Keep window boxes and plants in pots well watered on hot days. A pinch of pulverized sheep manure (obtainable at seed stores) will help to keep plants vigorous. Dust mildewed phlox with sulphur.

* * *

Blossoms which emit a different, often sweeter, odor after the sun has set are pinks, honeysuckle, white petunia, ten-week stock and white tobacco.

Simple Rules for Cutting Roses

By DEAN HALLIDAY

ROSE enthusiasts should memorize a few simple rules for cutting blooms, according to the All-America Rose Selections committee. The experts point out, first of all, that the removal of too much foliage can seriously undermine the strength of the plant. This is particularly true during the first season when roses need to store the greatest possible amount of energy to build up sturdy structure.

In most cases, the elimination of too much foliage results from the desire to cut long stems for effective arrangement. The best rule to keep in mind is that at least two well-developed leaves should remain between the cut and the main cane, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The cut should be made about a quarter of an inch above the leaf. This will leave at least two eyes to develop into new shoots.

Cutting spent flowers is equally important with floribunda roses as with the hybrid teas. Floribundas produce clusters of buds all of which do not bloom at the same time. When one withers, it should be removed, as illustrated, to channel nourishment to the other buds. When all of the buds in the cluster have flowers, the top of the stem should be cut back to the first leaf or plump eye.

Seed pods should not be allowed to develop on hybrid teas, for the growth of pods, or hips as they are called, uses food which should be directed toward the production of new shoots and flowers.

Many gardeners make a practice of disbudding hybrid teas, that is removing the secondary or side buds. This produces a larger, more perfect flower on the main stem, and is a "must" for exhibition purposes. Disbudding should be done as soon as the secondary buds are large enough to grasp and snap off cleanly with the fingers.

Sage Rates a Place in Garden

SAGE is such a useful herb that it is entitled to a place in the garden, large or small.

Sage can be grown from seed or young plants can be had from seed stores or nurserymen. It can be grown in a "herb corner" or in a perennial border.

Once sage has made itself at home in a garden additional plants can be propagated by means of cuttings, division or layering.

The young stems and leaves of sage are used for seasoning dressings, soups, stews, sausage and cheese. During the Summer and Fall the fresh leaves can be used while others can be dried for Winter use.

If shoots are to be used for drying they should be gathered before the flower stems develop. In fact, the foliage should not be allowed to grow too high, but should be cut off at least two or three times each year. This promotes growth of a large number of side shoots, which, in turn, are tender and especially full of flavor.

No cuttings should be made later than September if the plants are to be kept over Winter. This allows time for new growth to mature before heavy frosts come.

To keep sage plants growing neatly divide them biennially, otherwise they will become straggly. Since some varieties often bush out until they exceed three feet in diameter they should be planted at least that far apart.

Gardening Hints

After the fruits are harvested begin to cut out old and useless canes of raspberry, blackberry and other bramble bushes.

* * *

Feeding the lawn in the Fall with a balanced food and seeding bare and thin spots will result next Spring in healthy, new grass growth.

* * *

August is the time for planting new strawberry beds. Buy pot-grown plants or set out home-grown runners. Keep them shaded for a week and well watered for a month until they are established.

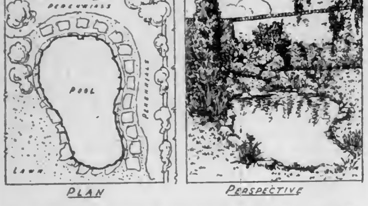
* * *

Fruits of eggplant do not set unless the plants are kept growing steadily. Sometimes pinching off the ends of the branches, leaving only two or three blossoms on a branch, helps the fruits to set.

* * *

Old peach trees which have become weakened by disease, or are dying, had best be removed. If not removed they merely serve as breeding places for insects and disease.

WATER CREATES MAGIC IN THE GARDEN



On a smooth, small site rocks and water should be handled gently with mild informality. The corner grade may be built up slightly to create two water levels with a small cascade between. Water supply can be handled as illustrated in this series of garden suggestions. The wall indicated might be substituted for a fence or hedge but a wall gives more privacy. It might be block painted or stuccoed with a brick coping. Such a pool gives ample scope for a naturalistic treatment and will grow in beauty year after year.

Fall Plantings of Grape Vines

IN most sections of the country Fall planting of grape vines will prove equally successful with Spring planting. In selecting the varieties however, take care to obtain grapes which are known to grow well in your area.

First rule in planting grape vines is to dig the hole deep enough to admit the roots without curling them.

After placing the grape vines in the holes, firm the soil well over the roots. As a general rule it is well to plant grape vines about two inches deeper than they originally grew in the nursery.

Before planting prune back the top of the vine to within three or four buds of the roots, and trim any overly long stragglers from the roots.

For trellis or arbor culture of grapes, a good planting distance is six or eight feet apart. For field culture, the plants are placed about ten feet apart on trellis rows six to eight feet apart.

As the grape vines grow they should be trained off the ground, either on the framework of an arbor, or on wires strung between trellis posts.

In the first year after planting grape vines should be pruned so only the strongest cane is left and that cane is cut back to leave only two buds. Strong two-year vines should be pruned to one cane which is left long enough to reach the first wire on the trellis. Weak vines should be pruned to one cane with two buds.

"Hams" Go Mobile

Victoria's Radio Amateurs Putting Sets on the Road

By GORDON FORBES

THE radio hams, the most rabid fanatics of all hobbyists, are going mobile.

This trend, which has been very definite in the United States for several years, is now having its effect on Victoria's amateur radio operators.

When a motorist sees a car driving along the street with a long aerial at the rear or on top, nowadays it doesn't mean a policeman is driving that car. It may be a radio ham who has gone mobile by installing radio equipment in his car.

("Ham" is the affectionate, self-imposed nickname for "amateur radio operator." The story goes that "ham" is an abbreviation of the Cockney, "hamateur." That may or may not be. The fact is the name "ham" has stuck.)

In Victoria, at least three hams have short-wave sets in their cars. The man owning probably the most powerful mobile equipment in Canada is Jack Betts, a retired naval officer of 26 years' service in naval communications.

Mr Betts says "I'm just a dabbler compared to some of the boys in town such as Chris Brown, Ron Hough, Art Baxter, Nobby Clarke and scores of others who are technicians of the highest order."

SURPRISE CONTACT

Driving home from his downtown office the other day, Mr. Betts wanted to see who he could raise on short wave. He gave his call letters and as he drove past the intersection of Yates and Quadra Streets received a reply from Palmer, Saskatchewan.

"Hearing you loud and clear, VE7EB," came the reply from Saskatchewan. A typical ham radio conversation about everything in general ensued.

"By the way," said the Saskatchewan ham, "Do you live anywhere near Saanich Road? My parents live there. I'd sure like to talk to them."

Jack told his fellow ham he could go over to Saanich Road after lunch. He did so, talking to the Palmer operator en route and called on the surprised couple. In a matter of minutes they were chatting to their son, and soon his wife and all the grandchildren.

This is just one of the things accomplished with mobile outfits. A much more important and useful role can be carried out by hams during disasters, and that is just what the hams are thinking about these days. One of the most important individuals in any civil defence planning is the radio ham. Radio amateur gave invaluable assistance during the Fraser Valley and Manitoba floods, and in other parts of the world where disaster has struck radio hams have been relied on greatly.

The mobile ham believes he would be extremely useful in the event of a disaster which resulted in a power failure and cutting of communications. If the power failed, the ham uses his gasoline-driven generator or battery-operated dynamotor. His medium-powered transmitter (as in the case of Mr Betts) would put out about 100 watts.

ON LONG RANGE

Mr. Betts has talked with other hams all over the continent. He is confident he will be able to communicate with other countries. When the equipment was installed in his house he talked by phone to nearly 100 countries. One Victoria ham, E. Wadsworth, Oliver Street has talked to nearly 200 different stations in many countries with his powerful station. Local hams work with the South Vancouver Island Rangers and have offered their services in civil defence planning.

"Amateur radio, probably the most fascinating and useful hobby in the world, numbers thousands of people in all walks of life. In the Victoria area there are at least 100 licensed operators, more than 50 per cent being active. The youngest operator is Juanita Wood, aged 13, a protege of VE7APK, operated by Jack Weeks, who now is in the army. Juanita is very keen and has already contacted 37 countries by key.

SAVES A LIFE

In December, 1948, Betts picked up a broadcast from Cuba. It was an emergency call. A patient was dying and a certain kind of medicine could not be found nearer than Miami, Florida. Because of prevailing conditions, the Cuban radio amateur was unable to make contact with Miami, and asked anyone listening to do so.

An Arctic station, which had picked up part of the message, relayed it to Miami. Betts immediately supplemented the call with further information. Later, amateurs in Argentina and Winnipeg acted as relay stations from Cuba to Miami. The ham in Miami was able to arrange for the necessary medicine, which was flown to the Cuban hospital and saved a woman's life. Doctors at the hospital in Cuba later sent messages of thanks to the hams for their help.

EARLY EFFORTS

According to Alex Reid, Canadian general manager of the American Relay League, amateur radio started at the turn of the century. It is the oldest branch of radio, for in those days, all radio experimenters were amateurs. They worked alone and most of the time were not even aware of each other's existence. However, about 1906, the apparatus and techniques had improved so that operators could communicate over a distance of several miles. Those experimenters in a large city, for example began to get acquainted with others in the same area.

By 1909 recalls Mr Reid, radio clubs were springing up. In time this lead to conflict with government and commercial services. The situation was aggravated by the fact that in early days and even today, many amateurs had equipment superior to some of the commercial stations. Interference between services soon became a serious problem and the first radio laws were enacted in 1912. They made provisions for amateur stations but limited their operation to a frequency of 1,500 kilocycles. At that time it was thought that frequencies of this order or higher were useless for long-distance communication. In spite of unfavorable restrictions, the number of amateur radio stations increased. With the outbreak of the Great War, all amateur stations were shut down, but many operators joined up and did excellent communication work. After the war the amateurs returned to their barren 1,500-kilocycle region, and used their war knowledge to investigate almost unexplored frequencies above 1,500 kilocycles. From then on amateur radio entered its true domain, says Mr Reid.

ACROSS ATLANTIC

In 1923, the first two-way amateur communication across the Atlantic was accomplished on about 2,700 kilocycles. Soon amateurs all over the world were in communication with all continents on frequencies as high as 15 megacycles.

"Thus, short-wave radio was developed by the amateurs. They had been given these frequencies in 1912 as the worthless end of the band, and they turned them into channels useful for the longest distances in the world," Mr Reid asserts.

The head of the British Admiralty technical mission during the World War credited the radio amateurs with a great share in the victory of the Battle of the Atlantic by their development of the ultra-high frequencies which enabled allied radar to outdo the enemy subs.

JACK BETTS, a former naval communications officer who served 26 years, is shown above checking a transmitter in the rear compartment of his car. His late model car could be considered a "nine cylinder" job. The car has eight cylinders and in the rear compartment is a one-cylinder gas-driven generator supplying power for radio equipment. All operating takes place from the car's instrument panel with only three controls. Complete shielding was necessary to eliminate ignition noise.

From Victoria to Lagos in Seventy Days

By A. R. MAURER

IT was just the other day, it seems, that a friend of mine stopped me as I walked down Fort Street with "So you're going to Nigeria. Where on earth is that?" At that time my knowledge of Africa was rather limited but I managed to convey that Nigeria is the biggest British colony situated in West Africa, bordered by French territory on three sides and by the Atlantic in the south and lies north of the Equator. That much I knew. I had still a great deal to learn.

We left Victoria on a pleasant sunny day on the C.P.R.'s new Princess Patricia and one of the first things which caught our eyes was the beautiful panelling, labelled "Nigerian cherry." That is a misnomer if there ever was one. It would be a real treat to bite into a crisp Saanich cherry out in the African tropics. Instead, we must satisfy ourselves with coconuts, papayas, mangoes, citrus and other tropical fruits.

Vancouver to Halifax took us six days by train and as we joggled through the prairies, each and every beat of the wheels on the tracks took us farther away from home, but we were too enthralled with the prospects of our new adventure to even think of being homesick.

ATLANTIC CROSSING

The Atlantic crossing on the old Aquitania was not up to our expectations. The passenger list was small and the accommodation still that of a troop transport. The seas were quite smooth but it was overcast and cool most of the time.

Our wait in England for passage to Africa was very enjoyable. Southampton and district, Bournemouth, Winchester and London all impressed us with different phases of British life. We acted like real tourists and crammed in as much as we could during our month's stay. We were granted all the special rations, and privileges provided for North American visitors but could not help noticing the austerity and annoying little hardships that the people of the Old Country have to endure.

IN LONDON TOWN

Our adventure really started when the Colonial Office booked passage for us, my wife, our seven-months-old son and myself, on the good ship MacGregor Laird. We were driven right through the East End of London and to the docks along the Thames. It took us hours to reach our particular pier and as we drove by the forests of masts, half-hidden behind the endless storage sheds, we wondered if each new ship would be ours. Finally the bus passed through a guarded gate and into a warehouse and there we were. Two new passenger-cargo ships stood high out of the water, unloading. Between them, heavily laden and decks almost flush with the wharf, was a ripe old tub. Her black hull was streaked with rust and her white superstructure looked coated with London soot. This was it.

OUT TO SEA

That night we slipped away down stream, feeling our way cautiously between endless lines of busy ships from all parts of the world. We noticed some that were built in Canada and told ourselves that they must have been built by V.M.D. or Yarrows and we cast fond looks upon them.

The first day at sea found us in the Channel, and for once it was not rough. The engines of the MacGregor Laird chugged away mightily. Standing on the bridge gave us some apprehension as to her sea-worthiness as we noticed that the fore and after ends moved up while the central portion was down and vice versa. Just before lunch, as we considered packing away our Dramamine pills, the engines stopped and for an hour we drifted and tossed about at the mercy of the currents and wind. The ship rolled steadily and spoiled more than one of the thirteen passengers' appetites.

BAY OF BISCAY

The Bay of Biscay did not disappoint us and kept a lovely storm brewing for two days, making the ship pitch and roll as it never had before. Our cabin was right over the galley and the sound of breaking china and falling pots and pans kept us from sleeping most of one night. The ship carried a good amount of cargo, consisting of large acid vats wrapped in straw in metal baskets, a mobile crane, a large truck, a 40-foot launch and railway tracks. The tossing of the ship and the seas that swept over the decks, broke about half of the acid jars, covering the foredeck with concentrated hydrochloric acid.

DAKAR REACHED

Our first glimpse of Africa was Dakar. Here the ship docked for 24 hours to unload a few cars and to take on fuel. We had an opportunity to go ashore on French territory and met our first native Africans. The usual hawkers and loafers congregated by the pier sheds, and we had a grand time with one of them bargaining for a carved wooden head. The bargaining was kept up to the last minute, and as the gangplank was being lifted, we got our ornament for a flat fifty of Craven A's.

Heading south and then east towards Takoradi, the days became hotter and stickier. We were getting our first taste of a tropical climate. We skirted the coast of the continent at a distance of about 15 miles and came across a number of native dugouts, their occupants waving and shouting for bread as we passed by them. After a total of eight engine breakdowns, the ship reached Takoradi Roads and we found ourselves sitting outside the harbor, waiting for a berth. We were in the company of a dozen other ships, the one next to us was the Ss Calgary, having come from an east coast port. We soon became very bored and hot, doing exactly nothing.

AFRICAN WAY

On the second day most of the passengers took the ship's launch into port and after arguing with two taxi drivers, we were driven round the city in their baby Fords. As tourists, we were quite intrigued with the native leopard dance, the public market and the tiny filthy shops. We took the opportunity of buying some shorts and sandals as our Victoria-bought clothes were getting to be much too hot.

The third day, a gang of Africans came aboard to chip off rust and paint, and they kept up a deafening hammering all through the daylight hours. One day, just after sunset, a lovely postwar mail boat came into the Roads and anchored just ahead of us. We could hear dance music on the after decks and could see couples having a good time. The next day, we learned with joy that we would be transferred to this passenger ship, the Mv Accra. It was a great pleasure to get into our new cabin, four times as large as the cubicle on the MacGregor Laird. The ship had lounges and bars, a writing room and a library and a refreshing swimming pool. We sailed within an hour of coming aboard and were in Lagos, Nigeria 24 hours later.

Making Safes Burglar Proof

ARTHUR HART (above), one of the oldest employees of the United Kingdom safemaking firm of Chubb & Sons, London, examines an old-time safe lock. His job is to test the prototype of each safe produced and attempt to break it open.

ONE OF THE strongroom doors (left) built for the Bank Malli, Tehran, to guard the Peacock Throne and the Crown Jewels of Persia. Each door weighs ten tons, is 20 inches (50 centimetres) thick.

EVEN the most respectable and law abiding of citizens will confess cheerfully to an interest in crime—or in the methods used to combat it. There are, indeed, few subjects which have such popular appeal as the war which is waged ceaselessly, day and night, between the criminal and the forces of law and order. It is a well-matched struggle, and others apart from police and criminals are engaged in it; for the tireless research work done behind the scenes by locksmith or safemaker has its own importance and interest in this unending battle against crime.

FOR CROWN JEWELS

The details of the latest safes and strongrooms in which are kept some of the world's treasures make fascinating reading. To Tehran, capital of Persia, for instance, has just got strongroom equipment for housing the Persian crown jewels and other securities. The main entrance doors (which weigh ten tons each) are secured by two key locks and a combination lock capable of 100,000,000 combinations. There is provision also for a time lock which, when in operation, ensures that the door cannot be opened except at a predetermined time, even if the other three locks have been opened. Another interesting feature about the strongroom is that concrete walls, floors and roof are reinforced with twisted steel "tangbars." Any burglar so optimistic as to try and break through walls or roof would come across these "tangbars" at different angles, and be forced to change tools and angle of approach so constantly as to make his task almost impossible.

SELLING TIME

And yet even the makers of this piece of equipment do not claim that there is such a thing as a burglar-proof safe. For (they point out) if metal can be melted into a certain shape by certain means in a certain time, it can be melted out of it by the same means in the same time. And so all the safemaker can do—although it is enough—is to sell his customer time, saying in effect, "With the best methods used by burglars today, this door could not be cut through in under 24, 48 or 96 hours."

The Tehran strongroom was made by a London company of locksmiths and safemakers who made its first lock in 1818, later making the cage which protected the Koh-i-noor diamond at the 1851 Exhibition in London, and the lock for the first pillar box in the world in 1855. It made, too, the casket of natural oak lined with stainless steel in which Queen Mary's carpet was recently sent to the United States.

SECURITY MINDED

Safemakers such as this firm are naturally enough, security minded. They do not offer minute details of the safes and strongrooms they make, nor where all of them are situated. But I was told at the company's head office in London of the two or three respectable safebreakers it employs, men with more than one generation of honest service to their credit, whose duty it is, as a test, to assault new prototype safes with every weapon known to the underworld. I heard, too, of one of the latest developments in security—the safe door with four independent combination locks which has to be locked and unlocked by four people, each of whom must choose and remember his own combination. The figures on each lock are covered by a magnifying glass and seen only by the person standing immediately in front of it. As a further safeguard the door can, of course, be fitted with a time lock.

SAFE FROM FIRE

Side by side with the development of safes to withstand the cracksman has gone the development of those to withstand fire. For fire is now often enough a greater danger than the burglar. The result is that, as far as business records at least are concerned, the tendency is to make fireproof the files or cupboards in which records are normally kept. If there is a fire alarm all that is necessary is to close the doors of the cabinets; many have sliding doors so balanced that they close at a finger touch.

SPECTACULAR TESTS

The company has three almost spectacular fire tests for its cabinets. In a typical high temperature test a cabinet was put in a furnace for over two hours at a temperature of 2,172 degrees Fahrenheit; the contents of the cabinet, books and papers remained intact. In a typical duration test the temperature of the furnace was raised to 1,770 degrees F., the cabinet remaining in the furnace for five hours, for four of which it was red hot. The paper contents, again, were intact on removal. In a typical fall test the safe was in the furnace for two hours at a temperature of 1,850 degrees F., was picked up as a white hot mass and dropped 20 feet (six metres) on to the floor below; then replaced in the furnace, raised to a temperature of 1,900 degrees F., cooled with water, and opened to reveal its contents quite unharmed. Such tests are regularly applied to this company's products.

IN WORLD WAR

Yet no severer tests could be devised than those which safes suffered during the World War. In office after office which was burned to the ground such fireproof safes were subject to intense heat for days on end, falling through two or three floors to be buried among burning debris in the basement; yet time after time they were dug out with their contents uninjured. It is hardly surprising that literally every country in the world receives from this London firm equipment similar to that which has passed unharmed through the fires of war.

Tips for Teens

By ELINOR WILLIAMS

THERE'S no magic charm that will make you popular and make you seem grown-up enough for the privileges that you want so much. True, a pretty or handsome face helps, but it's mostly a matter of using your head—a combination of good manners, good taste and good sense.

It's not such a big order either. Actually a little common sense counts terrifically simply by helping you do and say what's kindest to others. Consideration for others is the basis of correct manners, too. Little things like this, for example:

1. Don't urge a friend or date to stay out later than she is supposed to. It puts her in an embarrassing spot and leads to trouble or complete loss of dates. Instead, accept the fact that all good things must end and, if you've had fun, make plans for another evening instead of prolonging that one.

2. Let your date know if you're delayed in reaching your destination at the expected time. Same goes for parents, dentists and everybody else who expects you at a certain place at a certain time. If there's going to be a delay that would make them wonder or worry about you, phone at once to let them know what's what.

3. Say goodnight and leave your friend's or date's home at a reasonable hour. Don't wear out your welcome by staying too late because you're having fun or simply by forgetting all about time.

4. Let your parents know where you are going, and if you change your plans let them in on the change by making a quick phone call. It's not sissy; it's consideration. Parents like to be kept informed on your whereabouts. It's part of good parenthood, not a peculiarity.

Elephant Walks by Night One-Ton "Beast" a Robot

PEOPLE of the small village of Thaxted, Essex, England, can sleep peacefully at night with the knowledge that the "elephant mystery" has been solved.

For weeks a huge nocturnal apparition, which made strange whirring noises, was seen walking through the dark streets of the village. Those who saw it were prepared to swear it was an elephant, easily eight feet high and about 12 feet long. They were right. Now the secret is out. The monster is the world's first mechanical walking elephant, and its midnight strolls were the final tests in preparation for its first public showing the other day.

ENGINE DRIVEN

This robot elephant weighs just over a ton and is driven by an 8-H.P. engine. Its four legs are mounted on independent oil-controlled points which enable it to pick its feet right off the ground and add a terrifying realism to an already amazingly life-like model.

The inventor, Mr. Frank Stuart, does not intend to restrict himself to robot elephants for this new system of propulsion. He is now working on a prototype of a great amphibious tractor which will be capable of towing unusually heavy loads. Experiments are also being carried out for using the system for agricultural machinery.

PLEASURE RIDE

The robot elephant gave eight excited children and its driver a comfortable, steady ride at its first demonstration. The driver sits over the elephant's neck where there is a steering tiller and normal car controls. There are four gears and a reverse, and in perfect conditions a speed of more than 20 M.P.H. may be reached. The elephant is said to have a greater tipping angle than a London bus.

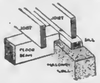
Orders for five of these elephants have already been received from the United States, to be completed by the end of September, two for Canada, one for Australia and, bringing coals to Newcastle, one for Africa. Each elephant costs $3,700 to buy and consists of 9,000 parts.

The world's first walking elephant is now carrying children along the promenade at Margate, a coastal resort in the south of England. Mr Stuart and his small factory of 40 employees are now turning to the job of completing their 1951 elephant which will be able to swim as well as walk.

Planning To Build?

FLOOR BEAMS HELP SUPPORT THE INNER ENDS OF FLOOR JOISTING

Following the installation of the foundation sills, a girder or floor beam, laid crosswise and embedded in the foundation walls, is used to support the inner ends of the floor joists. This is either a large timber or several planks nailed together and set on edge. It takes the place of an interior foundation wall and eliminates bearing partitions in the basement.



Bearing posts or columns, set at equal intervals, support the girder and prevent sagging. These may be of steel, wood or masonry. The bottom ends of wood posts should be set a few inches above the basement floor to reduce the possibility of decay.

The spacing of beams depends on the size and length of the floor joists. The usual is from eight to 14 feet. If they are too far apart, the joists must be larger and the beams stronger. This increases cost.

As it is desirable to place the beam directly under wall partitions, room arrangement usually determines the location. The size of the beam depends on its length and the total load to be placed on it. It also varies with the species and grade of wood used. In 1½-story or 2-story houses, the size should be determined from standard engineering formula. This is usually stated in the local building by-laws. If not, then the National Building Code applies. A general guide for bungalows is to be found in the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation building standards. The beam should be long enough to rest not less than four inches on each foundation wall.

(This is the ninth in a series of articles written in the interest of readers who are contemplating building or buying a house.)

The Witchcraft Killer Kept His Secret

Murder of a Recluse Led Scotland Yard Through a Maze of Likely Suspects, but Not a Trace of the Slayer Was Ever Found

By EX-SUPT. BOB FABIAN
Of Scotland Yard

ANYBODY can become a witch. All you do is recite an ancient spell that conjures up the devil.

You then dip a quill pen in blood from your veins, sign an agreement selling him your soul. He gives you a silver coin in token, and leaves with you a cat, a bird, and a black dog which will act as your fiendish servant, and obey your commands.

Such is the ritual of black witchery, and you should be warned that it is an offence under the Witchcraft Act of 1725 which is still unrepealed upon the statute books.

When you become a witch you can put the evil eye on your neighbors, make their cattle die, their crops rot.

SHADOW OF MEON HILL

You do not believe such nonsense, and neither do I. Yet in the picturesque Tudor village of Lower Quinton, its thatched roofs golden among the folding blue Cotswold hills, they speak of witches with a wry grin and many people will not pass from Bidford down Hillborough-lane for fear of a headless horseman and a ghostly woman in white.

On the hilltops around Lower Quinton are circles of stones where witches are reputed to hold sabbaths, and it was under the shadow of Meon Hill, not far from the stone circle of the whispering knights, that on Valentine's Day of 1945 a rheumaticky, gnarled old man was found murdered, eight miles from Stratford-on-Avon, Warwickshire.

THE HUNT BEGINS

A young woman found the body at early dusk. Before that same falling light had become darkness the officers of Warwickshire Constabulary were already taking photographs. And by midnight Professor James Webster, of the West Midland Forensic Science Laboratory, was examining the corpse by the glare of his torch.

I remember that night as one of serene sky and frosty stars. I had walked home feeling pleased with myself. After only a month in charge of the Flying Squad, we had arrested a notoriously violent gang with £4,000 worth of stolen goods. It was 1 a.m. as I walked up my Surrey garden path, blissfully considering bed.

My bulldog, Buller, waddled from his kitchen kennel to inquire the chances of a biscuit. I fed him, rumpled his ears. Then I saw the note under the telephone: "Telephone the C.I.D. commander." Warwickshire's chief constable had sought the aid of Scotland Yard.

I set my alarm for 5 a.m., phoned the night-duty inspector at Central Office, to have somebody to check the torches in one of the murder bags.

NINE MURDER BAGS

There are nine brown leather murder bags on the C.I.D. superintendent's shelf at Central Office, New Scotland Yard. Each is ready packed, with every device from rubber gloves for handling the corpse, to handcuffs for pinioning the murderer. My bag also held a kind of little burglar's outfit of screwdriver, awl, nails, steel hammer, wrench and a traveling ink bottle, non-spillable.

In Lower Quinton Village, as our police car halted by the churchyard, it was not yet dawn. The headlamps lit night-dew on the bleak February hedgerows. Oil wicks glowed softly in cottage windows.

"They're waking up," said Superintendent Spooner. He was from Warwickshire police, had met us at Leamington.

"And eating breakfast," added my assistant, Sergeant Albert Webb, enviously. I had snatched him from deep slumber. (He is now an inspector, recently engaged on the High murder, is one of the most astute and cheerful investigators in the murder squad.)

In the field under Meon Hill a young constable stood guard over thick clogged bloodstains upon the grass, matted with hawthorn twigs.

IT HAPPENED BEFORE

The dead man was Charles Walton, aged 74, a recluse. His little cottage stood a couple of fields away. He had lived frugally, worked as a hedger, was gnarled and faltering with rheumatism.

"What motive?" I inquired briskly. "Robbery—revenge—a quarrel?"

"The work of a maniac?" said Sergeant Webb, considering the hayfork.

Superintendent Spooner gave us a queer smile. "Well," he hesitated. "Perhaps you'd better look at this." It was a book, "Folk Lore, Old Customs and Superstitions in Shakespeareland," by J. Harvey Bloom, M.A.

Puzzled, I read:

"In 1875 . . . a young man killed an old woman named Ann Turner with a hay-fork because he believed she had bewitched him.

I blinked. Superintendent Spooner put another book in my hand, "and this." It was "Warwickshire," by Clive Holland.

". . . A man named John Haywood who stabbed to death with a pitchfork an old woman, exclaiming that he would kill all the sixteen witches in Long Compton . . . his mode of killing was evidently a survival of the ancient Anglo-Saxon custom of dealing with witches by means of 'stacung,' or sticking spikes in them."

"YOU WAIT AND SEE"

Sergeant Webb laid a mock sympathetic hand upon Superintendent Spooner's shoulder. "The mad, hectic life of the country is proving too much for you, sir," he said.

Alec Spooner, a highly scientific policeman, smiled patiently. "You wait and see, my lad!" he said.

By afternoon we had brought the 20th century to Lower Quinton like a cold shower-bath. An Avro Anson plane from the R.A.F. airfield at Leamington buzzed low over Meon Hill, taking photographs. In fields and hedges, khaki-clad men of the Royal Engineers walked slowly with mine-detectors that sang shrilly into their earphones. I had set them seeking an old tin watch that was missing from the dead man's property and which might possibly have a murderer's fingermark upon it.

At West Midland Forensic Science Laboratory, police experts were examining the dead man's garments. Radio cars whizzed to and fro . . . messages chattered between Stratford and the Thames Embankment.

I was fixing up a huge wall map in the Stratford police H.Q. from the aerial photos. They showed even the bloodstains, the trodden grass around the murder scene—and every twig for a full mile in all directions.

I had maps, little colored flags, threads. First, I plotted the last hours of the dead man's life, his movements by the time table on the map. Next would be the turn of each suspect.

WE INTERVIEWED 493

And where the paths crossed, murderer and victim, or where the alibis proved shaky, the map would show. It was the latest Hendon detective school method.

There were 1,045 prisoners of war at Long Marston P.O.W. Camp only two miles distant. Italians, Germans, Ukrainians, Slavs. I phoned the Yard for Detective-Sergeant David Saunders, of the Special Branch, who spoke all these languages fluently.

The 493 villagers of Lower Quinton, Upper Quinton and Admington, Webb and I decided we would tackle personally.

Witchcraft murder, indeed! We had photo planes in the sky, mine detectors groping with invisible rays below ground. We had linguists, scientists. I had the enthusiastic help of the entire Warwickshire Constabulary and all the resources of Scotland Yard.

My assistant was one of the department's brightest men—and there was even the murder bag! I do not suppose any criminal investigator was better equipped to solve the simple murder of an old man with a hedger's knife and hayfork, for the robbery of an old tin watch!

BLACK DOG—THEN TERROR

We soon found a suspect, a swarthy Italian. Mates had detected him scrubbing blood from his coat. And John Messer, a baker's roundsman, driving near the murder scene, had actually seen him crouched in a ditch, wiping fresh blood off his hands!

We sped the suspect's bloodstained coat to Birmingham laboratory with samples of the victim's blood, for matching.

"Witchcraft murder," I said to Sergeant Webb. "Really . . ."

We ordered a group of R.E. to search the hedge where the Italian had been seen, and soon the thin, insect whine of their mine detectors grew to a shriek!

They had found something. "The old tin watch?" I asked quietly. They shook their heads. "No, sir—rabbit snares."

At almost the same instant, a police motor cyclist arrived from Stratford. "The laboratory report, sir—the stains on the suspect's jacket are rabbit's blood."

NEVER ADMIT DEFEAT

We were not defeated. There were bootmarks in the field peculiarly studded. We took plaster casts, traced each boot to its owner. All these people proved innocent.

We made our investigations in the village from door to door. There were lowered eyes, reluctance to speak except for talk of bad crops—a heifer that died in a ditch. But what had that to do with Charles Walton? Nobody would say.

Once, a black dog came running down Meon Hill. A moment later a farm lad followed. "Looking for that dog, son?" I said.

He went pale. "Dog, mister?" "A black dog." And without further word he stumbled off in his heavy earth-clogged farm boots. While I stared after him, Superintendent Spooner said quietly: "There's a local legend of a man who saw a black dog on this hill. It turned into a headless woman who rustled past him in a black silk dress—and next day his sister died!"

"Who was he?" I said wonderingly.

"His name was Charles Walton!"

SILENCE IN A PUB

That afternoon a police car ran over a dog. Next day, another heifer died in a ditch. And when Albert Webb and I walked into the village pub that evening silence fell like a physical blow.

Cottage doors were shut in our faces. Even the most innocent witnesses seemed unable to meet our eyes. Some became ill after we spoke to them.

We persevered, took 4,000 statements, traced tinkers, gypsies. We sent 29 samples of clothing, hair, etc., of various suspects to Birmingham laboratories for analysis. It availed nothing. I had tramps detained in Somerset, boot-repairers questioned in Salisbury.

WE HAD TO GIVE UP

But the murder remained unsolved. And one night, when we had waited all day to question one man who might have aided us, I said: "I'm inquiring about the late Charles Walton . . ." He interrupted me gruffly.

"He's been dead and buried a month now—what are you worrying about?" Then he shut his door.

So we had to leave it. Maybe somebody in that tranquil village off the main road knows who killed Charles Walton, who lies buried among the neat grey tombstones of Lower Quinton churchyard. Maybe one day somebody will talk.

Not to me, a stranger from London, perhaps. But I happen to know that in the offices of Warwickshire Constabulary the case is not yet closed.

Next Week: A West End forgery racket—and the man who said "Thanks" when he got 11 years.

Improving Payoff Shots

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

"SHOW me just one thing that will improve my game," demanded an irate pupil. He had struggled for weeks without improvement in his scoring.

He was anything but a good pupil. Seldom did he give anything like the proper attention to any of my instructions, yet he expected success. The inconsistency of his stand is well illustrated in the way he carried on with his short game.

When he managed to get his ball near or on the green he really went to town with his scramble to make up for the bad shots he made up to that point. The antics he went through before making a short approach shot or a putt would make a nervous wreck of anybody watching him. And he didn't do much better with those shots.

FOLLOW ROUTINE

To simplify and make positive his technique I insisted that he follow a routine in playing all such shots.

First, I had him take his grip while the clubhead rested in a natural position on the ground.

Second, place the clubhead in the proper position on the ground just behind the ball while taking his stance and general starting position.

Third, waggle easily and then swing the clubhead back without letting it freeze on the ground. Not once did he follow this routine. He was a genius at avoiding it. In addition to mixing up the order of doing these things he kept changing the positions of his fingers on the club or his feet on the ground.

Even when I showed him where and when he was changing his grip and stance he insisted that he was not trying to do anything but follow the prescribed routine. He claimed he was completely unaware of any and all departures from it.

Who was he? He was any golfer who can't see what he does because he doesn't look in the right direction.

You and Your Car

* * * * * *

By FREDERICK C. RUSSELL

Motorists who think they don't need help should remember that even the car needs a self-starter.

EDUCATION A LA HIGHWAY

KEEPING your eyes open when traveling by car can be a slow but sure route to a better general education. It is said that the great magician, Thurston, learned how to read by looking out of box cars at signs along railroad tracks. Anyone with a car can do a lot better, considering all the information that is dispensed by means of sign language, but it calls for an inquiring mind and an observing eye. Then there is patience. In the college of the highway you need to stop to read historical inscriptions on monuments. You need to ask questions and be willing to turn off the beaten track to visit an occasional shrine or factory or historical town. Some tourists take all the alternate routes and miss much of the color of strange cities. They are trying to make time when actually they are letting opportunities slip by. A liberal education is passing with the scenery, but how few people are ready to digest it?

CHECKS ON THE PUMP

A fuel pump caan be tested in either of two ways. The simpler plan is to disconnect the line at the carburetor and crank the motor for a moment or two. Fuel should immediately come out the end of the line. In a repair shop they would put a pressure gauge at the end of the line and tell you exactly how the pump rates. The other method is to check the suction of the pump at its inlet end. A gauge can be used for this, too. Or the line can be dipped into a can of gasoline and the pump arm operated manually. The pump is all right if it can lift the fuel a distance of 30 inches with about 40 strokes on the pump arm.

DIPPING INTO HISTORY

The following cars are by no means among the lesser known in the long list of automobiles that are no more, but the chances are that many of your friends won't remember that motorists once proudly owned Appersons, Mitchells, Americans, Cole Aero-Eights, Standard Eights, R. & V. Knights, Dixie Flyers, Lexingtons, Clevelands, Jewetts, Roamers, Pilots and Commonwealths. Then there was the H.C.S., named for Harry C. Stutz who also had the distinction of being the subject of the famous Stutz.

TEST FOR BEARINGS

Whether any of the engine's bearings are loose enough to require replacing can be determined by forcing oil through the oiling system with the aid of a special pump while the oil pan is down. This pump can be a fruit-tree sprayer (very clean, of course). Attach the end of the tubing to the oil pump outlet and pump to about 50 pounds pressure. Directions on the outside of the sprayer will show how many strokes are needed to build up this pressure. Oil will ooze out freely around bearings that are too loose.

BOOKS

By W. T. GALT

Vancouver's irrepressible Eric Nicol, who is now vacationing between script-writing chores with the British Broadcasting Corporation, has written a new series of humorous sketches which will be published in book form by Ryerson this Autumn.

His previous book, "Sense and Nonsense," was published in 1947 and promptly went into three editions.

In what he calls a "ready-made review for hurried critics," Mr. Nicol has summed up his forthcoming book, "The Roving I," this way:

"Mr. Nicol's book restricts itself to Europe, and not all of Europe at that. He has made no attempt to crawl under the Iron Curtain. Indeed, there is little evidence that the author is politically aware at all, and he reaches nearly all his conclusions by bicycle.

"When he speaks of Marx, for example, we can usually assume that he means Groucho, while the Schopenhauer referred to is apparently one "Mousie" Schopenhauer, a free-lance purveyor of alcohol beverages in Montreal.

"I would like to thank my wife for her unfailing help and encouragement during the preparation of this book," Nicol concludes. "But I'm not married."

High praise for a Canadian author comes from Erwin D. Canham, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, who writes in The New York Times Book Review of Lionel Gebler's new "Reprieve From War" that:

"Lionel Gebler is a well-trained, hard-thinking Canadian historian. In 1942 he wrote "Peace by Power," which today may be regarded as something of an authentic prophecy.

Now in "Reprieve From War"—a brief and vigorous book—he applies the lessons of predominant power to the major elements of the 1950 situation.

"His book might well have been written after, rather than before, the Korean fighting, for it is specifically applicable to the problems we now face all around the Communist perimeter."

Books for Royal Navy libraries are traditionally selected by the Director of Victualling, and the selections have recently given rise to some complaints in the House of Commons.

Mr. W. Wyatt, in a question in the House, asked: "Would it not be better to get some other officer to select the books who would buy them on a basis of quality rather than weight?"

"Literature is food for thought," replied the Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty as quoted in The New York Times, "and the Director of Victualling is perhaps not altogether inappropriate. I am not at all sure that in view of the state of the modern novel that it is not a bad idea to buy them by the ounce."

Robert Penn Warren, whose "World Enough and Time" is soaring rapidly to the top of the best-seller lists, has this advice for young writers, as published in the August Mademoiselle:

"Buy a typewriter, learn to type, then fall to. Laziness is the most common fault of all writers.

"Seek criticism. Watch your friends' faces as they read your work and don't be discouraged. The world is going to squelch, and you should learn early."

The first German novel of the World War will appear here some time next month.

It is "The Odds Against Us," which publishers McLeland & Stewart declare is written by Hans Werner Richter, the moving force of Group 47, a circle of German writers founded in Munich that year.

The publishers say that the writers in the group belong to no particular school of writing, but all believe that the arts were killed during the Hitler period and that they must revive creative work by self-criticism and discussion.

LOUISE A. STINETORF

Fiction Reads Like Fact In "White Witch Doctor"

"White Witch Doctor," by Louise A. Stinetorf (Ryerson, $3.75).

If this book told a true story, it would be a fine document on medical missionary work in the Belgian Congo.

It is packed with adventure and loaded with interesting detail, but it is fiction—a point which jarred this reviewer every few paragraphs. The tale rings so true—doubtless based on massive research—that it comes as a shock to think it never happened at all.

NOT SERIOUS

This is the book's one defect, and it is not serious.

Otherwise, it will appeal to anyone with a drop of adventure tingling in his veins.

The story is that of an American spinster who cherishes a dream of missionary work in Africa. After years of caring for a large and slightly over-dependent family, she goes to work on her ambition. The only way a woman her age is able to get a mission position, she finds, is as a trained nurse. Therefore, when she is nearly 40 years old, she enrolls for training in a hospital.

From this point on, the scene is Africa.

ADVENTURES

There is no plot to the story that follows, and it scarcely comes under the heading of sketches. Rather, it is a chronicle of life and adventures in a land where pythons fall from the ceiling and the roof is full of insects; where native medicines are used by white doctors, and witch doctors send their hopeless cases to the missionaries.

Ellen Burton went to Africa as a nurse, but found before long that she was to be a physician and surgeon as well.

FIGHTS ON

She stays in the Belgian Congo—except for her furloughs—for 25 years, and comes to regard it as her home much more than is America. She founds new medical mission stations, endures disaster and fights on against the endless list of native ailments.

In the end she is ordered back to her own country, despite her wish to stay with her dark patients and her life-work.

It seems a pity; she is no real woman to admire, but she makes a very good pattern for a flesh-and-blood missionary.—J T J

Sensitive Artist Writes Of Current Impressions

"Benefits Forgot," by G. B. Stern (MacMillan, $3).

For persons who like reading the thoughts, ideas and interpretations of life by famous authors, "Benefits Forgot" is made to order.

Miss Stern is a fabulous character with an equally fabulous mind. A most prolific writer, she has in her 30 years won world-wide acclaim with her contributions as a novelist and in the field of belles lettres.

ADDENDA

At the conclusion of the World War she returned to her seaside cottage which she closed up at the beginning of hostilities. There she recorded the "war episode" in her life in complement the other three volumes in her autobiography.

From the newspaper cartoons which delighted blitz-weary Britons to the plays she saw and the people she met, plus quotations from every book the author read during that period, the book leaves no stone unturned. The reactions of persons of every walk of life, conversations illustrating every emotion and attitude, an analogy between Agincourt and Alamein, through the film, "Henry V," and back to Laurence Olivier, are all included.

SENSITIVITY

The words of Shakespeare, Osbert Sitwell, Tennyson, J. M. Barrie, G. K. Chesterton, R. L. Stevenson, Byron and Yeats are used to add expression to her sensitivity towards situations, thoughts and happenings which dwell on subjects ranging from postwar fathers on Britain's beaches to her version of Cinderella.

All in all, "Benefits Forgot" is educational, entertaining and heart warming, made so by Miss Stern's irrepressible sense of humor and the versatility of her pen.

FUTURE

To the uninitiated this autobiography may prove heavy going. However, when the reader realizes that Miss Stern is just rambling, letting her thoughts flow from her pen, then the simplest method of enjoying the wealth of whimsy, satire and wisdom in this book is to roam willy nilly with the author. In years to come, the reward for sharing this experience with Miss Stern will come under the heading of "Benefits Forgot."—J.R.A.

Novelist Examines Change In British Social Strata

"Reveille," by Angela Du Maurier (Saunders, $2.25).

England from 1911 to 1950—the eventide of the aristocratic Conservatives and dawn of the working-class Labor Party—is the setting of this latest novel by Angela Du Maurier.

Through the carefully weighed, vital arguments of her characters, the author boldly sketches in the defects of the old order, picks out the flaws in the short-sightedness of the rank and file who, at the end of the World War, unceremoniously brushed aside Winston Churchill and voted into power an untried Labor Government.

SECOND SON

Matthew Kilhoan, sensitive, temperamental and brilliant second son of an ancient family, learns at the age of eight that he can never own the ancestral home of Heronswater. Ian, the heir, has everything the unfortunate Matthew has not—health, well-favored disposition, their mother's love, and Deborah, the one woman who could have saved Matthew from becoming an embittered renegade and anarchist who at every turn seeks to undermine his own class.

The politcal strife revolves around Matthew and Deborah. His intensely prejudiced, iconoclastic views are pitted against her traditionally conservative outlook, maintained stubbornly against the fact of Socialism.

UNTAINTED

Reconciliation between the two extremes is quietly sought by Padre Basil Considine, who, untainted by politics, nevertheless seeks to point out the truth as he sees it.

"But I cannot help saying," he observes at one point, "that in all my wanderings I've only come across class hatred—class distinction—emanating from the Socialist side of the street . . . I for one never blame a poor man for any bitter feeling of envy he may nurture against his better off neighbor . . . But . . . it is because men like you go out of your way to lie to that bitter man . . . that the Tory class is opposed all along the street to the bettering of the standard for the poor . . ."

And again: "It has been the cry of Socialism that none but the poor help the poor. It is not true. But very soon it will be, for as far as I can see it, there will be few individuals with any money left."

"Reveille" is bound to appeal to those men and women who are at all interested in the why and wherefore of the present political scene in Britain. The author has written with conviction and sincerity in an easy, readable style that lends itself to both thought and pleasure.—L.M.J.

Book Expert Dies in U.S.

NEW YORK, Aug 19 (NANA)—Hundreds of thousands of newspaper readers throughout the United States and Canada will regret to learn of the death last week of Lathrop C. Harper, who was, to a large extent, a counterpart of Warren in the famous stories, "The Married Life of Helen and Warren," by Mabel Herbert Urner (Mrs. Harper), which appeared for many years in several hundred newspapers.

"The Married Life of Helen and Warren" appealed to readers of both sexes and all ages, and attracted thousands of letters until Mrs. Harper, who survives her husband, discontinued the series because of pressure of other interests.

Mr. Harper was a rare-book dealer and authority on Americana a consultant to private collectors whose libraries were subsequently bequeathed to American universities. He published definitive editions on American histoy, including "Lewis and Clark," Pike's "Expedition," Henry and Thompson journals, Chittenden's "American Fur Trade," Charlevoix's "New France," Lone's "Noteworthy Firsts in Europe During the Fifteenth Century" and Browne's "California Pioneer."

The more than 150 sales catalogues of Americana and rare books published by Mr. Harper during his 83 years are considered standard reference works. He was the author of "A Selection of Incunabula," a description of 1,000 books printed in the fifteenth century, the first American catalogue of its size devoted exclusively to the first printed books.

Doctor Halts Killer's Rule

"Shadow of Madness," by Hugh Pentecost (Dodd, Mead, $3).

Dr. John Smith, a psychiatrist with a penchant for solving murders, stumbles upon a far from gay week-end party when he gets lost fishing.

Forced to stay, the eminent medico unscrambles his machine-gun toting host's fixations, unmasks a capricious blackmailer and turns up a desperate killer from among the other eight very frightened guests.

This marks the second appearance of Mr Pentecost's delightful doctor-detective and it is to be hoped that it will not be the last.

ALL CLUES

Although the plot is a trifle weak, this Red Badge Mystery is saved by the author's open-handed presentation of all the clues for the imperturbable doctor and the reader to ponder.

One fault prevalent among many mystery writers—the insertion of discordant, post-climactic, light-hearted banter—is almost avoided by the author, but not quite.

"Case solved? Cocktail? Spot of tennis, anyone?" is not what one expects from people recently subjected to four terror-ridden days, but a similar type of conversation does crop up in the concluding pages to impair an otherwise first-rate mystery.—G.G.B.A.

Women's Work

* * *

By HELEN HALE

If the rims of silk or rayon shades are soiled, scrub with a soft brush and mild soapsuds before washing the shade. Wash and dry quickly to prevent the wire frame from rusting.

Dip rayon and silk shades up and down in lukewarm soapsuds until clean. Rinse in clear water in same fashion, until water remains clear. Drying with an electric fan is a good way to speed drying. Avoid direct sunlight or artificial heat.

Genuine parchment, as well as metallic shades, may be cleaned with a mixture of one part turpentine and ten parts mineral oil. Apply with a soft cloth, then wipe off thoroughly.

To remove grease stains from rugs, apply Fuller's earth over the spot; let stand until grease is absorbed, then remove with whisk broom.

Chocolate stains on rugs, if fresh, can be removed by sprinkling with powdered borax, then moistening with cold water. Remove with cloth and cold water. Brush off borax when dry.

Fresh grease spots on wallpaper can sometimes be removed if a blotter is held to the stain and a warm iron applied to it. Move the blotter as grease is absorbed.

Paint stains should be removed while fresh with a paint solvent such as turpentine.

Fireside Musings

BAGGING GROUSE

With what eagerness and pleasure the British sportsmen and their cosmopolitan friends used to welcome the return of the Autumn season and hurry to the Scottish moors to shoot grouse.

They would walk and walk—miles and miles—to the pursuit of the delectable game.

How they would vie with each other, and good-naturedly claim the "best bag ever," or "exactly the same as last year's opening shoot."

Yes—the sporting season meant a lot to the ordered, comfortable lives of British squires, and their neighboring farmers.

But there is another kind of grouse—better known and less esteemed. The word itself is not so very common, and the origin is obscure; my own first acquaintance with it was by youthful arrogance contemptuously referring to someone as "having an awful grouse"—and recently I came across the term in Western literature.

Well, this grouse is one that lives on the tongues of irascible people—people with an eternal and unjustified grudge against life—wearing out other people with their tiresome, negative complaints which are both pointless and destructive. There is one remedy—let us become sportsmen and bag that grouse.

Designing the Bachelor Home

By BETTY LENAHAN

Setting up housekeeping in bachelor quarters is almost as exciting to the young man-about-town as getting his first job.

First there is the problem of finding just the right place. This need not be too difficult, one fair-size room, a tiny kitchenette and bath will suffice.

Then comes the question of furnishing and decorating, and surprising as it may seem, most men like to do their own planning, usually without feminine guidance or suggestions.

They want clear, uncomplicated color schemes, rugged but comfortable furniture and plenty of storage space for clothes, books, games and hobby collections.

LIMITED BUDGET

In furnishing the bachelor apartment, particularly if doing it on a limited budget, it is wise to get the essential pieces first and then add the extras, such as the draperies, lamps and other decorative accessories.

A studio couch or sofa bed, easy chair and lamp table, chest of drawers, desk and a sectional bookcase are good starter pieces. Later on, one or more sectional bookcases, another chair, coffee table and several more end tables can be added.

The combination living-dining-bedroom of the bachelor apartment illustrated shows what can be done to make a one-room home strictly masculine yet an inviting and comfortable place to live in.

INTERIOR PAINT

The woodwork and three of the walls are painted hunter green, the ceiling, a pale lemon yellow, and the fourth wall is papered with a conventional design in yellow on a rust background.

The simply designed bookcases, storage cabinets, occasional tables and furniture frames are oak.

The studio couch, which serves as a lounging place during the day and a comfortable bed at night is covered in blue, yellow and rust plaid.

New Gowns Slimmer

EVENING GOWNS are as romantic as a woman could wish for with the lovely new illusion neckline which flares away from the top of the figure but has a modest underbodice as well. Short sleeves are part of the top treatment and skirts are wide and very full underneath. Many gowns are slightly shorter in front to show slippers and ankles. Another new note is the slimmer gown in sheer nylon net with vertical rows of ruffling at the hemline. Floor-length evening coats in white brocade or satin are lined with black velvet so that they are reversible. Above is a black silk crocheted bodice with side-draped red velvet skirt which makes a two-piece Fall and Winter cocktail dress. The uneven hemline is an important note.

Something Special For Smalls

By MARIAN RAHL

Since about 80 per cent of women are under five foot five inches tall, it is good news that designers are doing more about special sizing this Fall. These costumes, scaled to smaller statures, insure better fit and cut down on costly alterations.

One designer who has been doing a special sizing job for his smaller customers the past ten years and reports a steadily growing following for "diminutive" dresses. At a recent Fall showing designs graphically illustrated the difference between regular misses and smaller sizing by having two models step into the showroom wearing the same size "misses" dress—one girl was a misses' size and the other a "diminutive." A basic navy with white collar and draped pocket, the dress drooped on the smaller figure. Changes and alterations necessary to make it fit and flatter the wearer . . . alterations the average woman would feel she could not afford . . . alterations that would bring her purchase into a higher-price range were pointed out.

New Stylings . . .

—the decollete evening dress with tiny reversible bolero that makes it wearable for dinner and cocktail parties, too. Red or green linings are favored with black dresses.

* * *

—the short casual coat that wraps about the figure. It has an uneven hemline dipping to a point just above the knees at the back. Adding to its silhouette interest is the pyramid collar that frames the head.

* * *

—gold accents on a black cotton raincoat. Double rows of gold stitching outline the small collar and all other edges while gold buttons repeat the color. Its silhouette is fairly straight in the new manner.

* * *

—pearlized accessories in matching hat and bag. They are in soft pastel colors and white, too. These small "theatre caps or berets" hug the head and are lovely with short formals and some bridesmaids will want them, too.

* * *

—the orchid hat in a flattering pale shade that will look wonderfully well with early Fall costumes and as a fresh accent note with black.

* * *

—hats in a "smoke" toned velour . . . soft, greyed green. Bright red ribbon and white ostrich feathers give them a Robin Hood feeling.

DESIGNERS ARE DOING MORE to eliminate costly alterations by giving the smaller woman better sizing this Fall. The small sketch at top shows how she can look in a garment scaled to her stature with the collar properly proportioned to the figure, buttons in smaller size and pocket placed higher or nearer the waistline. Armholes, neckline and even skirt darts should be altered if the dress is to do anything for the wearer. Proper sizing can impart a chic appearance never before attained.

THE Little Shipyards

By RAY WORMALD

HOLDING an important position among industries of Greater Victoria are several boatbuilding firms—each doing its share toward making the southern end of Vancouver Island a mecca for owners of pleasure craft, large and small.

Among leaders in this field are the firms of McKay, Cormack Ltd., at approaches to the Inner Harbor; Stromkins Boatworks, at the foot of Head Street in Esquimalt, and Vogler Seacraft, situated on an outlying portion of Douglas Street. Activities of these enterprising firms are shown pictorially on these pages. In addition to handling city and Island boat requirements, these smaller type industries are frequently called upon to fill orders for customers throughout other parts of the Pacific Northwest.

Operations are conducted on a year-round basis, and large is the number of men actively engaged in the fascinating occupation. Vessels produced at these plants range from small rowboats, sailing and fishing craft to sleek speedboats and luxurious cabin cruisers. In addition to actual construction, repairs and overhauls keep the yards constantly busy.

These "little industries" have a definite place in the city's pattern of progress.

PRIOR TO STARTING CONSTRUCTION of a new design most boatyards first make a model of the craft to be built. Finishing work on this cabin cruiser at Stromkins Boatworks is Victoria boat-builder Herbert Sinnott. Such pleasure craft are numerous in this area

ASSEMBLING OF FRAMES marks the initial work in production of boats of all kinds, and here, and in all phases of work, precision is of primary importance. Ernie Lewis, of Stromkins Boatworks, is seen above handling this phase of operations.

RAPID PROGRESS is being made in construction of this 17-foot open craft, pictured at the busy plant of McKay, Cormack Ltd. Seen working are Gordon Collins, nearest bow, and Colin Kerr Frames are of yellow cedar — popular boatbuilding product of British Columbia.

ENTERPRISING DOUGLAS VOGLER, left, founder and owner of Vogler Seacraft, and his son—also Douglas—look over a 10-foot rowboat ready to leave the shop. The demand for such craft reaches the highest peak during the Summer.

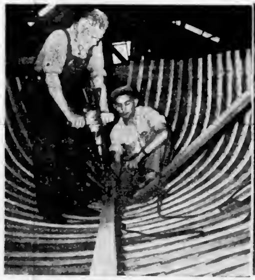
THE DEMAND FOR PLEASURE CRAFT of all shapes and sizes is heavy throughout Greater Victoria District. Ready for delivery are these open-type craft built at Vogler Seacraft. Boats are trucked to sea from the "inland" building location.



PRECISION IS A KEYNOTE in construction of all vessels, large or small. E. Ericson is pictured here as he prepares to drill keels on, while fellow worker, Edward Dyer, looks on. Craft is a lifeboat being built for the Canadian Pacific Railway at McKay, Cormack Ltd.

VETERAN PAINTER ISLAY MUTTER puts a basic coat of paint on one of the many 26-foot lifeboats being built at McKay, Cormack Ltd. yard for the Canadian Pacific Railway. Three coats of paint will be applied to this sturdy craft before it is stowed on passenger ships of the company.
